Scope and Contents

This collection documents the planning, production, and execution of the 2014 Smithsonian Folklife Festival. Materials may include photographs, audio recordings, motion picture film and video recordings, notes, production drawings, contracts, memoranda, correspondence, informational materials, publications, and ephemera. Such materials were created during the Festival on the National Mall in Washington, D.C., as well as in the featured communities, before or after the Festival itself.

Arrangement

Arranged in 4 series.

- Series 1: Program Books, Festival Publications, and Ephemera
- Series 2: China: Tradition and the Art of Living
- Series 3: Kenya: Mambo Poa
- Series 4: Special Events

Physical Characteristics and Technical Requirements note

The Rinzler Archives is continually engaged in digitization of archival materials to facilitate preservation and ready access by users. However, given the diversity of legacy formats of the originals, some older materials may not be available. Notably, certain older audio recordings cannot be played because of deterioration of the tape stock, and the Archives has no playback equipment for EIAJ-1 videoreels (1/2 inch) or multi-track audio recordings. Where listening or viewing copies are available, this is generally indicated for each item. Users are encouraged to contact Archives staff to verify that the materials of interest to them are already accessible, or to determine if they can be digitized as needed.

Introduction

For forty-eight years, the Smithsonian Folklife Festival has gathered people from around the globe on the National Mall to celebrate the best of the human spirit. In response, millions of visitors have been inspired, challenged, and delighted by culture bearers manifesting the ordinary and the astounding. The Folklife Festival's history is a remarkable one in which creativity and culture have transformed grass, gravel, and trees into a vibrant landscape for exploration and exchange.

The 2014 Festival added another chapter to that history with programs illuminating the cultural heritage of China and Kenya. With song and story, movement and craft in tow, exemplars of traditional genres demonstrated practices that continue to resonate in our modern world. The alchemy of their presence and the curiosity of visitors is what drives the Festival.

The 2014 Festival took place for two five-day weeks (June 25-29 and July 2-6) between Madison Drive and Jefferson Drive and between 9th Street and 12th Street, south of the National Museum of Natural History (see site plan). It featured two programs and special events including the Rinzler Concert.

The 2014 guide included participant lists for each program, a site plan, and daily schedules.

The Festival was co-presented by the Smithsonian Institution and National Park Service and organized by the Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage.

Series 2: China: Tradition and the Art of Living

Introduction: China in 2014 was the world's most populous country and second biggest economy. Its rates of industrialization and urbanization are unprecedented. The largest rural-to-urban migration in human history is underway as people move from the countryside to seek work in China's expanding cities. People face both new opportunities and daunting challenges as they adapt to shifting circumstances and try to reconcile the dynamics of development with cultural and ecological sustainability.

The 2014 Festival program highlighted REUNION and BALANCE, traditional principles that are of greater value than ever in China. Reunions animate and sustain tradition. And as people are increasingly separated from one another by the demands of work and education, they find ways to reaffirm ties to community and cultural heritage both in their daily lives and for special occasions. A traditional Chinese perspective posits that all things - everything from one's health to a community's welfare - depends on a balance of internal and external forces. In China today, people are navigating the transformations that emerge from modernization and from frictions between work and leisure, past and present, development and conservation, and global, national, and local traditions.

More than a hundred culture bearers from China participated in the program. Representing 15 provinces, autonomous regions, and municipalities, as well as some of the largest and smallest of the 56 officially recognized ethnicities, they provided a window into the country's diversity. They demonstrated how people sustain a rich range of traditions even as communities are disrupted by migration, natural disaster, and the pressures of contemporary life. At the Festival, they demonstrated the artistry with which balance and reunion are realized within and across communities, and between humans and their environment - both through the changing seasons and in a changing world.

James Deutsch and Sojin Kim were Program Curators; Jing Li was Program Coordinator; and Joan Hua was Program Assistant. Advisors and consultants included: Joan Auchter, Robert Baron, Rachel Cooper, Robert Daly, Melanie Fernandez, Rodrigo Fritz, Yong Han, Bill Ivey, Joanna C. Lee, Jing Li, Jun Liu, Adriel Luis, Shengde Ma, Jean Miao, Nick Spitzer, May Sun, Sue Tuohy, Sally Van de Water, Jingqiang Wang, Lihui Yang, Yuan Yang, Nora Yeh, Juwen Zhang, Qiaoyun Zhang, Zhizong Zhu, and Nina Zolt.

The program was produced by the Smithsonian Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage in partnership with the China International Culture Association, working with the China Arts and Entertainment Group. Additional support was provided by the West Kowloon Cultural District, Hong Kong SAR; and the Guizhou Provincial Department of Culture.

Series 3: Kenya: Mambo Poa

Introduction: Kenya is a country of deeply rooted traditions and a vibrant cultural crossroads. Some of the oldest artifacts of human communities have been discovered in Kenya, making the East African country truly a cradle of humanity.

