Administrative Information

Acquisition Information

This collection was donated to the National Anthropological Film Collection (formerly the Human Studies Film Archives) by George J. Klima's daughter, Lynn Lemyre, in 2017.

Processing Information

The manuscript and photograph series delineated in this collection are based on the original order and groupings of the materials upon their arrival at this institution. Original folder titles were used where appropriate. Audiovisual materials have been rehoused, numbered, and sometimes assembled into larger reels for preservation and access, though Klima's original numbering has been maintained. Paper materials stored with film were separated and put into series; please refer to NAFC film numbers to determine direct relationship.

Processed and encoded by Annie Schweikert, 2017.

Preferred Citation

The George J. Klima collection, National Anthropological Film Collection, Smithsonian Institution.

Restrictions

The George J. Klima collection is open for research. Please contact the archives for information on availability of access copies of audiovisual recordings. Original audiovisual material in the National Anthropological Film Collection may not be played.

Biographical / Historical

George J. Klima was a cultural anthropologist known for his work on the Barabaig, a nomadic cattle-herding tribe in northern Tanzania, upon whom he published both written and visual ethnographies. Klima was an associate professor in the Anthropology Department at the State University of New York at Albany (SUNY Albany) from 1968 through his retirement, circa 1992, upon which he served as associate professor emeritus until circa 2014.

Born on July 29, 1922, in New York City, Klima served in the United States Navy from 1942-1945 before earning a bachelor's degree in Psychology and Anthropology from Syracuse University in Syracuse, New York (1952). He then conducted anthropological fieldwork among the Barabaig over two periods, April 1955 through November 1956 and May 1958 through October 1959. In 1965, Klima earned a Ph.D. in Cultural Anthropology from the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) with studies in social anthropology and linguistics. His dissertation, entitled "Kinship, Property, and Jural Relations Among the Barabaig," drew on this fieldwork, as did his two major publications: The Barabaig: East African Cattle-Herders (book, 1970) and Barabaig (film, 1979).

Prior to joining the faculty at SUNY Albany, Klima taught and lectured at UCLA, the University of Southern California, and California State College at Los Angeles. Among other subjects, Klima taught ethnographic filmmaking. He described the process of filmmaking as "teleological," in that short- and long-term filming goals inform the very nature of the filmmaking process; his own filmmaking prioritized the capture of "visual fieldnotes" above sequences intended to educate a broader audience (Klima, "Filmmaking as Teleological Process").

Klima died in December 2016 in Lewes, Delaware.

Scope and Contents

The George J. Klima collection documents his field work in Tanzania with the Barabaig, publications stemming from that field work, and other professional activities over the period 1953-2014 and undated. The collection consists of camera original film and sound recordings, photographs, field notes, correspondence, publications, research and teaching materials, and personal audiovisual recordings.

Film and audio materials include documentation of Barabaig rituals and everyday life, with a particular emphasis on cattle herding and markets. 35mm color slides include a notable selection of portraits of Barabaig women. Field notes provide some context to these materials, but stand on their own as resources on Barabaig kinship, language, and culture. The collection also includes copies of all of Klima's published Barabaig writings and films, including film scripts, along with correspondence with publishers and field informants.

Of note among the general anthropological research materials are a series of taped live lectures by noted anthropologists and artists, including Margaret Mead, Edmund Carpenter, and Marvin Harris, among others; these recordings often include audience questions and informal discussion with the lecturer. Also included in this collection are a selection of published material by others on the Barabaig; teaching films, slides, correspondence and administrative materials from his time as a professor at the State University of New York at Albany (SUNY Albany); and personal audiovisual materials including experimental films.

Arrangement

The George J. Klima collection is arranged in 3 series: Series 1: Barabaig field work, 1953-1998, undated; Series 2: Barabaig publications, 1955-2014, undated; Series 3: Other professional activities, 1952-1993, undated.

Container Listing

Series 1: Barabaig field work, 1953-1998, undated

17 sound tape reels
0.63 Linear Feet
6 film reels (16mm)

This series consists of original film, audio, photographic, and manuscript materials related to Klima's fieldwork with the Barabaig of northern Tanzania over two periods, April 1955 through November 1956 and May 1958 through October 1959. It contains cultural and linguistic material about the Barabaig, with a particular emphasis on kinship, cattle-herding, and the Barabaig language.

The series includes camera original film and sound, 35mm slides, and undated bound notebooks and unbound notes written by Klima. Some of the latter notes are typed and may stand alone as early drafts of printed material; all were housed together by Klima. Also included are some research materials as background data on the region, as well as correspondence with missionaries and contacts in Tanzania.

See Series 2 for work published on the basis of this research in both audiovisual and written formats.

This series is arranged in the following 6 subseries: 1.1 Camera original film, 1955-1959; 1.2 Field sound, 1955-1959; 1.3 Photographs, circa 1955-circa 1959; 1.4 Field notes, circa 1955-circa 1959; 1.5 Research materials, circa 1955-1997, undated; 1.6 Correspondence, 1953-1975, 1998.

1.1: Camera original film, 1955-1959

Unedited camera original film shot by Klima over the course of his anthropological fieldwork in northern Tanzania, 1955-1959. Footage, intended both for use as research data and eventually as sequences in Barabaig (1979), includes cattle herding, rituals, and ceremonies; a betrothal; a circumcision; boys hunting; and everyday chores and life of the Barabaig. Documentation includes sequence-by-sequence notes found inside film cans. Exact dates are difficult to determine, as stock dates are mixed within reels and documentation is undated.

Labels from original reels are recorded in the title field. Klima's original reels were assembled into larger rolls for preservation by the archivist; the order of these rolls follows Klima's original numbering.

