

Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs

Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives National Museum of Asian Art Archives Washington, D.C. 20013 Business Number: 202-633-0533 AVRreference@si.edu https://asia.si.edu/research/archives/

Table of Contents

Collection Overview
Administrative Information	1
Biographical / Historical	1
Scope and Contents	2
Arrangement	2
Names and Subjects
Container Listing

Collection Overview

Repository:	Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives
Title:	Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs
Date:	undated
Identifier:	FSA.A2011.03
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Extent:	1 Item (album (99 photoprints); b&w 31.2 cm. x 41.6 cm. (sheet)) 62 Albumen prints (b&w 25 cm. x 20 cm. or smaller)
Language:	Handwritten annotation in English language, on recto of album sheets.
Digital Content:	Image(s): Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs

Administrative Information

Acquisition Information

Purchase; 2011.

Citation

Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. FSA.A2011.03. National Museum of Asian Art Archives. Smithsonian Institution, Washington D.C.

Restrictions

Collection is open for research.

Conditions Governing Use

Permission to publish, quote, or reproduce must be secured from the repository.

Biographical / Historical

Antoin Sevruguin managed and operated one of the most successful commercial photography studios in Tehran in the late 19th century. Born in the 1840s in Iran, Sevruguin's mother returned with her children to her hometown of Tbilisi after his father Vassil, a Russian diplomat in Iran, died in a horse riding accident. Trained as a painter, Sevruguin returned to Iran in the early 1870s accompanied by his two brothers, establishing a photography studio first in Tabriz and then Tehran. His studio's ties to Tbilisi, however, persisted through the years; many of the early portraits of Dervishes and women have been simultaneously attributed to Antoin Sevruguin and Dimitri Yermakov, the Georgian photographer who is often referred to as Sevruguin's mentor from Tbilisi. Many of Antoin Sevruguin's photographs were published as early as 1885 in travelogues, journals and books indicating that by that time he had a fully established practice in Tehran's Ala al-Dawla street, with ties to the court of Nasir al-Din Shah Qajar. Often unacknowledged as the producer of published images in his own time - the 1902 photographic survey of Persepolis being the most glaring of such authorial misrepresentations - he was nevertheless celebrated and acknowledged for his artistic vision and his keen eye for composition, achieving the Medal of Lion and Sun from Nasir al-Din Shah, the 1897 Medal of Honour in the Brussels International Exposition, and the 1900 Medal of Honour in Paris International Exposition. Reflecting a career that spans nearly half a century, Sevruguin's diverse body of work includes studio portraits of families, women and dervishes, survey photographs of archeological sites, objects, landscapes and architecture, and photographs of royalty, high officials and ceremonies of the Qajar court. The range of his output not only demonstrates his own pictorial concerns and artistic abilities but also the divergent interests of his clients. Despite numerous devastating incidents throughout his career - the loss of more than half of his negatives in a 1908 blast and fire, an unsuccessful attempt at diversifying into cinematography in the 1910s, and the confiscation of the remainder of his negatives in the mid-1920s to name a few - his studio remained operational even after his death in 1933. A number of negatives from the Sevruguin studio can be dated to the years after Antoin's death, indicating that the Sevruguin studio continued to be commercially viable. As one of the most prolific early commercial photographers in Iran, Antoin Sevruguin's artistic legacy has since proved far more enduring.

Scope and Contents

A large album of prints by photographer Antoin Sevruguin, likely dating from his early career in Iran in the 1870s and 1880s. The collection also includes a number of loose, unbacked prints, many duplicating the photographs in the album. Roughly half of the mounted prints have English handwritten captions.

Arrangement

Images indexed by original photographic print number.

Local Numbers

FSA A2011.03

Names and Subject Terms

This collection is indexed in the online catalog of the Smithsonian Institution under the following terms:

Subjects:

Architecture Clothing and dress Criminal procedure Executions and executioners Hairstyles Jewelry Landscapes Military Musical instruments Palaces Portrait photography Qajar dynasty -- Iran -- 1794-1925 Qajar dynasty, -- Iran, -- 1794-1925 Religious buildings Royalty (Nobility) Shrines Street vendors Thrones Women headgear

Cultures:

Qajar dynasty -- Iran -- 1794-1925

Types of Materials:

Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

Names:

Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran) Nāsir al-Dīn Shāh, Shah of Iran, 1831-1896 Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Places:

Asia Bandar Anzalī (Iran) Iran Işfahān (Iran) Qazvīn (Iran) Qum (Iran) Rasht (Iran) Tehran (Iran)

Container Listing

1 Albumen prin	B.01: Photograph of Mountaneous Route, 1880s - 1930 t (b&w 22.3 cm. x 16.5 cm.) ograph of Mountaneous Route [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 B.01
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.
	Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.
	"." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.06a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Landscapes
Place: Genre/Form:	Asia Iran Albumen prints Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.02a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Imarat-i Hawz-Khana (Room of the Fountain), at the Bagh-i Sipahsalar (Sipahsalar Garden and Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880 - 1900 1 Albumen print (b&w; 22.8 cm. x 26.3 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Imarat-i Hawz-Khana (Room of the Fountain), at the Bagh-i Sipahsalar (Sipahsalar Garden and Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.02a Page two of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The palace complex of Baharistan was built in 1879 on the orders of Hussayn Khan Mushir al-Dawla. After the constitutional revolution, the palace was given to the National council (Shawra-i Milli) and was ransacked in the bombardment of Majlis in 1908, during which it sustained extensive damages." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Hall in Palace of Mahmoud Khān."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Early Photography of Iran
Architecture
Palaces
Asia
Iran

Tehran (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.02: Photograph of Kamraniyya Palace Complex, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 22.8 cm. x 17 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Kamraniyya Palace Complex [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.02
	One of 62 albumon prints, up numbered and with

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The photograph depicts the palace complex of Kamraniyya, built around 1880s by Kamran Mirza, Nasir al-Din Shah's third and favorite son. The garden of the complex was known for its exotic and extensive kinds of trees and greenery." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.22a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture
	Palaces
	Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925
	Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.03: Photograph of Si-o-Se Pol or Pol-i Allah Verdi Khan (Allah Verdi Khan Bridge), in Isfahan (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.5 cm. x 16 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Si-o-Se Pol or Pol-i Allah Verdi Khan (Allah Verdi Khan Bridge), in Isfahan (Iran) [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.03

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"Isfahan, Zayanda-rud, Si-o-Se pol (Thirty-Three bridges). Built during the reign of Shah Abbas I and under the supervision of one his most powerful army officer, Allah Verdi Khan, the bridge connects the two sides of Zayanda-Rud river, also continuing the famous Chahar Bagh avenue of Isfahan that was being built simultaneously." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.57a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
ArchitecturePlace:Asia
Iran
Işfahān (Iran)Genre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.04: Photograph of a Chapar-Khana or In-Road Station, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.6 cm. x 15.9 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of a Chapar-Khana or In-Road Station [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.04

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"Chapar-Khana was a station placed on the busiest routes of travel, traditionally to provide fresh horses for the Chapar or the messangers of the empire. Smaller in structure than a Caravanserai, Chapar-Khanas aquired a more diverse status in the later years of 19th century, acting both as post offices and mid-road hostels. Their overal plan however resembles that of the caravanserai with taller round corners. The photo depicts the entrance to a Chapar-Khana, possibly the Hassan Abad Chapar-Khana on route to Qazvin." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.06b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Architecture
LandscapesPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.05: Photograph of a Imarat-I Namakdanak (Building of Namakdanak), Isfahan (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.3 cm. x 16.7 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of a Imarat-I Namakdanak (Building of Namakdanak), Isfahan (Iran) [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.05

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The Safavid structure was built in three storeys and on the same site as the building of Ayina Khana. It was also destroyed in 1889 - along with Ayinakhana - by Zil al-Sultan, Isfahan's governor and the oldest son of Nasir al-Din Shah." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.54b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	lşfahān (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.06: Photograph of Kakh-i Saltanat-abad (Saltanat-Abad Palace), from Inside the Garden, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 22.7 cm. x 16.7 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Kakh-i Saltanat-abad (Saltanat-Abad Palace), from Inside the Garden [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.06

> One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

> Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The construction of the complex of Saltanat-Abad was ordered by Nasir al-Din Shah; it started in 1859 and was finished in 1887. Located in the north eastern part of the present-day Tehran, the palace complex includes different (usually free-standing) buildings such as Hawz-Khana (fountain room), Khab-gah (bedroom), Haram-Khana (harem) and Abdar-Khana (kitchen). Hawz-Khana of the palace complex is famous for its exquisite tile work. One of the main features of the palace building is that Saltana-Abad palace has unobstructed view on all four sides. The interior of Hawz-Khana is the subject of one of Kamal al-Molk's paintings. The image depicts the four storey strucutre of the Burj-i Khabgah (resting tower) from inside the garden." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.21b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Architecture
Palaces
Qajar dynasty,
Royalty (Nobility)Place:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.07: Photograph of the Nakkara Khana, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 16.3 cm. x 20.5 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of the Nakkara Khana [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.07

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"Naqara is a common name of the kettledrum pictured in the centre of the photo. The instrument is commenly accompanied by the wind instruments also depicted in this photo. The combination of instruments and their players were usually hired for various ceremonies." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.36a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Portrait photography
Musical instrumentsPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints
Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.08: Photograph of Persian Turkman Wearing Elaborate Headdress, ca. 1880 1 Albumen print (b&w; 16 cm. x 21.3 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of Persian Turkman Wearing Elaborate Headdress [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.08 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.23a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days. Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign traveloques, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Topic: Early Photography of Iran

Place: Genre/Form:	Portrait photography headgear Asia Iran Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits
1880s - 1930 1 Albumen prin	 B.09: Photograph of a Group of Attendants at a Religious Gathering, t (b&w 21.6 cm. x 16.2 cm.) ograph of a Group of Attendants at a Religious Gathering [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.09 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.48b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Rites and ceremonies Clothing and dress headgear
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.10: Photograph of Government Gendarmerie (Zandarmeri-e Dawlati), 1880s - 1930

•	t (b&w 23.5 cm. x 16.8 cm.) ograph of Government Gendarmerie (Zandarmeri-e Dawlati)
Creator: Language: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.10
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.
	Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.
	- Partial handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.42.15; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs.
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.39a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Military Portrait photography Clothing and dress headgear
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.11: Photograph of Soldiers from Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 24.6 cm. x 17.4 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Soldiers from Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: Notes:	Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.11
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.
	Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.
	"The image depicts a group of soldiers, part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son)." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	 Partial handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.37a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Military Portrait photography Clothing and dress headgear
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.12: Photograph of Military Ceremony, Including Fawj-I Jalali,Isfahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 19301 Albumen print (b&w; 23.1 cm. x 18.2 cm.)Image(s): Photograph of Military Ceremony, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan ArmyBattalion [graphic]Creator:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Language:Undetermined.Notes:FSA A2011.03 B.12

	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. "The image depicts a group of soldiers s part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son)." [Freer Gallery of Art and
	Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.38a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Торіс:	Early Photography of Iran Military Clothing and dress headgear
Place:	Asia
Genre/Form:	Iran Albumen prints
Contert onth.	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.13: Photograph of Soldiers' Drill, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 24.4 cm. x 18.3 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of Soldiers' Drill, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.13 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The image depicts a group of soldiers s part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son). The soldiers are shown during what seems to be military practice." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.44a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
MilitaryPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.14: Photograph of Artillery Batallion, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 23.7 cm. x 18 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of Artillery Batallion [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.14

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.40a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Architecture
MilitaryPlace:Asia
Iran
Tehran (Iran)Genre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.15: Photograph of the Artillery, from Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, at Maydan-I Tupkhana (Tupkhana Square), Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 25 cm. x 17.8 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of the Artillery, from Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, at Maydan-I Tupkhana (Tupkhana Square), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.15

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The image depicts a group of soldiers s part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son)." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.47a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
MilitaryPlace:Asia
Iran
Tehran (Iran)Genre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.16: Photograph of Soldiers' Drill, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 24.5 cm. x 18 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Soldiers' Drill, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion [graphic]

Creator:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Language:Undetermined.Notes:FSA A2011.03 B.16

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The image depicts a group of soldiers s part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son). The soldiers are shown during what seems to be military practice." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.45a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture

and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
MilitaryPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.17: Photograph of Ayina-khana (Hall of Mirrors), Isfahan (Iran), 1880s-1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 22 cm. x 15.8 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Ayina-khana (Hall of Mirrors), Isfahan (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: Undetermined.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.17

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The palace of Ayina-Khana was built by Shah Safi (Safavid) in the 17th century to resemble Chihil Sutun, the other royal palace in Isfahan. It was destroyed in 1891 by orders from the Qajar ruler of the city: Zil al-Sultan. Mas'ud Mirza or Zil al-Sultan was Nasir Al-Din Shah's oldest son and the governor of Isfahan for about thirty years." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.40.06; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs.