Today, it is a dynamic nation that links its prehistoric past to new cultural expressions in a land of great environmental contrasts. Kenya's diverse landscapes stretch from snow-capped mountains to the Great Rift Valley, from deserts to lakes, vast savannahs, lush forests, and a sparkling coastare reflected in the rich diversity of the Kenyan people and their traditions.

Occurring just after the fiftieth anniversary of Kenya's independence from the British Empire, the Kenya: Mambo Poa program presented the ways in which the people of Kenya are balancing protection of their valued cultural and natural heritage with the challenges and opportunities for change in the twenty-first century.

Festival visitors interacted with exemplary craftspeople who work with everything from clay to soapstone to recycled materials, learned about important fossil discoveries by taking part in a model dig site from the Great Rift Valley, ran with Kenya's Olympic athletes, danced to both traditional and contemporary music from many regions of the country, discovered how Kenyans live among and work with some of the most magnificent wildlife on the continent, and experienced Kenyan life in the United States.

All of this took place in venues and spaces that reflect the creative and dynamic experiences of the Kenyan people, whether they live in urban or rural, coastal or inland environments.

Preston Scott was Program Curator and Arlene Reiniger was Program Coordinator; Elizabeth Ouma was Kenya Project Manager.

The program was produced by the Smithsonian Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage in partnership with the Government of Kenya. Additional support was provided by the U.S. Agency for International Development, the HENRY Foundation, the Curtis & Edith Munson Foundation, Deborah Santana, and the Consortium for World Cultures of the Smithsonian Institution.

Series 4: Special Events

Introduction: Ralph Rinzler Memorial Concert

Each year the Smithsonian Folklife Festival presents a special evening concert to honor both its co-founder Ralph Rinzler (1934–1994) and a key person with whom he collaborated. In 2014 the Festival and Smithsonian Folkways Recordings celebrated the life and work of Pete Seeger (1919–2014). Kindred spirits, Ralph Rinzler and Pete Seeger influenced the way that the public thought about the social power of music and the continued relevance of traditional culture in contemporary society. In their hands, the making of music was nothing short of a call to action. Moreover, the sharing of music was transformed into a summons for a kind of public engagement that would challenge our notions of what was "mainstream" and what lived on "the margins." Their contributions to the Folklife Festival, and to the Center that produces it, are without measure. It seemed fitting that the Rinzler Concert artists lifted their voices in appreciation of these two visionaries.

Xóchitl Chávez was Rinzler Concert Coordinator.

Ralph Rinzler Folklife Archives Narrative Stage

The vision behind the 2014 Archives Narrative Stage sessions began with staff and interns in the Ralph Rinzler Folklife Archives and Collections who noted that 2014 not only marked the twentieth anniversary of Ralph's passing, but also the milestone of the first formal archival arrangement for all of his papers - over one hundred cubic feet of content. In honor of Ralph's legacy with the Festival, these narrative stage sessions brought together key individuals from the Festival's past and present as well as looking toward the future.

History in the Present: From the Field to the Festival, June 28

Ralph Rinzler and Pete Seeger were practitioners and supporters of traditional music making, art, and artisanship. Like many of their contemporaries, Rinzler and Seeger actively documented traditions "in the field," capturing essential sounds, images, footage, and text. They were also intimately involved with festival production, providing access to the complexities of an individual or group's cultural identity in a public forum. Many of these materials collected from the field are now part of the archival record, made available through publications and recordings, repurposed for performances, and presented at festivals. Within this complex network of field documentation, interpretation, and public presentation, ethical and cultural lines can become blurred through the ongoing actions of the documenter and those who are documented.

Fieldwork and festival production also shape discourse covering cultural advocacy and cultural sustainability by incorporating content related to social, ethnic, racial, and gender issues, as well as holding an event on a site accessible for those with disabilities. This panel both explored the historical efforts of people like Ralph Rinzler and Pete Seeger and discussed the legacy and relevance of those efforts today.

Culture, Activism, and Community, June 28

Both Ralph Rinzler and Pete Seeger cared about and advocated for key cultural elements that are common threads in the human experience. Rinzler wove these threads through his fieldwork and engagement as a folklorist, musician, and cultural advocate, and Seeger embodied these elements through an advocacy in which music and public engagement function as core elements of humanity. In this light, culture, activism, and community have the power to represent the importance of people's voices, the need for agency and empowerment, and the fight for justice. The Folklife Festival demonstrates powerfully how these themes - these human elements - exist on a global scale, and how people who may not know the names "Rinzler" or "Seeger" fully embody and demonstrate what these individuals believed in and helped shape as the heart and focus of the Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage and the Smithsonian Folklife Festival.
