Subseries 1.2: Music Manuscript Sketchbooks, undated

Scope and Contents: Consists of spiral-bound notebooks containing original scores, incomplete scores, sketches, and lyrics by Duke Ellington, Billy Strayhorn, Tom Whaley and Ellington band members Jimmy Hamilton and John Sanders. There is one notebook created by Ann Michlau. The material is very fragile and valuable.

Titles or title fragments are listed in the order they appear. In some notebooks, researchers' notes identifying the material is included and special care is necessary to maintain this order. Each folder contains one notebook or loose pages grouped for creation or copyright. The creator of each notebook is identified by name at the beginning of the folder; change of creator within each folder is also designated. Most of the folders contain untitled works, and several folders contain only untitled material.

Subseries 1.3: Sidemen's Books, undated

Scope and Contents: Consists of parts for individual soloists, including parts for early Ellington Orchestra instrumentalists, Barney Bigard, Joe "Tricky Sam" Nanton and Otto Hardwick; later soloists including Paul Gonsalves; and long time band members Harry Carney and Lawrence Brown. Some folders are identified by a specific instrument. When individual soloists left the band their "books" were passed on to the next man who occupied the instrument chair. Therefore parts for an early band member might be found in later sidemen's books (for example: many parts for Barney Bigard are located in Jimmy Hamilton's book). Even though there are no "books" for prominent band members some of their parts might be available (for example; Ben Webster parts can be found in the tenor sax folders).

The parts in Sidemen's Books were frequently used and many of them are in poor condition.

To reduce handling of the material and to assist the researcher, an alphabetical title guide provides copyist and set number for individual sidemen or instrument for those pieces of music not attributed to any particular musician. Please note that title guides are works-in-progress and may not necessarily reflect a complete listing of folder contents.

Arrangement: The parts are maintained intact by folder but have been rearranged alphabetically within each folder.

The Sidemen's Books Subseries is separated into two container lists. Below is the physical arrangement of the material separated first by individual sideman then by instrument for those pieces of music not attributed to any particular musician.

Subseries 1.7: Non-Ellington Published Music, undated

Scope and Contents: Consists of published sheet music never performed by Duke Ellington and his Orchestra. The individual titles are arranged alphabetically followed by published songbooks, foreign language material, and unidentified music. Of particular interest is the foreign language material in Spanish which was most likely presented to Duke Ellington on his 1967 Latin-American tour.

Series 2: Performances and Programs, 1933-1973

Scope and Contents: Includes souvenir and concert programs, domestic and international tour itineraries, press releases, correspondence, news articles, and citations. The records document domestic and international tours to Canada, the Caribbean, Latin America, Africa, Asia, and Europe made by the Duke Ellington Orchestra, 1933-1973. In addition, they document three diplomatic tours to the Near and Middle East (1963), Soviet Union (1971), and Central and South America (1971) sponsored by the United States State Department. Of particular interest are the materials documenting Ellington's Concerts of Sacred Music performed between 1965 and 1973. These include correspondence, announcements, and publicity relating to the planning and execution of these concerts, dating from January 1963.

The records are organized into three subseries: Subseries 2.1, International Tours (including Ellington's diplomatic tours for the State Department), Subseries 2.2, Domestic Tours, and Subseries 2.3, The Sacred Concerts. The material within each group is arranged chronologically by performance dates. Span dates are identified within parentheses only when the dates for a group of materials falls outside of the performance dates. Undated items have been placed at the end of each grouping. Oversized materials have been placed at the end of the series but are incorporated chronologically in this listing.

Series 3: Business Records, 1938-1988

Scope and Contents: Consists of booking contracts and correspondence, tour receipts, personal and band bills and receipts, accounting ledgers, union dues statements, cancelled checks and bank statements, accounting records for several Ellington-owned and operated music companies, tax records and Internal Revenue Service audits, general correspondence, and miscellaneous records.

The records document Duke Ellington's career as a musician, composer, and bandleader between 1938 and 1988, and the operation of several of his and Mercer Ellington's music companies, including Tempo Music, Incorporated; Gaye Records, Incorporated, and Eighty-Eight Records, Incorporated. The records illustrate the complexities of maintaining a stable performing musical group when America's tastes in popular music were shifting away from large swing-style orchestras.