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.14a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers

	for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
	Palaces
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	lşfahān (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.18: Photograph of the Imarat-i Badgir (Wind-catcher Building) at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s-1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.8 cm. x 16 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of the Imarat-i Badgir (Wind-catcher Building) at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.18

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The villa was built on the south side the Gulistan Palace complex on the orders of Fath Ali Shah Qajar. Later on and on the orders of Nasir al-Din Shah extensive renovations were carried out on the site and the renovations continued later in the early Pahlavi era as well. The building is currently undergoing fresh rounds of renovations. The photo depicts the structure from the far end of the front pool, carefully framing the structure in the centre of the image. The complete symmetry of the plans allows for such symmetry in the image." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.29.11; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs

Gelatin silver print numbered FSA A.4 2.12.Sm.43; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.13a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Names: Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran) Early Photography of Iran Topic: Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, -- Iran, -- 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility) Place: Asia Iran Tehran (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.19: Photograph of a Room at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s-1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.6 cm. x 15.6 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of a Room at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.19

> One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

> Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

- Partial handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.19b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity

outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

FSA A2011.03 B.20: Photograph of Shams-Al Emarat Palace at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), ca.1880

1 Albumen print (b&w; 15.7 cm. x 20.9 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Shams-Al Emarat Palace at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.20

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

- Faded handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.20a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia Iran Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.21: Photograph of Takkiya Dawlat Interior, Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.3 cm. x 16.3 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Takkiya Dawlat Interior, Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: Undetermined.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.21

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"Takia Dowlat, the Royal Theater in Tehran, was built in the 1870s by Nāşer-al-Din Shah. The building was destroyed in 1930 to make room for the new building of National Bank (Bank-I Milli). The first American envoy to Persia, Samuel Benjamin (1837-1914, stayed in Persia in 1883-85), was invited by the royal court to attend the Moharram celebrations at the Takia Dowlat and recorded his impressions: "On looking over the vast arena a sight met my gaze which was indeed extraordinary. The interior of the building is nearly two hundred feet in diameter and some eighty feet high. A domed frame of timbers, firmly spliced and braced with iron, springs form the walls, giving support to the awning that protects the interior from the sunlight and rain. ... A more oriental form of illuminating the building was seen in the prodigious number of lustres and candlesticks, all of glass and protected from the air by glass shades open on the top and variously colored; they were concentrated against the wall in immense glittering clusters. Estimating from those attached on one box, I judged that there were upwards of five thousand candles in these lustres. ... In the center of the arena was a circular stage of masonry, raised three feet and approached by two stairways. On one side of the building a pulpit of white marble was attached to the wall. The entire arena with the exception of a narrow passage around the stage was absolutely packed with women, thousands on thousands. At a rough estimate it seemed to me that quite four thousand women were seated there cross-legged on the earthen floor, which was made slightly sloping in order to enable those in the rear to see over the heads of those before them." Quoted from Encyclopædia Iranica." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs FSA.A2011.03

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.17a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.22: Photograph of Takkiya Dawlat and Imarat-i Badgir (Windcatcher Building) at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s-1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.6 cm. x 14.8 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Takkiya Dawlat and Imarat-i Badgir (Wind-catcher Building) at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language:	Undetermined.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.22

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The photo depicts the two adjacent structures of the southern side of Gulistan palace: Takia Dawlat and Imarat-i Badgir. Imarat-I Badgir was built on the south side the Gulistan Palace complex on the orders of Fath Ali Shah Qajar. Later on and on the orders of Nasir al-Din Shah extensive renovations were carried out on the site and the renovations continued later in the early Pahlavi era as well. Takia Dowlat, the Royal Theater in Tehran, was built in the 1870s by Nāşeral-Din Shah. The building was destroyed in 1930 to make room for the new building of National Bank (Bank-I Milli). The first American envoy to Persia, Samuel Benjamin (1837-1914, stayed in Persia in 1883-85), was invited by the royal court to attend the Moharram celebrations at the Takia Dowlat and recorded his impressions: "On looking over the vast arena a sight met my gaze which was indeed extraordinary. The interior of the building is nearly two hundred feet in diameter and some eighty feet high. A domed frame of timbers, firmly spliced and braced with iron, springs form the walls, giving support to the awning that protects the interior from the sunlight and rain. ... A more oriental form of illuminating the building was seen in the prodigious number of lustres and candlesticks, all of glass and protected from the air by glass shades open on the top and variously colored; they were concentrated against the wall in immense glittering clusters. Estimating from those attached on one box, I judged that there were upwards of five thousand candles in these lustres. ... In the center of the arena was a circular stage of masonry, raised three feet and approached by two stairways. On one side of the building a pulpit of white marble was attached to the wall. The entire arena with the exception of a narrow passage around the stage was absolutely packed with women, thousands on thousands. At a rough estimate it seemed to me that quite four thousand women were seated there cross-legged on the earthen floor, which was made slightly sloping in order to enable those in the rear to see over the heads of those before them." Quoted from Encyclopædia Iranica." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.22b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran) Topic: Early Photography of Iran Architecture

Place: Genre/Form:	Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility) Asia Iran Tehran (Iran) Albumen prints Photographic prints
Palace Comple 1 Albumen prin Image(s): Photo	 B.23: Photograph of the Dari-Ahmasi at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan x), Tehran (Iran), 1880s-1930 t (b&w 20.1 cm. x 15.1 cm.) bgraph of the Dari-Ahmasi at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace an (Iran) [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.23 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróðun." Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.16b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Торіс:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia Iran

Tehran (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photographic prints

 FSA A2011.03 B.24: Photograph of Iwan inside the courtyard of Masjid-i Shah (al-Nabi Mosque), Qazvin (tran), 1880s-1930 1 Albumen print (b&v 20 cm. x 15.2 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of Iwan inside the courtyard of Masjid-I Shah (al-Nabi Mosque), Qazvin (tran) (graphic) Creato: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.24 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. "The mosque bears the inscription of Fath Ali Shah-I Qajar, but the structure can be dated as far back as mid 18th century." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróóun." Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.40.08; available in Myron Bernent Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs Antoin Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign itravelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the county. Antoin Sevruguin, 1181-11933 Toeis: Early Photography of Iran Gazvin (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photography of Iran G of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun." Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.40.08; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Topic: Early Photography of Iran Architecture Religious buildings Place: Asia Iran Qazvīn (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints 	Nabi Mosque), 1 Albumen prin Image(s): Photo Mosque), Qazv Creator: Language:	Qazvin (Iran), 1880s-1930 t (b&w 20 cm. x 15.2 cm.) ograph of Iwan inside the courtyard of Masjid-i Shah (al-Nabi in (Iran) [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.24 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. "The mosque bears the inscription of Fath Ali Shah-i Qajar, but the
Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.40.08; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Topic: Early Photography of Iran Architecture Religious buildings Place: Asia Iran Qazvīn (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints		of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin
 photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Topic: Early Photography of Iran Architecture Religious buildings Place: Asia Iran Qazvīn (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints 		Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.40.08; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin
Topic:Early Photography of Iran Architecture Religious buildingsPlace:Asia Iran Qazvīn (Iran)Genre/Form:Albumen prints		photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family
Place: Asia Iran Qazvīn (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints		Early Photography of Iran Architecture
		Asia Iran Qazvīn (Iran)
	Genre/Form:	•

FSA A2011.03 B.25: Photograph of Imarat-i Atabak (Atabak's Palace), Tehran (Iran), 1880 - 1890

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.5 cm. x 15.2 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Imarat-i Atabak (Atabak's Palace), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: Notes: Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.25

> One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

> Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The park and palace of Atabak was built between 1886 and 1888 on the orders of Mirza Ali Asghar Khan, The second Amin al-Sultan and the chief minister of Nasir al-Din Shah. After Amin al-Sultan's assassination in 1907, the complex, which was a debt collateral with Russian Bank for discounted loans to Amin al-Sultan, was repossessed by the bank and used as the Russian Embassy. The building was destroyed in fire in 1922. Originally only a one storey building, Imarat-i Atabak was renovated around 1900 (based on the earliest published account) to add a second storey to the building. The photo must have been taken after this addition." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

- Handwritten number (inked) reads, "5431."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.59a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Architecture
PalacesPlace:Asia
Iran

Tehran (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photographic prints

1 Albumen prir	FSA A2011.03 B.26: Photograph of a Caravan of Camels, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 20 cm. x 13.4 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of a Caravan of Camels [graphic]
Creator: Language: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.26
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.
	"The photo depicts a caravan of camels outside city walls and gates. The caravan of six camels is accompanied by an attendant and a rider." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.08a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic: Place:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.27: Photograph of Hanging People Upside Down, 1880s - 19301 Albumen print (b&w; 18.8 cm. x 12.6 cm.)Image(s): Photograph of Hanging People Upside Down [graphic]Creator:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Language:Undetermined.Notes:FSA A2011.03 B.27

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The photo depicts bodies hanging upside down with tied feet. The display of dead bodies for days in public spaces was meant to educate the public." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Criminal procedure
	Executions and executioners
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.28: Photograph of Group of Men Smoking Opium, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 14.3 cm. x 20.5 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Group of Men Smoking Opium [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.28

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The negative of this image is available in the archives of Freer and Sackler, showing that the photographer covered the lids of the men's eyes to show them as more droopy and thus the mood of the group appear drug-induced." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.31a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Domestic scenes
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.29: Photograph of a Dallak (Bathhouse Worker) at Work, ca.1900 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.1 cm. x 20.8 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of a Dallak (Bathhouse Worker) at Work [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.29

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The photo depicts a bathhouse worker (Dallak), engaging the gaze of the camera, and a customer sitting with his profile to the viewer. The setting is posed in the artist's studio." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and

by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Domestic scenes
	Hairstyles
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.30: Photograph of a Man Holding a Book, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.1 cm. x 20.4 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of a Man Holding a Book [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.30

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.52a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Topic: Place: Genre/Form:	Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography Asia Iran Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits
1 Albumen prin	 B.31: Photograph of Three Men Reading, 1880s - 1930 t (b&w 13.7 cm. x 20.4 cm.) ograph of Three Men Reading [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.31 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.30b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.32: Photograph of a Butcher, 1880s - 1930

