Administrative Information

Processing Information

Collection has been minimally processed and arranged.

Processing Information

The collection has been assessed and minimally processed where necessary for access.

When the collection was accessioned in 2019 it was necessary for the entire collection to undergo cleaning and conservation. This work was completed and the collection was returned to the archives over the course of 2024.

The Unique ID field reflects the number assigned to each folder during the conservation process. It has been maintained to enable each folder to be tracked back to the spreadsheet created during the conservatio process, which contains additional information about the found condition of the contents and the original location of the contents at the Folk-Legacy property. Where folders have been combined, the new folder carries the assigned numbers from all of the original folders.

Series 1: Production Files has received the most processing attention, including arrangement according to catalog number and preliminary description.

Series 2: Business Files has been minimally inventoried but has not received detailed description or arrangement. An inventory of this series is available upon request.

Series 3: Correspondence has only been inventoried based on the transcription of the original housings that were created during the conservation process.

Series 4: Photographs were arranged by media type during the conservation process and the information written on original housings was transcribed and is currently being used as description. Photographs that came out of unlabeled original housings have not received further descriptive assessment.

Series 5: General has been minimally described but much of it will require further processing to increase accessibility.

Series 6: Audio has received no processing attention, but an inventory made during the conservation process is available upon request.

Biographical / Historical

Folk-Legacy Records was founded in 1961 by folk musicians Sandy and Caroline Paton with their friend and business partner Lee Haggerty. Their mission was to preserve, create, and share traditional folk music with the public. "People's music", or songs, stories, and tunes passed down generationally and shared within communities were of special importance to them, and as folklorists and enthusiasts, they learned the extensive history of songs and traditions, pouring a wealth of cultural knowledge in liner notes and booklets accompanying albums.

Early releases from Folk-Legacy include field recordings of traditional singers and instrumentalists of the British Isles, as well as regions of the U.S. including Appalachia, the Ozarks, New England, the Southwest, and beyond. Many Folk-Legacy albums in later years feature emerging artists, or folk song interpreters, with the continuing tradition in mind. The catalogue includes over 140 albums recorded by the Patons at informal gatherings of friends, live concerts, sessions in the Folk-Legacy studio and family home atop Sharon Mountain in the northwest corner of Connecticut, and right in the homes of traditional musicians.

This collection has a wide range of beautiful and lively music steeped in rich folk traditions that can be enjoyed and sung by all. It is through the work of the Patons and Haggerty that these traditional songs and their value may continue to flourish--so people will keep singing together.

Container Listing

Series 1: Production Files

Subseries 1.1: Production Files in Catalog Order

Scope and Contents: Sub-series consists of production materials associated with the albums published by Folk-Legacy Records. They are arranged in order of release by catalog number. Folk-Legacy used a variety of prefixes including FSI, FSE, FSA, FTA, and EGO, but the catalog number following the different prefixes reflects the order in which the albums were released and is maintained in the arrangement. When cassette and compact disc copies of earlier albums were released, the same catalog number is used but with "C" or "CD" as a prefix. Materials for the cassette and compact disc releases have been grouped with materials from the primary production materials, which is generally how Folk-Legacy Records was keeping their production files.