The records are organized into nine subseries: Subseries 3.1, Performance Management Records, 1941-1974; Subseries 3.2, Accounting Ledgers, 1960-1967; Subseries 3.3, Work Dues Statements, 1965-1974; Subseries 3.4, Bank Records, 1955-1974; Subseries 3.5, Tempo Music, Incorporated Records, 1961-1973; Subseries 3.6, Music Company Records, 1938-1965; Subseries 3.7, Tax Records and Internal Revenue Service Audits, 1944-1974; Subseries 3.8, General Correspondence, 1941-1988; and Subseries 3.9, Miscellaneous Records, 1966-1970.

Subseries 3.1: Booking Contracts and Tour Receipts and Performance Management Records, 1955 - 1974, 1941 - 1974

Scope and Contents: Contains booking contracts, correspondence, tour receipts, miscellaneous bills and receipts documenting the types of performances played by the Ellington Orchestra, negotiations associated with performance bookings, weekly payrolls, and expenses for food, lodging, and transportation for the orchestra while traveling. In addition there are miscellaneous bills and receipts incurred by Duke Ellington and Duke Ellington, Incorporated for telephone service, travel agents, recording studios, bills of lading, attorney fees, and concert receipts.

The records are organized into four groups. The first group includes booking contracts and correspondence that document the orchestra's operational income. The records are arranged chronologically. The second includes receipts and bills that document the orchestra's operating expenditures. The records are arranged chronologically by "week ending" date. The third group includes weekly expenditure and payroll sheets. The records are arranged chronologically. The final group includes miscellaneous tour receipts and bills. The records are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 3.4: (NEW) Bank Checks and Statements: Bank Records, 1955-1974 (NEW), 1955
April 1955-1974 January

Scope and Contents: Consists of cancelled checks, bank statements, and check stubs from various New York and California banks that maintained accounts for the Ellington organization and family. The records document the personal and business banking practices of Duke Ellington, Ruth Ellington (also identified as Ruth James and Ruth Stamatiou), Duke Ellington Incorporated, Tempo Music Incorporated, Letur Incorporated, and the Mitchell Trio. Some of the types of information found in these banking records include weekly deposits and daily withdrawals to cover the operational expenses of Duke Ellington, Incorporated and Tempo Music Incorporated, Mercer Ellington's education tuition, medical bills of various band and family members, bills from florists, liquor stores, restaurants and clothing stores, and legal and accountant fees. The records are organized first alphabetically by account holders' names and then arranged chronologically by statement closing dates. Bank statements for each box of checks have been placed in folders at the back of each box. The miscellaneous check stubs have been placed at the end of the subseries. The records are arranged in chronological order.

Subseries 3.5: Tempo Music Company Records; Tempo Music, Incorporated Records, 1961-1973

Scope and Contents: Contains royalty agreements, publisher royalty statements, royalty statement schedules, copyright registration certificates, correspondence, and miscellaneous bills and receipts documenting the general operation of Tempo Music, Incorporated. The records illustrate the daily operation and litigation activities of Tempo Music, one of several Ellington-owned music publishers, managed by his sister, Ruth Ellington. The records are organized into four groups. The first includes royalty agreements and publisher royalty statements. These records document the payments that Tempo Music distributed to its composers and arrangers and revenue paid to Tempo Music by other companies for the use of music included in its music catalog. The second group includes copyright registration certificates and miscellaneous Tempo bills and receipts, and miscellaneous records. These records identify the composers as the copyright holders to the music listed in Tempo Music's catalog. The records are arranged chronologically. The third group includes Tempo Music correspondence. These records document general correspondence between Ruth Ellington and Tempo Music's composers, accountants, and creditors. The correspondence is arranged alphabetically and then chronologically. The final group includes Ruth Ellington personal and Tempo Music, Incorporated, business bills and receipts that document the general accounting practices of Ruth Ellington as president of Tempo Music, Incorporated. These records are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 3.6: Other Music Company Records, 1938-1965

Scope and Contents: Consists of materials that document the operations of other music companies that Ellington established, including Mercer Records, Incorporated, Gaye Records, Incorporated, and Eighty-Eight Records, Incorporated, Mercer Records, Incorporated, managed by Ellington's son Mercer and the late Leonard Feather, demonstrate the Ellingtons' attempts to produce their own recordings. Gaye Records, Incorporated, and Eighty-Eight Records, Incorporated, both primarily charter companies, consist of stock certificates and minutes and by-laws. The records are arranged chronologically. The Gaye Records, Incorporated, and Eighty-Eight Records ledgers have been placed at the end of this series.