	1 Albumen print (b&w 12.6 cm. x 20.2 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of a Butcher [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language: Notes:	Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.32
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.
	Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.32b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.33: Photograph of Street Performers, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 15.5 cm. x 20.5 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Street Performers [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.33

> One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.41b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Clothing and dress
headgear
Musical instruments
Portrait photographyPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints
Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.34: Photograph of an Elderly Man, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.7 cm. x 20.3 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of an Elderly Man [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin. Antoin. 1851-1933

0.00.00.	•••••, · •••
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.34

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"In some accounts the seated figure is identified as a learned jew." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.27b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days. Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography

Place: Asia Iran Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits

Topic:

FSA A2011.03 B.35: Photograph of a Dervish, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.1 cm. x 20 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of a Dervish [graphic]

111ago(0). 1 11	rograph of a Dornon [graphio]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.35

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.31b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days. Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic: Place: Genre/Form:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Hairstyles Portrait photography Asia Iran Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits
1 Albumen prin	 B.36: Photograph of a Dervish, 1880s - 1930 t (b&w 13.6 cm. x 20.7 cm.) graph of a Dervish [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.36 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. "The photo depicts a man commonly referred to as a Dervish. The man's appearance fits the stereotype of the Dervish type, which is a common theme of portraiture in Sevruguin's portfoli." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun." Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.49a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
	Clothing and dress Dervishes

Place: Genre/Form:	Hairstyles Portrait photography Asia Iran Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits
1 Albumen prin Image(s): Photo Creator: Language: Notes: Notes:	 B.37: Photograph of a Man Holding a Hookah, 1880s - 1930 t (b&w 12.7 cm. x 20.8 cm.) bgraph of a Man Holding a Hookah [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.37 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. "The man depicted in this image appears in other photographs of Sevruguin - particularly in the one depicting opium smokers - signalling the fact that Sevruguin was using models in various settings and scenarios in his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.51a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin sphotographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Hairstyles Portrait photography
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints

Studio portraits

1 Albumen prir	B.38: Photograph of a Hookah Seller, ca.1900 ht (b&w 13.1 cm. x 20.1 cm.) tograph of a Hookah Seller [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.38
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.
	Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Domestic scenes headgear
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.39: Photograph of a Street Vendor, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.2 cm. x 20.4 cm.)

image(s). Photo	graph of a Street vendor [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.39
	One of 62 albumen prints un-num

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The vendor, with his open tray on his head, is most probably selling fruits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.33b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Street vendors
	headgear
	Portrait photography
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.40: Photograph of Two Street Vendors, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13 cm. x 20.7 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Two Street Vendors [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.40

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The men are commonly identified as food sellers, more particularly Kebab." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.28b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Clothing and dress
Street vendors
headgear
Portrait photographyPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints
Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.41: Photograph of a Dervish, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.2 cm. x 20.3 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of a Dervish [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.41

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The portrait is one of the prime examples of 'Dervish' genre in Sevruguin's oeuvre. The christ like features of this set of portraits is their defining feature." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.25a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Dervishes
	headgear
	Portrait photography
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.42: Photograph of a Dervish Riding a Cow, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.2 cm. x 20.9 cm.)

Image(s): Photo	ograph of a Dervish Riding a Cow [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.42

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.48a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Dervishes
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.43: Photograph of Two Seated Women, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 12.7 cm. x 20.3 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Two Seated Women [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.43

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The models depicted in this portrait show up in other studio photographs of Antoin Sevruguin, signaling the fact that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.60b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Clothing and dress
Hairstyles
Portrait photography
WomenPlace:Asia
Iran

Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.44: Photograph of Two Women in Elaborate Costume, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.2 cm. x 20.9 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Two Women in Elaborate Costume [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language:	Undetermined.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.44

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The studio portraiture depicts two women in front of a rather empty studio background. The reclining woman rests her head on her hand while extending her feet behind the standing figure on the bed. The standing figure leans against the woman reclining on the bed/seat. Both figures directly engage the gaze of the photographer/viewer and both appear in other studio portraits of Sevruguin, signaling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.50b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Clothing and dress
Portrait photography
WomenPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints

Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.45: Photograph of a Young Woman in Coin Necklace, 1880s -
1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 12.9 cm. x 21 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of a Young Woman in Coin Necklace [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.45
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.
	Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.
	"The woman is photographed from waiste up, turning her gaze away from the camera. She is wearing a coin necklace. The same woman appears in other studio portraists of Sevruguin, signaling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.42a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Jewelry Portrait photography Women
Place:	Asia
Genre/Form:	Iran Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits

	B.46: Photograph of a Seated Woman in Elaborate Costume, 1880s
- 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 12.6 cm. x 20.9 cm.)
	ograph of a Seated Woman in Elaborate Costume [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.46
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. "The studio portraiture depicts a seated woman in front of a rather empty studio background. The woman engages the gaze of the photographer/viewer. She appears in other studio portraits of Sevruguin, signaling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and
	Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
Namasi	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Hairstyles Portrait photography Women
Place:	Asia
0 /=	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.47: Photograph of a Reclining Woman, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.2 cm. x 13.1 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of a Reclining Woman [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.47

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.59b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Portrait photography
	Women
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.48: Photograph of a Reclining Woman, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.2 cm. x 20 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of a Reclining Woman [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

eator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-193
nguage.	Undetermined

Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.48

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The woman appears in other studio portraits of Antoin Sevruguin, signalling the fact that he was using models in difference scenarios and settings for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.35a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Portrait photography
	Women
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.49: Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate Costume, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.2 cm. x 20.2 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate Costume [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language:	Undetermined.
Mataa	FOA 40044 00

Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.49

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.35b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture

and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Hairstyles
	Portrait photography
	Women
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.50: Photograph of a Woman in Elaborate Costume, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.1 cm. x 20.2 cm.)

Image(s): Phot	ograph of a Woman in Elaborate Costume [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.50

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The studio portrait depicts a woman reclining on a studio prop covered with carpet and in front of a black background and simple drapery. The woman engages the gaze of the photographer/viewer. She appears in other studio portraits of Sevruguin, signaling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic: Place: Genre/Form:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Portrait photography Women Asia Iran Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits
1930 1 Albumen prin	 B.51: Photograph of Women and Children Having Diner, 1880s - t (b&w 19.5 cm. x 13.2 cm.) bgraph of Women and Children Having Diner [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.51 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. "The family-like group of women and children are photographed while gathered around for a meal. The women are sometimes identified as Armenians." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.41a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family
Names: Topic:	studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Domestic scenes headgear Women

Asia
Iran
Albumen prints
Photographic prints
Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.52: Photograph of a Man and Two Women, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 13.1 cm. x 20.3 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of a Man and Two Women [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.52 One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time. Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist. "The man depicted on the far left side of the image appears in other studio portraits of Sevruguin, signalling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - Handwritten Cyrillic signature (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun." Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.36b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Names: Early Photography of Iran Topic: Clothing and dress Domestic scenes Place: Asia Iran Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 B.53: Photograph of Three Women, 1880s-1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 13.1 cm. x 20.3 cm.) Image(s): Photograph of Three Women [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.53
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.
	Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.
	Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.23.09; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs.
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.27a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Portrait photography Women
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints Studio portraits
FSA A2011.03 B.54: Photograph of Friday (Jum'a) Mosque in Rasht (Iran), 1880s-1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 15.8 cm. x 11.1 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Friday (Jum'a) Mosque in Rasht (Iran) [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Creator:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Language:Undetermined.Notes:FSA A2011.03 B.54

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The structure is dated to the later years of Zand dynasty but a heavy round of renovations on the mosque was carried in 1861. The building's style is quite different from the most conventional forms of mosque, prevalent in urban centres of the time." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.58a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
	Religious buildings
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Rasht (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.55: Photograph of Imamzada Hashim Shrine and Caravanserai, North side of Tehran, on Road to Haraz (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 16.6 cm. x 11.3 cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Imamzada Hashim Shrine and Caravanserai, North side of Tehran, on Road to Haraz (Iran) [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.55

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The caravanserai is ruined now and the shrine is thoroughly renovated. The first round of renovations dates back to the time of Manuchihr Khan Mu'tamid al-Dawla, governor of Gilan." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.07a; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
	Shrines
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.57: Photograph of Qajar Officials and European Travellers on Horse, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; --.- cm. x --.- cm.)

Image(s): Photograph of Qajar Officials and European Travellers on Horse [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.57

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg curatorial research specialist.

"The photo depicts a group of offials of the Qajar court - on horseback - and their attendants. The figure in the centre of the image on horseback, in striped suit, might be Abdul-Hussayn Farmanfarma(b.1858-d. 1939)(minister of war). Abd al-Hussayn Khan was appointed to the ministry of war in 1897 and removed from the position 1898. In 1910, he again became the minister of war and remained in the position for the next 4 years until assuming the position of chief minister in 1915." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Portrait photography
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.01a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Three Men and a Sleeping Lion in Chain, ca. 1880

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.9 cm. x 12.7 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Three Men and a Sleeping Lion in Chain [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.01a

Page one of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"A lion in chain lays in front of the three men, one of whom holds the end of the chain. The group might be part of a street performance, since animal shows were a routine site in Iran of 1880s and 1890s. Such animal group performers were banned from public spaces at the time of the Riza Shah's ascendance to power." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Gelatin silver print numbered FSA A.4 2.12.Up.11; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.03a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Nasir al-Din Shah and Attendants, at Maydan-I Mashq, Tehran (Iran), 1880 - 1900 1 Albumen print (b&w; 19.9 cm. x 13.8 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Nasir al-Din Shah and Attendants, at Maydan-I Mashq, Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.03a

Page three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The maydan (square) was built on the orders of Fath Ali Shah Qajar (b.1772-d.1834) and was expanded during Nasir al-Din Shah's time and in 1862 by Mirza Mohammad Khan Sipahsalar. The square was used primarily for military training, from eight to ten every morning, and military related events and apparently was the largest of its kind in Tehran." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Nasr ed-din Shah and court."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
	Nāsir al-Dīn Shāh, Shah of Iran, 1831-1896
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925
	Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.03b: Arpee Album: Photograph of the City of Isfahan (Iran), ca.1900

1 Albumen print (b&w; 22.4 cm. x 16.5 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of the City of Isfahan (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.03b
	Page three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Teheran."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
Place:	Asia Iran

	lşfahān (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

	A.04a: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Imarat-i Badgir (Wind- g) at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran),
1 Albumen print Image(s): Arpee	t (b&w 19.9 cm. x 13.8 cm.) e Album: Photograph of the Imarat-i Badgir (Wind-catcher Building) ulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.04a
	Page four of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Waiting Pavillion Shah's city palace."
	- Partial handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia Iran Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums

Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.04b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Bandar Anzali (Iran) Shoreside, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 16.8 cm. x 10.6 cm.)
Image(s): Arpe Creator:	ee Album: Photograph of Bandar Anzali (Iran) Shoreside [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language: Notes:	English. FSA A2011.03 A.04b
	Page four of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"As the entrance city of European travellers, Anzali port in the north side of Iran has been a subject of photographs and lithographs from around 1870s." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	 On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Port of Anzelli."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Landscapes
Place:	Asia Iran Bandar Anzalī (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
FSA A2011.03	A.05a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Landscape on Road to Tehran

FSA A2011.03 A.05a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Landscape on Road to Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 22.8 cm. x 17 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Landscape on Road to Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English.

Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.05a
	Page five of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "View on road to Teheran."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran
Place:	Landscapes Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.05b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Manjil Bridge, on Road from Qazvin to Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 19.7 cm. x 12.8 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Manjil Bridge, on Road from Qazvin to Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: English.

