Historical Note

Boston, Massachusetts stained glass design firm, Wilbur H. Burnham Studios, was founded by master stained glass craftsman Wilbur H. Burnham, in 1922. Together with Charles J. Connick and Joseph G. Reynolds, Burnham studios became recognized as one of the most prominent stained glass design companies in the United States. Burnham took early commissions from influential American architect Ralph Adams Cram, and believed strongly in the medieval stained glass tradition. In the late 1930s his son, Wilbur H. Burnham, Jr., who had received an informal education on tours of Europe with his family, and a BFA from Yale University, joined the firm.

Some of the studio's most notable commissions included seventeen windows for the Washington National Cathedral in Washington, D. C., all the windows and murals for Saint Mary's Cathedral, Peoria, Illinois, ten windows for the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine in New York City, and five for the Riverside Church, also in New York City.

Both Burnham and Burnham, Jr., served as presidents of the Stained Glass Association of American from 1938-1941 and 1956-1957 respectively. Burnham, Jr., took over the studio in 1968 when his father retired, and sold the studios in 1982.

Additional newsclippings about Burnham Studios can be found in three scrapbooks which also house announcements and invitations, and scattered photographs. One scrapbook contains photographs of windows designed by the studios for the Church of Saint Vincent De Paul in Los Angeles, California.

Artwork and sketchbooks include some artwork by Burnham, Jr., such as pencil and ink sketches, life drawings, and some watercolors. The bulk of the series consists of watercolor design studies on board for many of the studio's projects documented in the project files. Also found are some stained glass design sketches and cartoons, primarily in pencil and charcoal with scattered watercolors, as well as seven folders of material used in creating stained glass patterns and templates.

Series 6: Project Files, 1916-1980s

10.6 Linear feet (Boxes 2-12, 42)

Project, or "Job," files provide documentation of contracts for approximately 250 locations held by Burnham Studios throughout the United States and in Bellau, France, from the 1920s-1980s. Files typically include correspondence with clients, architects and builders, contracts, purchase orders, building plans, sketches, scattered photographs and some printed material. Found at the beginning of the series are some files relating to projects in general, including correspondence and job orders with metal window specialists, Chas. Haas Company; 2 sets of index cards listing project numbers and materials used; records of repair contracts; and a set of completed contracts for the firm Reynolds, Francis & Rohnstock from 1920s-1960s.

The series contains significant documentation for the following projects in particular: New York's Cathedral of Saint John the Divine, Saint Mary's Cathedral in Peoria, Illinois, Saint Martin's Church in Providence, Rhode Island, and the Washington National Cathedral in Washington D. C.

See Appendix for a list of numbered contracts in Series 6.

Arrangement of this series reflects the studio's main system for organizing project files alphabetically by name of the town in which the job site was located. It can be assumed that all folder titles containing references to letters elsewhere in the collection (e.g. "Repairs, A-C, E,") also follow that system of arrangement. Beginning in the 1920s Burnham Studios began assigning numbers to contracts and several copies of a list of contracts by number were found in the collection. That list is provided below and allows for cross-referencing (albeit incomplete) of the projects arranged by location in this series with the design studies found in Series 10: Artwork and Sketchbooks. The list was transcribed from hand-written records which were incomplete and sometimes illegible.

Series 10: Artwork and Sketchbooks, circa 1920s-circa 1980s

13.05 Linear feet (Boxes 16-23, 29-39, OVs 50-73, 85 RD 83)

Artwork by Wilbur H. Burnham, Jr., includes pencil and ink sketches and paintings illustrating different styles for stained glass, such as Byzantine, Italian Renaissance and French Gothic. Also found are a group of life sketches and some watercolors by Burnham, Jr.

The bulk of the series consists of watercolor design studies on board for many of the studio's projects. Also found are stained glass design sketches and cartoons primarily in pencil and charcoal with scattered watercolors, as well as seven folders of material used for stained glass patterns and templates.

Design studies on board are arranged in three groups. Studies numbered according to the "List of Numbered Contracts" from Series 5: Project Files, form the bulk of the material. A second group of studies is arranged according to a set of numbers for which no list or other cross-reference tool appears to exist. The third set of unnumbered studies is arranged at the end of the series. Some of the unnumbered studies have other identifying information indicating the location for which the design was created but they have not been arranged according to location.

Series 11: Photographic Materials, circa 1904-circa 1980s

5.8 Linear feet (Boxes 23-26, 29, 40-41, 43-47, OVs 74-82)

Found here are several photos of Wilbur H. Burnham, Sr. and Wilbur H. Burnham, Jr. and other studio staff, including three photographs of an office party. This series also provides a pictorial overview of the stained glass process through photos of people working on cartoons, and tracing, cutting, painting, firing, and glazing stained glass.

One file includes 2 photos of window displays for an exhibition entitled "Christmas Themes in Stained Glass" with a collection of cards and labels.

The bulk of the series consists of photos of stained glass cartoons and completed work. Also found are three sets of transparencies of artwork.

Folders are arranged alphabetically by folder title. Photographs of artwork are arranged alphabetically by name of location, generally the town and state, in which the job site was located. The first two sets of transparencies are arranged by location and the third set is unidentified.