Series 4: Scripts and Transcripts, 1937-1970

Scope and Contents: Consists of interviews with Duke Ellington, transcripts of radio and television broadcasts, and scripts for motion pictures, musical reviews, and plays written for or by Duke Ellington. The records date between 1937 and 1970, and are organized into three subseries: Subseries 4.1, Interviews, 1961-1970 consists of transcripts of interviews with Duke Ellington conducted for various radio and television broadcasts between 1961 and 1970. The records are arranged in chronological order. The undated transcripts have been placed at the end of the subseries. Subseries 4.2, Scripts, 1941-1970, consists of scripts for motion pictures, musical reviews, and plays which Ellington wrote (e.g. Man With Four Sides, Boola), or had a major role in writing or producing (e.g. example Jump For Joy, A Drum Is A Woman). The series also contain scripts submitted to Ellington for possible production (e.g. Moon of Mahnomen). Of particular interest are scripts written by Lorraine Hansberry, Langston Hughes, and William Dufty, as well as a script based on the play Turcaret, by the French novelist and dramatist, Alain- Rene Lesage (1668-1747). The records are arranged in alphabetical order by title of production. Unidentified scripts have been placed at the end of the subseries. Subseries 4.3, Broadcasts, 1937-1969. Radio and television broadcast scripts for such programs as the Duke Ellington Swing Concert, the Tommy Dorsey Show, the Carnation Contented Hour, the Dean Martin Show, and the Red Skelton Show. In addition, there are numerous Treasury Department scripts used by Ellington to advertise the sale of United States Victory and Savings Bonds. The records are arranged in chronological order. The undated materials have been placed at the end of the subseries.

Series 5: Personal Correspondence and Notes, 1941-1974, undated

Scope and Contents: Consists of personal letters, cards, postcards, and invitations sent to Duke Ellington by celebrities, fans, dignitaries, friends, and colleagues between 1941 and 1974. The majority of the correspondence was received by Duke Ellington on his 70th and 75th birthdays, and during his final illness in 1974. Correspondence of particular interest includes four United States presidents and their first ladies; foreign and domestic dignitaries; and contemporary television personalities, editors, and critics. Prominent musicians, composers and singers such as W.C. Handy, Dizzy Gillespie, Louis Armstrong, and Ella Fitzgerald are represented among the letters and telegrams. There is also a long letter from a former school teacher.

Notes written by Ellington that document his thoughts on jazz music, musicians, and history are among the most significant items. The handwritten and typed notes include lyrics to sacred and secular songs, and draft manuscripts and chronologies for his book, Music is My Mistress. Included among these notes are performance and recording itineraries and tune lists. Of further interest in this series are the Ellington Christmas cards, renowned for their original poetry and artwork and unique presentation of the season's greetings.

The records are arranged in chronological order. Undated materials have been placed at the end of the series. The personal letters of Father Gerald Pocock have been separated from the rest of the correspondence materials and restricted at the request of the author to protect his privacy.

Series 6: Sound Recordings, 1927-1974

Scope and Contents: Contains cassette copies of Ellington and non-Ellington studio recordings, concert recordings, radio and television interviews, Voice of America radio broadcasts, guest appearances on radio and television shows (e.g., Arthur Godfrey, Ed Sullivan, The Today Show), and audition tapes. The material documents Ellington's recording career between 1927 and 1974. But most of the recordings are from the period, 1955-1973. Included are tapes of major Ellington works, such as BLACK, BROWN AND BEIGE, HARLEM, and the SECOND SACRED CONCERT, as well as tapes of material not widely available commercially, such as THREE BLACK KINGS. In addition to the Ellington recordings, there are recordings by groups led by musicians associated with Ellington, but recorded under their own names, including Johnny Hodges, Ray Nance, Mercer Ellington, Oscar Pettiford, and Herb Jeffries.

These original disc recordings and audiotapes (reel-to-reel and cassette) have been duplicated for preservation, and researcher copies have been created. Less than one quarter of the items in this series are commercially released recordings. The material is arranged sequentially by cassette RTC (Researcher Tape Collection) number.