Notes:

FSA A2011.03 A.05b

Page five of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The initial bridge was an arched bridge dating back to Safavid times. The bridge was located on the route to Tehran from Qazvin, another route of travel to Europe from the capital. The bridge was renovated during Nasir al-Din Shah's reign. Nasir al-Din Shah has taken another photo of the bridge during one of his European travels. The bridge is partially underwater and partially in ruins now." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Bridge of the Winds."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.06a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Mountaneous Route, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 22.6 cm. x 16.2 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Mountaneous Route [graphic]

Image(s): Arpe	e Album: Photograph of Mountaneous Route [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.06a
	Page six of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Road over the Elburz Mountains."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.01; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Landscapes
	Lanuscapes
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.06b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Chapar-Khana or In-Road Station, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.7 cm. x 15.5 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Chapar-Khana or In-Road Station

[graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.06b

Page six of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"Chapar-Khana was a station placed on the busiest routes of travel, traditionally to provide fresh horses for the Chapar or the messangers of the empire. Smaller in structure than a Caravanserai, Chapar-Khanas aquired a more diverse status in the later years of 19th century, acting both as post offices and mid-road hostels. Their overal plan however resembles that of the caravanserai with taller round corners. The photo depicts the entrance to a Chapar-Khana, possibly the Hassan Abad Chapar-Khana on route to Qazvin." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Chappar Khàne."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.04; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers

	for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture Landscapes
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
Caravanserai, I 1 Albumen prin Image(s): Arpe Caravanserai, I Creator: Language: Notes:	 A.07a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Imamzada Hashim Shrine and North side of Tehran, on Road to Haraz (Iran), 1880s - 1930 tt (b&w 17.4 cm. x 10.9 cm.) e Album: Photograph of Imamzada Hashim Shrine and North side of Tehran, on Road to Haraz (Iran) [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.07a Page seven of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design. Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist. "The caravanserai is ruined now and the shrine is thoroughly renovated. The first round of renovations dates back to the time of Manuchihr Khan Mu'tamid al-Dawla, governor of Gilan." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] -FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." - On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Chappar Khane built by Fatali Shah." Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.55; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some tim
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran

Place: Genre/Form:	Architecture Shrines Asia Iran Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
Caravanserai, 1 Albumen prir Image(s): Arpe Creator: Language: Notes:	 ht (b&w 22.3 cm. x 16.1 cm.) he Album: Photograph of Interior Courtyard of Caravanserai [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.07b Page seven of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design. Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist. "The caravanserai is possibly located on route to Shiraz from Tehran." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] -FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Interior of caravansary on road to Teheran." Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.08a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Caravan of Camels, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w 20.6 cm. x 13 cm.)
Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Caravan of Camels [graphic]
Creator: Language:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.08a
	Page eight of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The photo depicts a caravan of camels outside city walls and gates. The caravan of six camels is accompanied by an attendant and a rider." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.26; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic: Place:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
	A 00h, America Album, Dheterments of Old Dervere Devilet (Devilet

FSA A2011.03 A.08b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Old Darvaza Dawlat (DawlatCity Gate), Tehran (Iran), ca.18801 Albumen print (b&w; 15.8 cm. x 11 cm.)Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Old Darvaza Dawlat (Dawlat City Gate),Tehran (Iran) [graphic]Creator:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Language:English.Notes:FSA A2011.03 A.08b

Page eight of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The structure dates to Nasir Al-Din Shah's time. After the expansion of Tehran, which started in 1867, six gates were added to the city walls of Tehran, one of the most elaborately designed one of which was Darvaza Dawlat. The gate was built in 1871 by Mohammad Rahim Khan 'Ala al-Dawla (Amir Nizam). and at least until the end of 1870s, it had the central archway facing the city and the goat heads of the central top piece on its other side, facing outside the city. During a reconstruction in 1880s the archway of the internal side, along with the goat-heads of the external side were removed. The photo however depicts the gate - from inside the city walls with the goatheads of the entrance faintly visible in the back of the central archway and still intact. Located on the north side of the wall, Darvaza Dawlat, along with Shimiran and Yusif Abad Gates, marked the northern boundaries of the city. The view of the gates usually differed from the side facing the city to the side facing the outside. Almost all of the twelve gates of the city were torn down during the later expansion of Tehran in 1930s." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Shimrân Gate Teheran."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sven Hedin, Konug Oscars Beskickning till Schahen Af Persien, Stockholm: Samson & Wallin, 1891, p:128

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
ArchitecturePlace:Asia
Iran
Tehran (Iran)Genre/Form:Albumen prints
Photograph albums
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.09a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Men Weighing Travel Parcels in a Caravanserai, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.4 cm. x 19.8 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Men Weighing Travel Parcels in a Caravanserai [graphic]

Creator: Language: Notes: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.09a Page nine of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design. Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist. "In one album of the period, the caravanserai in the image is identified as the Mukhlis caravanserai in Isfahan. Mukhlis caravanserai is a Safavid structure and is located in the grand bazar of Isfahan." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." - On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Interior of Bazaar Teheran." Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture Asia Iran Işfahān (Iran)
Genre/Form:
	A.09b: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Entrance to Maydan-I Almasiyya Avenue, in Tebran (Iran), 1880s - 1930

Tupkhana from Almasiyya Avenue, in Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 17.4 cm. x 11.4 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of the Entrance to Maydan-I Tupkhana from Almasiyya Avenue, in Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.09b

Page nine of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

	"The new Canons' square and the two storey buildings surrounding it were built between 1867 and 1877 on the north side of the old Canons' square or Maydan-i Arg. The two-storey building in the background of the image surrounding the square was initially planned as a reservoir of military equipment and a meeting and living place of military officials. A large and shallow pool, surrounded by trees and greenery and a railing around the whole area was constructed in the middle of the square. Adjacent to the railing, the canons of the military surrounded the central pool. The main gate to the square is visible in the image." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "'The Ark' Public Square Teheran."
	Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.03.05; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Tehran (Iran) Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.10a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Sardar-I Almasiyya (Gate to Almasiyya Street), Tehran (Iran), ca.1880 1 Albumen print (b&w; 16.8 cm. x 10.9 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Sardar-I Almasiyya (Gate to Almasiyya Street), Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English. Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.10a Page ten of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"This entrance to the Gulistan palace complex constituted one end of one of the earliest stone-covered streets of Tehran, refered to as Khiyaban-I Almasiyya. The street was also known as Bab-I Humayun. During Riza Shah's time the gate visible in the image was replaced by a brick one, later to be removed altogether." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Ambassador Street Teheran."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Henry Binder, Au Kurdistan En Mesopotamie et en Perse, Paris: Maison Quantin, 1887, p:392

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Early Photography of Iran
Architecture
Landscapes
Asia
Iran
Tehran (Iran)
Albumen prints
Photograph albums
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.10b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Imamzada Hashim Shrine, Shimiran (Iran), 1880s - 1930
1 Albumen print (b&w; 22.7 cm. x 16 cm.)
Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Imamzada Hashim Shrine, Shimiran (Iran)
[graphic]
Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language: English.
Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.10b
Page ten of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
Title, and Summary notes are provided by Shahnam Pahimi

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

	"The building photographed is often identified as Imamzada Hashim in Shimiran, north of Tehran. The structure has gone through multiple rounds of renovations through the years but the it is generally dated to the later years of Safavid dynasty." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." - On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Shrine of Shah Abdul Azim."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
Place:	Shrines Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
FSA A2011.03 A.11a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 23.7 cm. x 16 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.11a
	Page ten of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The image depicts a group of soldiers, part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son)." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Persian Artillery."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Military
	Architecture
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.12a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Hazrat-i Ma'suma Shrine Complex (Shrine of Fatima al-Ma'suma), in Qum (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.3 cm. x 14.9 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Hazrat-i Ma'suma Shrine Complex (Shrine of Fatima al-Ma'suma), in Qum (Iran) [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.12a

Page twelve of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The initial construction on the site of the holy shrine - with an octagonal plan - in Qum dates back to 13th century. In addition to northward expansion of the whole complex, the original octagonal dome was also modified into a round structure in the earlier years of Safavid dynasty. The southwest corner of the structure houses the tombs of more than a few of Safavid kings, including Shah Sultan Hussayn and Shah Safi. In the 1880s, the new courtyard to the shrine was ordered by Amin al-Sultan, during which the two grand minarets of the western iwan and the two smaller minarets of the entrance were also added to the complex. The golden dome is dated back to Fath Ali Shah-I Qajar, which is consistent with the other restorations to religious buildings of the time. The photograph shows the complex of the shrine from afar and behind so that that entrance arch is not visible. The view however shows a bit of the architectural landscape of the city around the shrine with domed rooftops. Fath Ali Shah Qajar and Muhammad Shah Qajar, as well as Mahd-i Awliya, Nasir al-Din Shah's mother, are buried in the northern courtyard of this shrine." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Isfahan."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
	Religious buildings
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Qum (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.12b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Maydan-i Naqsh-i Jahan (Naqsh-i Jahan Square) or Chahar Bagh Avenue, Isfahan (Iran), 1880 - 1890 1 Albumen print (b&w; 21 cm. x 16 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Maydan-i Naqsh-i Jahan (Naqsh-i Jahan Square) or Chahar Baqh Avenue, Isfahan (Iran) [graphic]

	enanai Bagir / Wondo, Iolanan (nan) [gre
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.12b

Page twelve of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photograph seems to be of the shops in Maydan-I Naqsh-I Jahan, however, a very similar lithograph in Weeks' book, in which the scene is identified as Chahar Bagh Avenue, the avenue behind the square. The Maydan (square), totaling about eight acres, is built in the time of Shah Abbas I, between 1590 and 1595. The square brings together four of the main political structures of the city of Isfahan and the Safavid Empire: the palace, the main friday mosque, the royal mosque and the bazaar. each of the entrances to the four structures are placed on one side of the square space, with the palace and the royal mosque facing each other on the longest sides of the maydan. The square was mainly used for royal, official and military ceremonies during and after Safavid times. The arcade around the square was built a few years after the main construction concluded, housing various cafes and shops from the day of its construction." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." - On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Tea House, Teheran." Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

	New York: Harper & Brothers Publishers, 1896, p:94
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
Place:	Asia Iran Işfahān (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.13a: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Imarat-i Badgir (Windcatcher Building) at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.9 cm. x 15.9 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of the Imarat-i Badgir (Wind-catcher Building) at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.13a

Page thirteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The villa was built on the south side the Gulistan Palace complex on the orders of Fath Ali Shah Qajar. Later on and on the orders of Nasir al-Din Shah extensive renovations were carried out on the site and the renovations continued later in the early Pahlavi era as well. The building is currently undergoing fresh rounds of renovations. The photo depicts the structure from the far end of the front pool, carefully framing the structure in the centre of the image. The complete symmetry of the plans allows for such symmetry in the image." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "'Court yard in Shah's city palace."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.29.11; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs

Gelatin silver print numbered FSA A.4 2.12.Sm.43; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.18; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
	Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
	Palaces
	Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925
	Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums

FSA A2011.03 A.14a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Ayina-khana (Hall of Mirr Isfahan (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 22.4 cm. x 15.6 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Ayina-khana (Hall of Mirrors), Isfahar		1880s - 1930 t (b&w 22.4 cm. x 15.6 cm.)
	[graphic] Creator: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.14a
	Notes.	Page fourteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
		Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
		"The palace of Ayina-Khana was built by Shah Safi (Safavid) in the 17th century to resemble Chihil Sutun, the other royal palace in Isfahan. It was destroyed in 1891 by orders from the Qajar ruler of the city: Zil al-Sultan. Mas'ud Mirza or Zil al-Sultan was Nasir Al- Din Shah's oldest son and the governor of Isfahan for about thirty years" [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
		- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
		Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.40.06; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs.
		Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.17; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
		Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
	Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces
	Place:	Asia Iran
	Genre/Form:	Işfahān (Iran) Albumen prints Photograph albums