Box 1	Field sound documentation, 1955-circa 1959 Arranged according to assembled film number. May date to post-fieldwork.

1.3: Photographs, circa 1955-circa 1959

This subseries contains prints, negatives, and slides pertaining to Klima's anthropological fieldwork in northern Tanzania, 1955-1959. Slides and negatives were almost certainly made by Klima during his fieldwork, while prints may be from a later date.

Dates listed next to slides were stamped on the slides' original housing, and likely refer to processing date as opposed to date of original image. They have been retained to maintain separations between batches of slides with similar subjects. Photocopies of housing made when notes were illegible.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

1.4: Field notes, circa 1955-circa 1959

This subseries contains undated notes and data from Klima's field research with the Barabaig alongside vocabulary lists and grammars for the Barabaig and Swahili languages.

Chronology is unclear; materials unarranged. Some materials may date to before or after Klima's time in the field.

- Box 1 Field notes and article drafts, circa 1955-circa 1959
5 folders (includes 6 notebooks)
Klima kept notes both in numbered notebooks and on looseleaf paper. Looseleaf notes bleed into drafts (handwritten and typed) of scholarly articles; some notes were written on the verso of those articles. All looseleaf materials were housed together in a folder titled "Barabaig Data."
- Box 1 Language materials: Ki-Barabaig, circa 1955-circa 1959
2 folders (includes 1 notebook)
- Box 1 Language materials: Ki-Swahili, circa 1955-circa 1959
1 folder (includes 2 small notebooks)

1.5: Research materials, circa 1955-1997, undated

This subseries contains scholarly articles on the Barabaig, some with Klima's notes or translations.

Arranged chronologically.

- Box 1 Notes on scholarly articles, circa 1955
- Box 1 "Die Datoga, ein ostafrikanischer Hirten-Kriegerstamm," by Paul Berger, with Klima's translation (undated copy), 1938 August
- Box 1 "Auch die Barabaig sind Opfer der Verwicklungshilfe," by Charles Lane, 1997 January

1.6: Correspondence, 1998, 1953-1975

This subseries contains correspondence to Klima regarding his Barabaig fieldwork. Bulk of correspondence is from Harold and Louise Faust, a missionary family with the Barabaig; other correspondence is from contacts in Tanzania. Of note is a letter in Swahili from Klima's Barabaig informant, Gidasaid Mameng.

Correspondence is arranged in chronological order within folders.

Series 2: Barabaig publications, 1955-2014, undated

1 cassette tape

0.21 Linear Feet

1 videocassettes (vhs)

3 sound tape reels (1/4 inch tape)

2 film reels (16mm)

This series consists of documentation of Klima's published written and filmic work on the Barabaig, much of which came long after his initial fieldwork. It includes the book The Barabaig: East African Cattle-Herders (1970), the film Barabaig (1979), and Klima's early work on jural relations among the Barabaig, including his resulting dissertation. Accompanying the published works are correspondence with publishers and distributors. Film materials include scripts and sound effects for the edited cut.

This series also includes Barabaig publications by other academics and writers with whom Klima corresponded, whether to serve as advisor or simply to comment.

This series is arranged in the following 4 subseries: 2.1 Early Barabaig writings, 1963-1968; 2.2 The Barabaig: East African Cattle-Herders (book), 1970; 2.3 Barabaig (film), 1979; 2.4 Barabaig publications by others, 1955-1958, 1973-1975, 2003.

2.1: Early Barabaig writings, 1963-1968

This subseries contains Klima's early scholarly writings on the Barabaig, before the publication of his film and book.

Arranged chronologically.

Box 2 Correspondence with the International African Institute, regarding "Jural Relations between the Sexes in an African Society" (article), 1963-1968

Box 2 Kinship, Property, and Jural Relations among the Barabaig (dissertation), 1965

2.2: The Barabaig: East African Cattle-Herders (book), 2011, 1966-1985

This subseries includes correspondence, reviews, and photographs with publishers for The Barabaig: East African Cattle-Herders, initially published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston in 1970 and reprinted by Waveland Press, Inc. in 1985.

Arranged chronologically.

2.3: Barabaig (film), 1979

This subseries includes audiovisual materials, scripts, and correspondence pertaining to the published film Barabaig (1979), edited by Klima from his Tanzanian fieldwork footage and distributed by Penn State Media. The film documents the cultural and existential focus on cattle among the semi-nomadic Barabaig, including rituals, social conflict, and economic problem-solving. Sequences include payment of a cattle fine, the sacrifice of a bull, a wedding ceremony, and a circumcision ritual. The film was distributed by Penn State.

Arranged chronologically.

Series 3: Other professional activities, 1952-1993, undated

0.21 Linear Feet

1 videocassettes (vhs)

13 sound recordings

8 film reels (16mm and Super 8mm)

This series consists of other academic work by Klima, including correspondence relating to professional activities and general anthropological research and teaching materials (mostly from Klima's career at SUNY Albany). Of note are a series of live lectures by noted anthropologists and artists, including Margaret Mead, Edmund Carpenter, and Marvin Harris, among others; these recordings often include audience questions and informal discussion with the lecturer.

This series also includes materials apparently for Klima's personal use, including experimental films, home movies, and documentation of painting purchases. The exact relation of any of these materials to his anthropological career is unestablished.

This series is arranged in the following 3 subseries: 3.1 Correspondence, 1955-1987, undated; 3.2 Other academic materials, 1958, 1962, 1974-1979, undated; 3.3 Personal materials, 1952-1993, undated.

3.1: Correspondence, 1955-1987, undated

This subseries contains correspondence relating to professional activities such as lectures and publications, as well as personal communication with other academics. Klima sorted out African research correspondence; these divisions have been maintained.