Series 7: Photographs, Duke Ellington Collection, 1924-1972, undated

Collector: Ellington, Duke, 1899-1974
 Photographer: DeCarava, Roy
 Scope and Contents: Contains black and white and color photographs, contact sheets, slides, and negatives documenting Duke Ellington's career as a musician and the evolution of the Duke Ellington Orchestra between 1924 and 1972. The photographs depict the orchestra and its various band members and singers in domestic concerts and international tours, Ellington with presidents and heads of state, Ellington's family, the Sacred Concerts, and publicity shots of Ellington.

Images of particular interest include Duke Ellington with Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Lyndon B. Johnson, Queen Elizabeth, Princess Margaret, and prominent musicians including Louis Armstrong, Ella Fitzgerald, Tony Bennett, Leonard Bernstein, and Billy Strayhorn. The images also document places of interest where Ellington performed, such as Birdland, Westminster Cathedral, and the ancient theatre in Baghdad. Of particular interest are photographs of the original Cotton Club Orchestra and the Washingtonians, Duke Ellington's first band.

The photographs are arranged into subject categories such as Awards, Band Members, Duke Ellington at the Piano, Friends and Associates, International Tours, Publicity, etc.

Miscellaneous photographs of musicians, concerts, etc. Includes work by famed photographer Roy de Carava, ca. 1960s (Box 1, folders 33, 34, and 35, and other locations in the series).

Restrictions: Unrestricted research access on site by appointment. Unprotected photographs must be handled with gloves.

The famed Savoy Ballroom, on Lenox Avenue in Harlem, New York, opened in 1926 and closed in 1958. Owned by Moe Gale, a Jewish man, and managed by Charles Buchanan, a black man, the Savoy Ballroom opened its doors on March 12, 1926 right in the middle of Harlem, between 140th and 141st Streets on Lenox Avenue. The vision of the two young men created one of the first racially integrated public places in the country. The ballroom was on the second floor of a two-story building stretching the entire block. The ground floor housed the entrance to the ballroom at the center of the block signified by the marquee extending out over the sidewalk and various stores. The spacious basement checkrooms could serve up to 5,000 patrons. Billed as the "World's finest ballroom," the Savoy was complete with large luxurious carpeted lounges and mirrored walls. The block-long ballroom had two bandstands, colored spotlights and a spring-loaded wooden dance floor. Approximately 700,000 patrons visited the ballroom annually; and the floor had to be completely replaced every three years. The Savoy was appropriately nicknamed "The home of happy feet," and it was also known among the regular patrons as "the Track" for the elongated shape of the dance floor. The staff of 90 permanent employees at the Savoy included musicians, waiters, cashiers, floor attendants, porters and administrative assistants. There were also hostesses with whom a visitor, mostly from downtown, could dance for a dime or be tutored on the latest steps, as well as a team of bouncers clad in black tuxedos and bow ties. The bouncers were ex-boxers, basketball players etc., who would rush in on a moment's notice and put out any person. ## Series 8: Scrapbooks, 1931-1973

Scope and Contents: Series 8: Scrapbooks, 1937-1973 consists of seventy-seven scrapbooks containing domestic and international newspaper clippings and magazine articles compiled by Burrelle's Press Clipping Bureau for the Ellington organization between 1931 and 1973. The news clippings include announcements of Ellington performances and jazz festivals, performance and record reviews, information on Ellington's foreign and domestic tours, discussions of Ellington's composition style and his management of the Ellington Orchestra, music popularity polls, obituaries, tributes, and essays concerning the social issues of importance to Ellington. In addition, there are advertisements, programs, invitations, itineraries, letters and telegrams.

As Ellington's performing career progressed, the scrapbooks document a change in the press from simple announcements of concerts and record releases to longer and more laudatory articles praising Ellington's activities and his music, beliefs, and lifestyle. Taken as a whole, the bound and unbound clippings in series 8 and 9 provide insight into the growth of Ellington's popularity and social status, as well as the changing musical, social, political, and racial dynamics of the United States after World War II.

The scrapbooks are arranged chronologically by the beginning span date of each volume. Most volumes cover only a few months while others span several years. Overlapping dates generally occur because the articles were compiled and mounted in the scrapbooks in the order they were received by Burrelle's, without regard to time lags incurred due to location of origin and frequency of publication. Volume numbers refer to individual bound collections of mounted clippings. Each microfilm roll covers several scrapbook volumes.