	FSA A2011.03 A.15a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Entrance Iwan to the Madrasa-i Madar-i Shah in Isfahan (Iran), 1880s - 1930
	nt (b&w 22.8 cm. x 17.8 cm.)
	ee Album: Photograph of Entrance Iwan to the Madrasa-i Madar-i an (Iran) [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.15a
	Page fifteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"As an integral part of the complex of Chahar Bagh, the Madar-I Shah Mosque was built in the early days of 18th century and under Shah Hussayn I. The mosque is also one of the prime examples of Safavid style of tile decoration and brickwork." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	 FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	 On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Gateway to Well Teheran."
	Gelatin silver print numbered FSA A.4 2.12.Sm.85; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture Religious buildings
Place:	Asia Iran Işfahān (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.16a: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Front Courtyard at the Kakhi Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), ca. 1880

1 Albumen print (b&w 20 cm. x 15.5 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of the Front Courtyard at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language: Notes:	English. FSA A2011.03 A.16a
	Page sixteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The photograph depicts the front courtyard of the palace, commonly used for Salam ceremonies which during the reigns of the first four kings of Qajar dynasty had gradually gained a special ceremonial function and was conducted with considerable care and through strict observance of specific rituals. The photograph depicts the space empty of people, however, instead showing the overall layout of the garden in relation to the balcony which housed the throne as the seating place of the king during official ceremonies." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Reception Room of Palace."
	- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
	Henry Binder, Au Kurdistan En Mesopotamie et en Perse, Paris: Maison Quantin, 1887, p:406
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925
Place:	Royalty (Nobility) Asia
	Iran

Genre/Form:	Tehran (Iran) Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
Gulistan (Gulist 1 Albumen prin Image(s): Arpe	A.16b: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Dari-Ahmasi at the Kakh-i tan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930 t (b&w 21.2 cm. x 15 cm.) e Album: Photograph of the Dari-Ahmasi at the Kakh-i Gulistan ce Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.16b
	Page sixteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Gateway to Palace."
	 Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.23; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia Iran Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums

(Iran), 1880s 1 Albumen pr	3 A.17a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Takkiya Dawlat Interior, Tehran - 1930 int (b&w 20.7 cm. x 15.9 cm.) bee Album: Photograph of Takkiya Dawlat Interior, Tehran (Iran)
Creator: Language: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.17a
	Page seventeen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"Takia Dowlat, the Royal Theater in Tehran, was built in the 1870s by Nāşer-al-Din Shah. The building was destroyed in 1930 to make room for the new building of National Bank (Bank-I Milli). The first American envoy to Persia, Samuel Benjamin (1837-1914, stayed in Persia in 1883-85), was invited by the royal court to attend the Moharram celebrations at the Takia Dowlat and recorded his impressions: "On looking over the vast arena a sight met my gaze which was indeed extraordinary. The interior of the building is nearly two hundred feet in diameter and some eighty feet high. A domed frame of timbers, firmly spliced and braced with iron, springs form the walls, giving support to the awning that protects the interior from the sunlight and rain A more oriental form of illuminating the building was seen in the prodigious number of lustres and candlesticks, all of glass and protected from the air by glass shades open on the top and variously colored; they were concentrated against the wall in immense glittering clusters. Estimating from those attached on one box, I judged that there were upwards of five thousand candles in these lustres In the center of the arena was a circular stage of masonry, raised three feet and approached by two stairways. On one side of the building a pulpit of white marble was attached to the wall. The entire arena with the exception of a narrow passage around the stage was absolutely packed with women, thousands on thousands. At a rough estimate it seemed to me that quite four thousand women were seated there cross-legged on the earthen floor, which was made slightly sloping in order to enable those in the rear to see over the heads of those before them." Quoted from Encyclopædia Iranica." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Interior of Theatre."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.21; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran

Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

Names:

FSA A2011.03 A.17b: Arpee Album: Photograph from the Garden at Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), ca.1885

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.2 cm. x 13.4 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph from the Garden at Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English. Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.17b

FSA A2011.03 A.17b

Page seventeen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The structure seen in the image was an addition to the already existing Bagh-I Gulistan (Gulistan garden) the construction of which concluded in 1876. Since then the building was used both as the official reception room of the palace and as a museum of local and international artworks. Takht-i Tavoos was also located inside the main hallway of this building. The building, located on the northwest side of the garden, is currently a museum. The photograph depicts the front shallow pool and the entrance of the structure. The windows are shown covered with painted fabrics on both top and lower floors of the building. In order to achieve the specific framing of both the pool and the entrance gate, the photographer's tripod would have been located on a narrow bridge over the waterway in front of the gate, immediately beyond the lower edge of the image. Photos and paintings of the structure were frequently published in journals and books from 1885 onwards. a close comparison of the images from 1885 to 1890s with the ones published after 1904 shows the addition of the lamp-posts in the shape of standing human figures, not visible in this image." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Shah's Garden in City Palace."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
	Palaces
	Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925
	Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.18a: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Talar-i Salam or Talar-i Takht (Throne Room) Including Takht-I Tavoos or the Peacock Throne, at Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.2 cm. x 15.1 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of the Talar-i Salam or Talar-i Takht (Throne Room) Including Takht-I Tavoos or the Peacock Throne, at Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.18a

Page eighteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photograph depicts the famous Peacock throne of Gulistan palace in the throne room. Peacock throne is a later name of Takht-i Khurshid or the Sun Throne. Erroneously the name of the Throne as the peacock throne equated it with the famous Indian throne of Shah Jahan and Nadir's war booty from India, whereas Takht-i Khurshid - visible in this image - was ordered by Fath Ali Shah Qajar around 1800s and built by an Isfahani artist known as Haji Muhammad Hussayn Khan Sadr. The name of the throne changed to the Peacock Throne after Fath Ali Shah's marriage to Tavoos Khanum, his favorite wife. The marriage was celebrated on this particular throne. In the occasion of various royal celebration - such as Salam-i Nawruzi - the throne would be moved out of the palace and into the Iwan-i Dar al-Imara (later known as the hall of Takht-i Marmar or the marble throne) and would be the seating place of the Qajar kings of the time.Talar-I Takht or Throne room of Gulistan palace housed the famous Peacock throne and was the offical reception room of the palace." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Throne Room and Peacock Throne."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Names: Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran) Early Photography of Iran Topic: Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, -- Iran, -- 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility) Thrones Asia Place: Iran Tehran (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.18b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Room at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930

Image(s): Arpe	at (b&w 21.4 cm. x 15 cm.) e Album: Photograph of a Room at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan ex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.18b
	Page eighteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Ante Room of Palace."
	 Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Торіс:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925
Place:	Royalty (Nobility) Asia Iran Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.19a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Room at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.9 cm. x 15.1 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Room at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English.

Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.19a Page nineteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design. Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-
	Golkhandan, FSg research specialist. - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Shah's Study."
	 Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia Iran Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
(Gulistan Pala	A.19b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Room at the Kakh-i Gulistan ce Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.5 cm. x 15.9 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Room at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.19b

Page nineteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Ante Room of Palace."

- Faded handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.19; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Names: Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran) Topic: Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, -- Iran, -- 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility) Place: Asia Iran Tehran (Iran) Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.20a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Shams-Al Emarat Palace at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), ca. 1880 1 Albumen print (b&w; 15.5 cm. x 21.3 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Shams-Al Emarat Palace at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. Language: Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.20a Page twenty of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design. Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist. - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "An---oom of City Palace."

- Faded handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.20; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
	Palaces
	Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925
	Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·

FSA A2011.03 A.21a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Imarat-i Shahristanak, Nasir Al-Din Shah's Royal Summer Villa, North of Tehran (Iran), ca. 1880 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.8 cm. x 14.4 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Imarat-i Shahristanak, Nasir Al-Din Shah's Royal Summer Villa, North of Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

r to yar o'arminor	vina, noral of formall (nam) [grap
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.21a

Page twenty-one of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The building was built in 1877-1878 on the orders of Nasir al-Din Shah Qajar as a summer palace for the court. The architect of the complex was Haji Abulhassan Mi'mar Bashi. The palace was built on route from Tehran to Caspian Sea and the city of Chalus. It was primarily used as a getaway from the capital by the royal court. The exterior and the plan resemble those of Sahibqaraniyya Palace in northern Tehran. The image shows the structure admist one of the royal camping trips' entourage. The white tents in front of the palace are the residences of the royal enourage." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." - On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Doshántepê. Country Palace of Shah." Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.21; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
FSA A2011.03 A.21b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Kakh-i Saltanat-abad (Saltanat-

FSA A2011.03 A.21b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Kakh-i Saltanat-abad (Saltanat- Abad Palace), from Inside the Garden, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 23.2 cm. x 16.8 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Kakh-i Saltanat-abad (Saltanat-Abad Palace), from Inside the Garden [graphic]
Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
English. FSA A2011.03 A.21b
Page twenty-one of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

	"The construction of the complex of Saltanat-Abad was ordered by Nasir al-Din Shah; it started in 1859 and was finished in 1887. Located in the north eastern part of the present-day Tehran, the palace complex includes different (usually free-standing) buildings such as Hawz-Khana (fountain room), Khab-gah (bedroom), Haram-Khana (harem) and Abdar-Khana (kitchen). Hawz-Khana of the palace complex is famous for its exquisite tile work. One of the main features of the palace building is that Saltana-Abad palace has unobstructed view on all four sides. The interior of Hawz-Khana is the subject of one of Kamal al-Molk's paintings. The image depicts the four storey strucutre of the Burj-i Khabgah (resting tower) from inside the garden." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Palace at Arajêb."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.06; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.22a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Kamraniyya Palace Complex, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 22.9 cm. x 16.2 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Kamraniyya Palace Complex [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Creator: English. Language: Digital Content Digital Content

Digital Content Digital Content

	Digital Content
	Digital Content
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
	Palaces
	Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925
	Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.22b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Takkiya Dawlat and Imarat-i Badgir (Wind-catcher Building) at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1900

1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.7 cm. x 15 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Takkiya Dawlat and Imarat-i Badgir (Windcatcher Building) at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English. Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.22b

Page twenty-two of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photo depicts the two adjacent structures of the southern side of Gulistan palace: Takia Dawlat and Imarat-i Badgir. Imarat-I Badgir was built on the south side the Gulistan Palace complex on the orders of Fath Ali Shah Qajar. Later on and on the orders of Nasir al-Din Shah extensive renovations were carried out on the site and the renovations continued later in the early Pahlavi era as well. Takia Dowlat, the Royal Theater in Tehran, was built in the 1870s by Nāṣeral-Din Shah. The building was destroyed in 1930 to make room for the new building of National Bank (Bank-I Milli). The first American envoy to Persia, Samuel Benjamin (1837-1914, stayed in Persia in 1883-85), was invited by the royal court to attend the Moḥarram celebrations at the Takia Dowlat and recorded his impressions: "On looking over the vast arena a sight met my gaze which was indeed extraordinary. The interior of the building is nearly two hundred feet in diameter and some eighty feet high. A domed frame of timbers, firmly spliced and braced with iron, springs form the walls, giving support to the awning that protects the interior from the sunlight and rain. ... A more oriental form of illuminating the building was seen in the prodigious number of lustres and candlesticks, all of glass and protected from the air by glass shades open on the top and variously colored; they were concentrated against the wall in immense glittering clusters. Estimating from those attached on one box, I judged that there were upwards of five thousand candles in these lustres. ... In the center of the arena was a circular stage of masonry, raised three feet and approached by two stairways. On one side of the building a pulpit of white marble was attached to the wall. The entire arena with the exception of a narrow passage around the stage was absolutely packed with women, thousands on thousands. At a rough estimate it seemed to me that guite four thousand women were seated there cross-legged on the earthen floor, which was made slightly sloping in order to enable those in the rear to see over the heads of those before them." Quoted from Encyclopædia Iranica." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Exterior of Rond Theater."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.22; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
	Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
	Palaces
	Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925
	Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums

Elaborate Hea 1 Albumen prir	A.23a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Persian Turkman Wearing ddress, ca.1880 ht (b&w 15.9 cm. x 11.9 cm.) ee Album: Photograph of a Persian Turkman Wearing Elaborate aphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.23a
	Page twenty-three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Turkoman."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.08; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Henry Binder, Au Kurdistan En Mesopotamie et en Perse, Paris: Maison Quantin, 1887, p:19
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Portrait photography headgear
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
1 Albumen prir	A.24a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Woman, 1880s - 1930 ht (b&w 19.6 cm. x 13 cm.) ee Album: Photograph of a Woman [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

English.

Language:

Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.24a
	Page twenty-four of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The photograph depicts the woman in full cover except for the face that is partially visible. It is one of the examples of the earlier days of Sevruguin Studio's commercial life. The image is the only one repeated in the album (page 58)." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Persian Type."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 A.58b; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Portrait photography Clothing and dress headgear Women
Place:	Asia
Genre/Form:	Iran Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits
FSA A2011.03	A.24b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Seated Women, 1880s -

FSA A2011.03 A.24b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Seated Women, 1880s -19301 Albumen print (b&w; 20.5 cm. x 12.7 cm.)Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Seated Women [graphic]Creator:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Language:English.Notes:FSA A2011.03 A.24b

Page twenty-four of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The women are depicted in an interior structure, sitting on the oppisite sides of a Kursi." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Armenians."

Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.13.08; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
WomenPlace:Asia

Iran

Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.25a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Dervish, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20 cm. x 12.4 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Dervish [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoir	n, 1851-1933
----------	-------------------	--------------

Language: English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.25a

Page twenty-five of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The portrait is one of the prime examples of 'Dervish' genre in Sevruguin's ouevre. The christ like features of this set of portraits is their defining feature." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Nomad."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.41; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Names: Topic: Early Photography of Iran Portrait photography Clothing and dress Dervishes headqear Place: Asia Iran Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.26a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Ayina-khana (Hall of Mirrors), Isfahan (Iran), 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 23.6 cm. x 17.1 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Ayina-khana (Hall of Mirrors), Isfahan (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.26a

Page twenty-six of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The palace of Ayina-Khana was built by Shah Safi (Safavid) in the 17th century to resemble Chihil Sutun, the other royal palace in Isfahan. It was destroyed in 1891 by orders from the Qajar ruler of the city: Zil al-Sultan. Mas'ud Mirza or Zil al-Sultan was Nasir Al-Din Shah's oldest son and the governor of Isfahan for about thirty years." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Caravansary on Euphrates."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
	Palaces
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	lşfahān (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.27a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Three Women, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.8 cm. x 13.1 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Three Women [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English.

Language: English. Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.27a

Page twenty-seven of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Nomad Women."

Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.23.09; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs.

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.53; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Names: Topic: Early Photography of Iran Portrait photography Clothing and dress headqear Women Place: Asia Iran Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.27b: Arpee Album: Photograph of an Elderly Man, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20 cm. x 12.2 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of an Elderly Man [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.27b

Page twenty-seven of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"In some accounts the seated figure is identified as a learned jew." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Chief Priest of the Fire Worshipper."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.34; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days. Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Topic: Portrait photography Clothing and dress headgear Place: Asia Iran Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.28a: Arpee Album: Photograph of City Dwellers with Lantern, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 19.5 cm. x 13 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of City Dwellers with Lantern [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English. Notes:

FSA A2011.03 A.28a

Page twenty-eight of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSq research specialist.

"The photo is supposedly taken after dust. The man depicted in the photo is guiding the way with a portable light, accompanying the women in their urban travel after dark." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Family with Lantern."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days. Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	headgear
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.28b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Street Vendors, 1880s -1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 19.2 cm. x 12.1 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Street Vendors [graphic]

Creator: Language: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.28b
	Page twenty-eight of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The men are commonly identified as food sellers, more particularly Kebab." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	 FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	 On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Sweet-meat Vendor."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.40; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Page 99 of 152

Торіс:	Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Street vendors headgear Portrait photography
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits
1 Albumen prin Image(s): Arpe Creator: Language:	A.29a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Group of Men, 1880s - 1930 tt (b&w 20.6 cm. x 12.7 cm.) e Album: Photograph of Group of Men [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.29a Page twenty-nine of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The standing figure appears in other studio portraits of Sevruguin, signalling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography
Place:	Asia Iran

Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits
Asia Dasti, 188 1 Albumen prin	 A.29b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Young Women and a Small 0s - 1930 t (b&w 20.5 cm. x 12.7 cm.) e Album: Photograph of Two Young Women and a Small Asia Dasti Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.29b Page twenty-nine of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design. Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist. "The two women are depicted around a hand mill with what appears to be wheat dust around the mill." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." - On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Grinding Corn." Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Henry Binder, Au Kurdistan En Mesopotamie et en Perse, Paris: Maison Quantin, 1887, p:99
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Domestic scenes Portrait photography Women
Place:	Asia
Genre/Form:	Iran Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

Studio portraits

Costume, 1880	A.30a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate ls - 1930 It (b&w 20.3 cm. x 12.7 cm.)
	e Album: Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate Costume
Creator: Language: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.30a
	Page thirty of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The woman is depicted uncovered, lounging on a carpet covered seat. This woman appears in other photographs of Sevruguin signalling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Armenian."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography Women
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.30b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Three Men Reading, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w 20.6 cm. x 12.8 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Three Men Reading [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.30b
	Page thirty of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Scholars."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.31; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits
	A 21a: Arnos Album: Diotograph of Croup of Man Smaking Onium

FSA A2011.03 A.31a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Group of Men Smoking Opium,1880s - 19301 Albumen print (b&w; 20.4 cm. x 13.8 cm.)Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Group of Men Smoking Opium [graphic]Creator:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Language:English.Notes:FSA A2011.03 A.31a

Page thirty-one of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The negative of this image is available in the archives of Freer and Sackler, showing that the photographer covered the lids of the men's eyes to show them as more droopy and thus the mood of the group appear drug-induced." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Group in Tea House."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.28; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress
	Domestic scenes
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.31b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Dervish, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.5 cm. x 13 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Dervish [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.31b

Page thirty-one of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Dervish."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.35; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress
	Hairstyles
	Portrait photography
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.32a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate Costume, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 12.6 cm. x 20.7 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate Costume [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.32a

Page thirty-two of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The woman appears in other studio portraits of Antoin Sevruguin, signalling the fact that he was using models in difference scenarios and settings for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

	 FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Armenian."
	Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.46.15; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs
	Gelatin silver print numbered FSA A.4 2.12.Up.33; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography Women
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.32b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Butcher, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 12.4 cm. x 20.7 cm.)

Image(s): Arp	ee Album: Photograph of a Butcher [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.32b
	Page thirty-two of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints w with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Persian Butcher."

Studio portraits

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.32; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Clothing and dress
headgear
Portrait photographyPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photograph albums
Photographic prints
Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.33a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Musicians and Dancer, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 19.4 cm. x 12.3 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Musicians and Dancer [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.33a

Page thirty-three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The man seated on the far right side of the frame shows in other portraits of Sevruguin and he is sometimes identified as Davoud (David) the Jew and his group of entertainers." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Musicians and dancer."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days. Sourceuin's studie was trusted both by the Opier court and early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Musical instruments
	Portrait photography
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.33b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Street Vendor, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 12.5 cm. x 20 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Street Vendor [graphic]Creator:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Language:English.Notes:FSA A2011.03 A.33b

Page thirty-three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The vendor, with his open tray on his head, is most probably selling fruits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Sweet meat Vendor."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.39; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Street vendors
	headgear
	Portrait photography
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.34a: Arpee Album: Barberry-juice seller, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20 cm. x 12.5 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Barberry-juice seller [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language:	English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.34a

Page thirty-three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Water Vendor."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

آبزرشك فروش است

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Street vendors
	headgear
	Portrait photography
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.35a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Reclining Woman, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 12.7 cm. x 21 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Reclining Woman [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: English.

Notes:

FSA A2011.03 A.35a

Page thirty-five of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The woman appears in other studio portraits of Antoin Sevruguin, signalling the fact that he was using models in difference scenarios and settings for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.48; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Clothing and dress
Portrait photography
Women

Place: Genre/Form:	Asia Iran Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits
Costume, 1880 1 Albumen prin	 A.35b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate bs - 1930 tt (b&w 20 cm. x 12.1 cm.) e Album: Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate Costume Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English. FSA A2011.03 A.35b Page thirty-five of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design. Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Armenian." Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.49; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family
Names	studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Hairstyles Portrait photography Women
Place:	Asia
Genre/Form:	Iran Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.36a: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Nakkara Khana, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.6 cm. x 16.6 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of the Nakkara Khana [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English.

Notes:

FSA A2011.03 A.36a

Page thirty-six of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"Naqara is a common name of the kettledrum pictured in the centre of the photo. The instrument is commenly accompanied by the wind instruments also depicted in this photo. The combination of instruments and their players were usually hired for various ceremonies." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Musicians."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.49; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Portrait photography
Musical instrumentsPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photograph albums
Photographic prints
Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.36b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Man and Two Women, 1880s - 1930

•	nt (b&w 20.3 cm. x 12.6 cm.)
Image(s): Arpe Creator: Language:	ee Album: Photograph of a Man and Two Women [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 English.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.36b
	Page thirty-six of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The man depicted on the far left side of the image appears in other studio portraits of Sevruguin, signalling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Persian mode of keeping warm."
	 Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.52; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Domestic scenes
Place:	Asia
Genre/Form:	Iran Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.37a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Soldiers from Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 1930

1	Albumen	print ((b&w	24.3	cm.	x 17	7.8 cm	1.)
---	---------	---------	------	------	-----	------	--------	-----

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Soldiers from Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.37a

Page thirty-seven of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The image depicts a group of soldiers, part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son)." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Cavalry Officers."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.11; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Topic: Early Photography of Iran Military Portrait photography Clothing and dress headgear Place: Asia Iran Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

	A.38a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Military Ceremony, Including fahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 1930
	t (b&w 23.7 cm. x 17.4 cm.)
	e Album: Photograph of Military Ceremony, Including Fawj-I Jalali, attalion [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Creator:	English.
Language: Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.38a
Notes.	Page thirty-eight of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The image depicts a group of soldiers s part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son)." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Infantry."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.12; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Military Clothing and dress headgear
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.39a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Government Gendarmerie (Zandarmeri-e dawlati), 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 23.8 cm. x 16.8 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Government Gendarmerie (Zandarmeri-e dawlati) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: English. Notes: FSA A20

FSA A2011.03 A.39a

Page thirty-nine of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Shah's Guard."

- Partial handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Glass negative numbered FSA A.4 2.12.GN.42.15; available in Myron Bement Smith Collection, Subseries 2.12: Antoin Sevruguin Photographs.