Of interest are articles documenting the boycott and cancellation of an Ellington concert by the local chapter of the NAACP in Richmond, Virginia, in February, 1951 (box 17), Mercer Ellington's musical career (box 35), Ellington's 70th birthday party and presidential concert at the Nixon White House (box 62), the premiere of The River at the new Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. (box 73), foreign press coverage of the Ellington Orchestra's international tours, including those to Europe (boxes 1, 10, 18, 21-23, 30, 47), the Middle East (boxes 33-34), South American (box 57), Southeast Asia (box 66), and the Soviet Union (box 73), articles written by Ellington (box 2), the New Yorker three-part series on Ellington (box 13), Ellington's views on segregation (boxes 17, 25-26), the Sacred Music concerts (boxes 41, 50-54), and the tribute to Ellington, "Duke Ellington . . . We Love You Madly" (boxes 74-75).

Mounted congratulatory letters addressed to Ellington commemorating the tenth anniversary of his premiere at the Cotton Club are in box 47. Among them, are letters from Chick Webb, Helen Oakley, Glenn Burrs, Andre Kostelanetz, Victor Young, Cab Colloway, Ferde Grofe, Louis Armstrong, Xavier Cugat, Rudy Vallee, George Frazier, Sammy Kaye, Irving Mills, W.C. Handy, Abel Green, Joe Higgins, and M.H. Orodener.

Box 31 contains unbound, mounted clippings that have not been microfilmed. Please consult the reference archivist for information regarding their use.

Series 9: Newspaper Clippings, 1939-1973, undated

Scope and Contents: Contains articles from nationally and internationally published newspapers and magazines documenting the tours, performances, and television appearances of Duke Ellington and the Duke Ellington Orchestra between 1931 and 1973. The clippings were compiled for Duke Ellington by clipping services Burelles, Incorporated, Livingston, New Jersey; Vital Information Press, Brooklyn, New York; Luce International of New York, New York; and Associated Press Clippings, London, England.

The newspaper clippings document Ellington's activities in the United States. The clippings are also an extension of the scrapbooks which document Ellington's international tours and some early American performances between 1933 and 1958 that were reported by international news services. Newspaper clippings for the years 1960-1961 can be found in volume twenty two in the scrapbook series. The clippings are arranged in chronological order. Samples of the mailing envelopes from the newspaper clipping service and other materials found among the clippings are at the end of the series. Of particular interest are clippings with caricatures of Ellington and other African-American performers such as Harry Belafonte and Diahann Carroll; the 1959 premiere performance at Hunter College of Ellington's Queen Suite, written for England's Queen Elizabeth II; and an Ellington concert following a Detroit Pistons and St. Louis Hawks professional basketball game in 1960.

Some of the newspaper clippings were discarded due condition of the materials.

Series 10: Magazine Articles and Newspaper Clippings, 1940-1974

Scope and Contents: Includes magazine, newspaper, and other articles by or about Duke Ellington. These articles document the breadth and depth of critical acclaim and esteem in which Duke Ellington and his orchestra were held in the United States and abroad. They include tributes, biographies, results of polls of magazine critics and readers, announcements of concert and dance appearances, reviews of personal appearances, record reviews, interviews, reminiscences, and other items of general interest about Ellington, his orchestra, and orchestra members. Of particular interest is the original profile of Duke Ellington by Richard O. Boyer that first appeared in The New Yorker in 1944. Also included are many articles and reviews from such jazz journals as Metronome, Down Beat, the British Jazz Journal, and the French Bulletin du Hot Clubs de France.

Items written by Ellington appear in such publications as Ebony (1952, 1954), Jazz (1959), Down Beat (1962), The Christian Science Monitor (1968), Look (1971), Boy's Life (1972), and Esquire (1973). Further documentation of events referred to in these materials can be found in programs, scrapbooks and unmounted newspaper clippings. The articles are divided by domestic and foreign and are further arranged in chronological order within each group. Undated items have been placed at the end of each group. Oversized materials have been placed at the end of the series, but are listed chronologically within the box and folder listing.

The word "in" preceding the title of a magazine or newspaper indicates that a complete copy of that journal is included; the word "from" preceding the title indicates that only the designated article is included. Foreign languages are indicated in brackets.