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.10; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Military
Portrait photography
Clothing and dress
headgearPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photograph albums
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.40a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Artillery Batallion, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 24 cm. x 18 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Artillery Batallion [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: Notes:	English. FSA A2011.03 A.40a
	Page fourty of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Artillery."
	- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.14; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Military Architecture
Place:	Asia Iran Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.41a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Women and Children Having Diner, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.3 cm. x 12.4 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Women and Children Having Diner [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.41a

Page fourty-one of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The family-like group of women and children are photographed while gathered around for a meal. The women are sometimes identified as Armenians." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.51; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Domestic scenes headgear
	Women
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.41b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Street Performers, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 19.9 cm. x 15.1 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Street Performers [graphic]

Language: English.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.41b

Page fourty-one of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.33; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Names: Topic: Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headqear Musical instruments Portrait photography Place: Asia Iran Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.42a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Young Woman in Coin Necklace, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 19.9 cm. x 13.1 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Young Woman in Coin Necklace [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.42a

Page fourty-two of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The woman is photographed from waiste up, turning her gaze away from the camera. She is wearing a coin necklace. The same woman appears in other studio portraists of Sevruguin, signaling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.45; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Jewelry
	Portrait photography
	Women
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.43a: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Talar-i Salam or Talar-i Takht (Throne Room) Including Takht-I Tavoos or the Peacock Throne, at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880 - 1890 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.7 cm. x 14.4 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of the Talar-i Salam or Talar-i Takht (Throne Room) Including Takht-I Tavoos or the Peacock Throne, at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Notes:

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.43a

Page fourty-three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photograph depicts the famous Peacock throne of Gulistan palace in the throne room or Talar-i Salam. Takht-i Tavoos (Peacock Throne) is a later name of Takht-i Khurshid or the Sun Throne. Erroneously the name of the Throne as the peacock throne equated it with the famous Indian throne of Shah Jahan and Nadir's war booty from India, whereas Takht-i Khurshid - visible in this image - was ordered by Fath Ali Shah Qajar around 1800s and built by an Isfahani artist known as Haji Muhammad Hussayn Khan Sadr. The name of the throne changed to the Peacock Throne after Fath Ali Shah's marriage to Tavoos Khanum, his favorite wife. The marriage was celebrated on this particular throne. In the occasion of various royal celebration - such as Salam-i Nawruzi - the throne would be moved out of the palace and into the Iwan-i Dar al-Imara (later known as the hall of Takht-i Marmar or the marble throne) and would be the seating place of the Qajar kings of the time.Talar-I Takht or Throne room of Gulistan palace housed the famous Peacock throne and was the offical reception room of the palace. Located on the northwest side of the complex, the room was initially designed as a museum but was later known for its primary use as the official reception room of the palace. The construction of the new complex and the throne room staretd in 1874 and concluded two years later in 1876. It was then decorated with the extensive collection of foreign gifts and local/ Iranian artefacts of the palace. The room is currently used as a museum as well." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

	- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Sven Hedin, Konug Oscars Beskickning till Schahen Af Persien, Stockholm: Samson & Wallin, 1891, p:140
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Торіс:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility) Thrones
Place:	Asia Iran Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.43b: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Iwan-I Takht-I Marmar Including the Marble Throne, at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran), 1880 - 1890

1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.3 cm. x 14.6 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of the Iwan-I Takht-I Marmar Including the Marble Throne, at the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace Complex), Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.43b
	Page fourty-three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The marble throne, as depicted in this photo, was designed by Mirza Baba Shirazi Naqashbashi on the orders of Fath Ali Shah Qajar and in 1806. The throne was later built upon this design by an artisan called Muhammad Ibrahim, whose name is carved on the statues of the corners of the throne. The throne is placed on the statues of three angels, six demons and eleven twisted columns, some underneath the bed and some surrounding it. The marble eventually replaced the peacock throne in the open balcony of Gulistan palace, called Iwan-i Takht (The terrace of the throne)." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	 FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	 Faded handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
	Sven Hedin, Konug Oscars Beskickning till Schahen Af Persien, Stockholm: Samson & Wallin, 1891, p:164
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility) Thrones
Place:	Asia Iran Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

Já	FSA A2011.03 A.44a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Soldiers' Drill, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 24.2 cm. x 13.4 cm.)
In	Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Soldiers' Drill, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahar Army Battalion [graphic]
С	reator: lotes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.44a
		Page fourty-three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
		Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
		"The image depicts a group of soldiers s part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son). The soldiers are shown during what seems to be military practice." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
		- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
		- Faded handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
		Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.13; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
		Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
	ames: opic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran
Ρ	lace:	Military Asia Iran
G	enre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.45a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Soldiers' Drill, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 24.2 cm. x 17.7 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Soldiers' Drill, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.45a

Page fourty-five of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The image depicts a group of soldiers s part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son). The soldiers are shown during what seems to be military practice." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.16; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Military
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.46a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Four Soldiers, from Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 21 cm. x 14.8 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Four Soldiers, from Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.46a

	Page fourty-six of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	 Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commerciphotography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court a by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingent outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architect and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found th way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photograph for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his fan studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Military Clothing and dress headgear
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.47a: Arpee Album: Photograph of the Artilary, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, at Maydan-I Tupkhana (Tupkhana Square), Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 24.4 cm. x 17.6 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of the Artilary, Including Fawj-I Jalali, Isfahan Army Battalion, at Maydan-I Tupkhana (Tupkhana Square), Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.47a

Page fourty-seven of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The image depicts a group of soldiers s part of Isfahan's army. These soldiers were recruited and trained in Isfahan, to be a part of an army known as Fawj-I Jalali. The army was placed under Zil al-Sultan's supervision (Nasir al-Din Shah's oldest son)." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.15; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Military
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.48a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Dervish Riding a Cow, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 18.4 cm. x 12.3 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Dervish Riding a Cow [graphic]

inage(s). Ai	pee Album. Fhotograph of a Dervish Riding a Cow [graphic]
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.48a
	Page fourty-eight of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	 FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.42; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landacana and depictions of deily life of Tehran found their
	and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Dervishes
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.48b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Group of Attendants at a Religious Gathering, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.9 cm. x 15.8 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Group of Attendants at a Religious Gathering [graphic] in Antoin 1051 1000

Creator: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.48b
	Page fourty-eight of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	 FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.09; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography Rites and ceremonies Women

Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.49a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Dervish, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.7 cm. x 12.7 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Dervish [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.49a

Page fourty-nine of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photo depicts a man commonly referred to as a Dervish. The man's appearance fits the stereotype of the Dervish type, which is a common theme of portraiture in Sevruguin's portfoli." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.36; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Jean-Baptiste Feuvrier, Troise ans a' la Cour de Perse, Paris, 1899, p:56

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	Dervishes
	Hairstyles
	Portrait photography
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints

Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.49b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Royal Shatir with Elaborate Costume and Headdress, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.9 cm. x 12.1 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Royal Shatir with Elaborate Costume and Headdress [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.49b

Page fourty-nine of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photo decpits two of the royal Shatirs of the royal court. The shatirs would tun errands for the king and his courtiers. They are not guards of the royal residence, but rather in charge of transporting both the king's entourage and his messages from and to the court." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:Early Photography of Iran
Clothing and dress
headgear
Portrait photographyPlace:Asia
IranGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photograph albums
Photographic prints
Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.50a: Arpee Album: Photograph of an Official, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w 20.2 cm. x 12.2 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of an Official [graphic]
Creator: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.50a
	Page fifty of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography Regalia (Insignia)
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.50b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Women in Elaborate Costume, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.5 cm. x 12.7 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Women in Elaborate Costume [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.50b

Page fifty of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The studio portraiture depicts two women in front of a rather empty studio background. The reclining woman rests her head on her hand while extending her feet behind the standing figure on the bed. The standing figure leans against the woman reclining on the bed/seat. Both figures directly engage the gaze of the photographer/viewer and both appear in other studio portraits of Sevruguin, signaling that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.44; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Portrait photography
	Women
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints
	Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.51a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Man Holding a Hookah, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.6 cm. x 12.6 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Man Holding a Hookah [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.51a

Page fifty-one of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The man depicted in this image appears in other photographs of Sevruguin - particularly in the one depicting opium smokers signalling the fact that Sevruguin was using models in various settings and scenarios in his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.37; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days. Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Names: Topic: Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Hairstyles Portrait photography Place: Asia Iran Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.51b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Hallaj, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.8 cm. x 12.9 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Hallaj [graphic]

Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.51b

Page fifty-one of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photograph decpits one of the most common tradesmen of Qajar era: the man who blows the cotton and prepares it for use in throws and pillows." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress
	headgear
	•
	Portrait photography
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.52a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Man Holding a Book, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.5 cm. x 12.7 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Man Holding a Book [graphic]

Creator: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.52a
	Page fifty-two of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	 FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	 Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.30; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress headgear Portrait photography
Place:	Asia

Genre/Form:	Iran Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits
1 Albumen prin	 A.53a: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Residence, 1880s - 1930 t (b&w 22.5 cm. x 17.3 cm.) Album: Photograph of a Residence [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.53a Page fifty-three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design. Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist. - FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture Asia Iran Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
FSA A2011.03	A.53b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Kamraniyya Palace Complex

and Garden, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 22.1 cm. x 16.9 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Kamraniyya Palace Complex and Garden [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.53b

Page fifty-three of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photo depicts the palace complex of Kamraniyya, built around 1880s by Kamran Mirza, Nasir al-Din Shah's third and favorite son. The garden of the complex was known for its exotic and extensive kinds of trees and greenery." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
	Palaces
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.54a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Masjid-i Shah Abd al 'Azim (Shah Abd al 'Azim Mosque) in Tehran (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.5 cm. x 15.7 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Masjid-i Shah Abd al 'Azim (Shah Abd al 'Azim Mosque) in Tehran (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.54a

Page fifty-four of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The Seljuk Shrine/mosque has a lengthy list of restorations during the years, a few of the most significant of which is from Qajar period. From adding minarets and tile work to restoring the other structures and shrines around the main building, works were carried out in the span of about a hundred years during the reigns of Fath Ali Shah, Nasir al-Din Shah and Muzaffar al-Din Shah Qajar. Its golden dome was added during Nasir al-Din Shah's reign, who ordered the dome to be covered in Gold covered copper sheets around 1850s. The minarets were added around 1890s. Many of the images of the building in the 1900s publications are missing the most recent addition of the minarets." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
	Religious buildings
Place:	Asia
	Iran
	Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.54b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Imarat-I Namakdanak (Building of Namakdanak), Isfahan (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.4 cm. x 15.7 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Imarat-I Namakdanak (Building of Namakdanak), Isfahan (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.54b

Page fifty-four of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The Safavid structure was built in three storeys and on the same site as the building of Ayina Khana. It was also destroyed in 1889 - along with Ayinakhana - by Zil al-Sultan, Isfahan's governor and the oldest son of Nasir al-Din Shah." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.05; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs. Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture Asia Iran

Isfahān (Iran) Albumen prints Genre/Form: Photograph albums Photographic prints

Topic:

Place:

FSA A2011.03 A.55a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Unidentified Structure, 1880s -1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.4 cm. x 16.2 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Unidentified Structure [graphic]

	0 1
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 A.55a

Page fifty-five of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

 FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.56a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Unidentified Structure, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 22 cm. x 15.2 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Unidentified Structure [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.56a

Page fifty-six of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Architecture
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.56b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Burj-I Tughtul (Tower of Tughrul), Mausoleum of Tughrul I, in Rayy (Iran), 1880s 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.7 cm. x 14.7 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Burj-I Tughtul (Tower of Tughrul), Mausoleum of Tughrul I, in Rayy (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.56b
10103.	Page fifty-six of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The Seljuk structure is the mausoleum built on the death of Tughrul the first who died in Ray in 1063. The mausoleum is built of brick and has gone through an extensive reconstruction staring from as early as 1884. The mausoleum is around 20 meters high." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
Names:	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise. Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture
Place:	Asia Iran Ray (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
FSA A2011.03 A.57a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Si-o-Se Pol or Pol-i Allah Verdi Khan (Allah Verdi Khan Bridge), in Isfahan (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w 22.5 cm. x 15.7 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Si-o-Se Pol or Pol-i Allah Verdi Khan (Allah Verdi Khan Bridge), in Isfahan (Iran) [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.57a
	Page fifty-seven of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"Isfahan, Zayanda-rud, Si-o-Se pol (Thirty-Three bridges). Built during the reign of Shah Abbas I and under the supervision of one his most powerful army officer, Allah Verdi Khan, the bridge connects the two sides of Zayanda-Rud river, also continuing the famous Chahar Bagh avenue of Isfahan that was being built simultaneously." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial
Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.03; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture
Place:	Asia Iran
	lşfahān (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.57b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Brick Mosque, 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.2 cm. x 15.1 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Brick Mosque [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.57b

Page fifty-seven of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity

outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Names: Topic: Early Photography of Iran Architecture Religious buildings Place: Asia Iran Genre/Form: Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.58a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Friday (Jum'a) Mosque in Rasht (Iran), 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 16.2 cm. x 10.7 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Friday (Jum'a) Mosque in Rasht (Iran)

[graphic]

[graphic]
Creator: Notes:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.58a
	Page fifty-eight of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi- Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	"The structure is dated to the later years of Zand dynasty but a heavy round of renovations on the mosque was carried in 1861. The building's style is quite different from the most conventional forms of mosque, prevalent in urban centres of the time." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Na

Topic:	Early Photography of Iran Architecture Religious buildings
Place:	Asia Iran Rasht (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.58b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate Costume, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.6 cm. x 12.5 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of a Young Woman with Elaborate Costume [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.58b

Page fifty-eight of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photo depicts the woman in full cover except for the face that is partially visible. It is one of the examples of the earlier days of Sevruguin Studio's commercial life. The image is the only one repeated in the album (page 24)." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Early Photography of Iran
	Clothing and dress
	headgear
	Portrait photography
	Women
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints

Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.59a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Imarat-i Atabak (Atabak's Palace), Tehran (Iran), 1880 - 1890 1 Albumen print (b&w; 20.4 cm. x 13.5 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Imarat-i Atabak (Atabak's Palace), Tehran

(Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.59a

Page fifty-nine of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The park and palace of Atabak was built between 1886 and 1888 on the orders of Mirza Ali Asghar Khan, The second Amin al-Sultan and the chief minister of Nasir al-Din Shah. After Amin al-Sultan's assassination in 1907, the complex, which was a debt collateral with Russian Bank for discounted loans to Amin al-Sultan, was repossessed by the bank and used as the Russian Embassy. The building was destroyed in fire in 1922. Originally only a one storey building, Imarat-i Atabak was renovated around 1900 (based on the earliest published account) to add a second storey to the building. The photo must have been taken after this addition." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- Handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin reads: "Cebpróôun."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.25; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Topic: Early Photography of Iran Architecture Palaces

Place: Genre/Form:	Asia Iran Tehran (Iran) Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints
1930 1 Albumen prin	A.59b: Arpee Album: Photograph of a Reclining Woman, 1880s - t (b&w 19.8 cm. x 12.3 cm.) e Album: Photograph of a Reclining Woman [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.59b
	Page fifty-nine of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.
	Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.
	- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."
	Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.47; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Portrait photography Women
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints Studio portraits

FSA A2011.03 A.60a: Arpee Album: Photograph of Talar-i Salam or Talar-i Takht (Throne Room), in the Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace), Tehran (Iran), 1880 - 1890

Image(s): Arpe	 t (b&w 21.3 cm. x 15.5 cm.) e Album: Photograph of Talar-i Salam or Talar-i Takht (Throne Kakh-i Gulistan (Gulistan Palace), Tehran (Iran) [graphic] Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 FSA A2011.03 A.60a Page sixty of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design. Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist. "The photograph depicts the throne room or Talar-i Salam with the view of the throne.Talar-I Takht or Throne room of Gulistan palace normally housed the famous Peacock throne and was the offical reception room of the palace. Located on the northwest side of the complex, the room was initially designed as a museum but was later known for its primary use as the official reception room of the palace. Located on the northwest side of the palace. The construction of the new complex and the throne room staretd in 1874 and concluded two years later in 1876. It was then decorated with the extensive collection of foreign gifts and local/ Iranian artefacts of the palace. The room is currently used as a museum as well." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant] -FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries." - Faded handwritten Cyrillic signature in white (inked), probably by Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's butographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the c
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Kākh-i Gulistān (Tehran, Iran)
Торіс:	Early Photography of Iran Palaces Qajar dynasty, Iran, 1794-1925 Royalty (Nobility)
Place:	Asia Iran Tehran (Iran)
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints

FSA A2011.03 A.60b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Seated Women, 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 12.8 cm. x 9 cm.)

Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Two Seated Women [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Notes: FSA A2011.03 A.60b

Page sixty of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The models depicted in this portrait show up in other studio photographs of Antoin Sevruguin, signaling the fact that he is most possibly using different models in various scenarios for his studio portraits." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

Albumen print numbered FSA A2011.03 B.43; available in Stephen Arpee Collection of Sevruguin Photographs.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Clothing and dress Hairstyles
	Portrait photography
	Women
Place:	Asia
	Iran
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photograph albums
	Photographic prints Studio portraits
	•

FSA A2011.03 B.59: [Old Tbilisi (Georgia): Photograph of Chugureti (Old Town District) and Michael Bridge across the Mtkvari River], 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 27.9 cm. x 21.4 cm.) Image(s): [Old Tbilisi (Georgia): Photograph of Chugureti (Old Town District) and Michael Bridge across the Mtkvari River] [graphic] Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language: Notes:	Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.59
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.
	Title and summary note are provided by Archives staff.
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Architecture
Place:	Europe Georgia
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.56: [Nuremberg (Germany): Photograph of the Central Market Place], 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 15.5 cm. x 10.5 cm.)

Image(s): [Nuremberg (Germany): Photograph of the Central Market Place] [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.56

> One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Archives staff.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933Topic:ArchitecturePlace:Europe
GermanyGenre/Form:Albumen prints
Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.58: [Istanbul (Turkey): Photograph of Inside the Hagia Sofia Basilica], 1880s - 1930
Image(s): [Istar	it (b&w 32.3 cm. x 23.8 cm.) nbul (Turkey): Photograph of Inside the Hagia Sofia Basilica]
[graphic] Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Language: Notes:	Undetermined. FSA A2011.03 B.58
	One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.
	Title and summary note are provided by Archives staff.
	"The original photograph has been taken by Sebah Jean Pascal (Joaillier) between 1860 et 1870." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Archives staff]
	Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.
Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Architecture
	Religious buildings
Discourse	Museums
Place:	Europe Turkey
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
Comon onn.	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.60: [Moscow (Russia): Photograph of St Basil's Basilica], 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 21.2 cm. x 27.7 cm.)

Image(s): [Moscow (Russia): Photograph of St Basil's Basilica] [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Language:	Undetermined.
Notes:	FSA A2011.03 B.60

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Archives staff.

Typed information, in French, on verso reads, "J. Daziaro, Moscou et St-Petersbourg."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Architecture
	Religious buildings
Place:	Europe
	Russia
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.61: [Trabzon (Turkey): Photograph of the Harbor], 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; --.- cm. x 11.3 cm.)

Image(s): [Trabzon (Turkey): Photograph of the Harbor] [graphic]

		- · ·
Creator:	Sevruguin, Antoin,	1851-1933
-

Language: Undetermined.

Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.61

One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Archives staff.

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933
Topic:	Architecture
	Landscapes
Place:	Europe
	Turkey
Genre/Form:	Albumen prints
	Photographic prints

FSA A2011.03 B.62: [Moscow (Russia): Photograph of the Kremlin and the Moskvoretsky Bridge], 1880s - 1930

1 Albumen print (b&w; 28.2 cm. x 22 cm.)

Image(s): [Moscow (Russia): Photograph of the Kremlin and the Moskvoretsky Bridge] [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: Undetermined. Notes: FSA A2011.03 B.62

> One of 62 albumen prints, un-numbered and without any apparent organization, housed in document box and stored on shelves. The 62 photographs were found sandwiched between the front and back covers of a leather-bound album of 19th. century photographs of Antoin Sevruguin. Many of these prints are duplicates of these in the album, and were certainly purchased at the same time.

Title and summary note are provided by Archives staff.

Typed information, in French, on verso reads, "J. Daziaro, Moscou et St-Petersbourg."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933

Topic:ArchitecturePlace:EuropeRussiaGenre/Form:Albumen printsPhotographic prints

FSA A2011.03 A.13b: Arpee Album: Photograph of Maydan-i Naqsh-i Jahan (Naqsh-i Jahan Square), Isfahan (Iran), 1880s - 1930 1 Albumen print (b&w; 23.6 cm. x 16.8 cm.) Image(s): Arpee Album: Photograph of Maydan-i Nagsh-i Jahan (Nagsh-i Jahan Square), Isfahan (Iran) [graphic]

Creator: Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Language: English.

Language: Engl Notes: FSA

FSA A2011.03 A.13b

Page thirteen of an album of 99 mounted albumen prints with attractive leather covers and embossed green star-and-crescent design.

Title and Summary notes are provided by Shabnam Rahimi-Golkhandan, FSg research specialist.

"The photo depicts the Naqsh-I Jahan square almost in its entirety, with the grand mosque sitting at the far end and the 'Ali Qapu gate to its left, during what seems to be a military procession. The Maydan (square), totaling about eight acres, is built in the time of Shah Abbas I, between 1590 and 1595. The square brings together four of the main political structures of the city of Isfahan and the Safavid Empire: the palace, the main friday mosque, the royal mosque and the bazaar. each of the entrances to the four structures are placed on one side of the square space, with the palace and the royal mosque facing each other on the longest sides of the maydan. The square was mainly used for royal, official and military ceremonies during and after Safavid times. The arcade around the square was built a few years after the main construction concluded, housing various cafes and shops from the day of its construction." [Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives, Curatorial Research Assistant]

- FSg curatorial research specialist remark on Antoin Sevruguin photo condition reads, "Albumen print, faded on the outer boundaries."

- On the mount, below the photographic print, handwritten caption (inked) in English reads, "Parade ground Teheran."

Antoin Sevruguin is one of the early pioneers of commercial photography in Iran. He arrived in Iran from Tbilisi, Georgia in the mid 1870s to set up shop in Ala al-Dawla street in Tehran. From the early days, Sevruguin's studio was trusted both by the Qajar court and by foreign visitors to Iran. Highly regarded for their artistic ingenuity outside Iran, Sevruguin's photographs of 'ethnic types,' architecture and landscape, and depictions of daily life of Tehran found their way into foreign travelogues, magazines and books. As such, he stands alone in a relatively large group of early Iranian photographers for being recognized and celebrated outside the boundaries of the country. Antoin Sevruguin passed away in 1933, although his family studio continued for some time as a commercial enterprise.

Names: Topic:	Sevruguin, Antoin, 1851-1933 Early Photography of Iran Architecture Military
Place:	Asia Iran
Genre/Form:	Işfahān (Iran) Albumen prints Photograph albums Photographic prints