Series 11: Publicity, 1935-1988

Scope and Contents: Includes pamphlets, newsletters, magazine articles, concert broadsides, record catalogs and price lists, press releases, and album covers advertising the performance activities and music endorsements of Duke Ellington and His Orchestra. In addition, there are press kits developed by William Morris, Incorporated; Moss, Lawson, and Mendez, and the Associated Booking Corporation publicizing the Orchestra's performance. These kits often include brief instructions and suggestions for advertising; photographs; punch lines; lists of famous songs and recordings; brief histories of the band, its musicians, and its peak performances; and short essays about Ellington and his contributions to music and society. The records document various publicity formats used by the Ellington organization to advertise domestic and foreign performances and recordings of the Duke Ellington Orchestra between 1935 and 1974.

Materials of special interest include a press kit compiled by the United States Information Service for Ellington's tour and publicity for his 1967 Carnegie Hall concert, his 1968 and 1974 Sacred Concert performances, his 1969 and 1970 symphonic concerts, and the 1968 White House honors performance for Richard Nixon. In addition, there is a 1988 broadside using Ellington's portrait to advertise a company's paper quality and a score of music written as a tribute to Ellington by a band in Sweden.

The materials are arranged in chronological order. The undated items are located at the end of the series. Oversized materials are physically located at the end of the series but are listed in chronological order.

Series 12: Posters and Oversize Graphics, 1933-1989, undated

Scope and Contents: Consists primarily of posters and original artwork made from plate or blocks, such as inks, silkscreens, and woodcuts. Drawings include images where there is a dominance of line over mass, such as charcoal, pencil, caricatures, pastels, and illustrations. The posters document both foreign and domestic performances of Duke Ellington and His Orchestra, as well as sentiments and interests of fans including works of political, social and cultural interest. Among these posters are items from Ellington's landmark tours of the Near East in 1963 and his 1971 tour of the Soviet Union, as well as, promotional posters created during Ellington's stint with RCA Victor Records. The posters are divided into foreign and domestic tours, non-Ellington posters, and oversized graphics. The foreign tours are further arranged by country/language and the domestic tours are further arranged by state or city. The oversized graphics are arranged into awards and citations, calendars, graphics, photographs, paintings, and drawings. Among the materials are drawings and illustrations composed by contractors for Tempo Music's sheet music covers. These illustrations also came from fans as drawings, graphics, greetings, and gifts. Illustrations include Christmas cards from the White House, illustrations, and photos of Duke Ellington and Billy Strayhorn. All oversized materials are arranged by location of item and then alphabetically. All dimensions are approximate and are given only for oversized materials. They are measured in inches, with the height of the poster or graphic followed by width. Titles are the only descriptive information listed in Subseries 6: Original Artwork for Tempo Sheet Music.

Series 14: Religious Material, 1928-1974

Scope and Contents: Consists of books, bibles, hymnals, prayer books, pamphlets, and mass cards that were either acquired by or given to Duke Ellington. Most of the materials were given to Ellington by friends and fans. Many items contain inscriptions and notations written to Ellington. Of particular interest are fifteen issues of Forward Day by Day, a religious serial, spanning June 6, 1968 to January 31, 1973. Each of these pamphlets contains non-musical notations made by Ellington including underlining, question marks, words and other markings.

The religious materials are organized by type of material, and then arranged in alphabetical order either by author or title. Publisher and publication dates have been included whenever possible. Notes on various aspects of religion and religious services have been left in the pages of many of the bound materials when possible.

Series 15: Books, 1903-1980, undated

Scope and Contents: Consists of regular and oversize books purchased by or given to Ellington and Evie Ellis, Ellington's long-time friend and companion. The materials also include books acquired by Ellis after Ellington's death. The books are arranged in alphabetical order by author or title when the author is unidentified. Publication information is given when available. All of Ellington's religious books can be found in Series 14: Religious Material.

Many books contain inscriptions to Ellington and Ellis from friends, fans and family members. Of particular interest are the following: Katsuji Abe's Jazz: Pictorial Essay, featuring pictures of jazz musicians; Tony Munzlinger's Jazz, a compilation of Munzlinger's sketches; and an autographed letter from Booker T. Washington to A.I. Lathers, dated 24 October 1904, glued inside the cover of Washington's Up From Slavery.
