Collection Overview

Repository:	National Anthropological Archives
Title:	Jerome R. Mintz papers
Date:	1960-1992
Identifier:	NAA.1998-72
Creator:	Mintz, Jerome R.
Extent:	23 Cubic feet (20 linear feet (49 document boxes) plus 70 sound recordings and 10 floppy disks. Of the total extent, 2.5 inches (1 box) is restricted)
Language:	Primarily English. Some materials are in Spanish and Yiddish.
Summary:	The Jerome R. Mintz Papers document his career as an educator and ethnographic filmmaker. Mintz's papers relate to his research in Andalusia, Spain, among the Hopi, and on Hasidism. The collection includes audio tapes, correspondence, notes, photographs, publications, and transcriptions. Mintz's papers also feature course materials from the Jewish studies and anthropology classes he taught at Indiana University.

Administrative Information

Acquisition Information

This collection was donated to the National Anthropological Archives by Betty Mintz, wife of Jerome Mintz, in 2002.

Related Materials

Copies of Mintz's Spanish films and associated photos and sound recordings are at the Human Studies Film Archives. His original Spanish and Hopi sound recordings are at the Archives of Traditional Music at Indiana University, Bloomington.

Processing Information

The papers of Jerome Mintz were received partially organized. The processing archivist kept existing groupings and arrangement and organized the collection into 10 series. The collection was rehoused in archival folders and boxes, and some of the photographs were sleeved in archival envelopes and slide protectors. Original folder titles were retained with titles assigned by the archivist placed within square brackets. Restricted materials were separated and replaced with notes indicating original and new locations.

The processing archivist would like to thank Patricia McCloy for her assistance in processing the collection.

Preferred Citation

Restrictions

The Jerome R. Mintz papers are open for research. As part of his research on the Hasidim in New York, Jerome Mintz presented TAT drawings to children and adults. Their responses are restricted. Also restricted are materials containing social security numbers of living individuals and his students' grades. His floppy disks are restricted due to preservation reasons.

Access to the Jerome R. Mintz papers requires an appointment.

Conditions Governing Use

Contact the repository for terms of use. Permission to use his Spanish and Hopi sound recordings must be obtained from Indiana University, Bloomington.

Biographical Note

Jerome R. Mintz was born on March 29, 1930 in Brooklyn, New York. He received an A.B. (1952) in Comparative Literature and an M.A. (1955) in English literature from Brooklyn College. In 1961, he earned his Ph.D. in Folklore at Indiana University.

As a doctoral student in 1959, he began studying New York's Hasidic community. He interviewed members of different Hasidic courts and collected and analyzed Hasidic tales. This research formed the basis of his dissertation, which was expanded and published as The Legends of the Hasidim: an Introduction to Hasidic Culture and Oral Tradition in the New World (1968). He also published Hasidic People: A Place in the New World (1992), which is based on his study of social change within the Hasidic community. He received critical acclaim for the book and was honored with the National Jewish Book Award.

Mintz also received international recognition for his work in Andalusia, Spain. In 1965 he began studying Spanish anarchism, focusing on the events surrounding the 1933 uprising in the small rural town of Casas Viejas that resulted in the massacre of innocent villagers. Despite working in Casas Viejas, now Benalup-Casas Viejas, during the reign of Francisco Franco, Mintz was able to gain the trust and friendship of his informants, which included survivors of the failed anarchist uprising. Although much had been written about the event, his book The Anarchists of Casas Viejas (1982) is considered the most comprehensive account and the first to incorporate the perspectives of the campesinos involved. He also published Carnival Song and Society: Gossip, Sexuality, and Creativity in Andalusia (1997) and produced six ethnographic films on tradition and change in rural Andalusia. His films The Shoemaker and Pepe's Family (1980) received first place awards in the Modern Language Association Film Festival, and Romería: Day of the Virgin (1986) was honored by the Society for Visual Anthropology. In 2013, the city council of Benalup-Casas Viejas chose to posthumously honor Mintz for his contributions by renaming the city's cultural center after him.

In addition to his research on the New York Hasidim and Andalusian campesinos, Mintz studied the oral traditions and history of the Hopi in Arizona. In 1962, in between his field work among the Hasidim, Mintz spent the summer on the Hopi reservation recording interviews with Hopi informants. He planned to analyze the ethnographic data, tales, and histories that he collected but ultimately did not publish on the subject.

Mintz spent most of his academic career at Indiana University. He began teaching at the university in 1962 and joined the anthropology faculty in 1966. He retired in 1995.

After a long battle with leukemia, Mintz passed away on November 22, 1997.

Scope and Contents

This collection consists of the professional papers of Jerome Mintz, documenting his work as an anthropologist, filmmaker, and professor. The collection contains his correspondence, research files, writings, photographs, sound recordings, grant applications, teaching files, and floppy disks.

A significant portion of the collection pertains to his work in Spain, particularly his research on the anarchist uprising in Casas Viejas. There are also materials related to his ethnographic films and his collection of song lyrics from carnivals held in Cadiz Province. His research on Hasidic tales and social change is also represented in this collection as well as interviews from his Hopi fieldwork.

His course files as a professor at Indiana University also form a sizable portion of the collection. He taught a wide range of courses within the folklore, Jewish studies, and anthropology department.

Please note that the contents of the collection and the language and terminology used reflect the context and culture of the time of its creation. As an historical document, its contents may be at odds with contemporary views and terminology and considered offensive today. The information within this collection does not reflect the views of the Smithsonian Institution or National Anthropological Archives, but is available in its original form to facilitate research.

1.2: Films

Scope and Contents: This subseries contains materials relating to Mintz's six ethnographic films: The Shoemaker, Pepe's Family, Perico the Bowlmaker, The Shepherd's Family, Carnaval de Pueblo, and Romería: Day of the Virgin. Materials include film scripts and English translations, transcripts of interviews that he collected for the film, materials relating to the distribution of his films, correspondence, awards that he received, and reviews of his films. Since some of the footage he collected were done concurrently with his research on anarchism, related material may be found in Subseries: Casas Viejas. See Human Studies Film Archives for films and related sound recordings and photos.

1.3: Carnival Songs

Scope and Contents: Carnival and carnival songs formed the topic of Mintz's book Carnival Song and Society: Gossip, Sexuality, and Creativity in Andalusia (1997). As part of the festivities of the Spanish carnival, strolling musical groups perform songs that they have composed specifically for the event. This subseries consists of typed song lyrics, English translations, and programs collected from carnivals held in Benalup, Trebujena, Cadiz, and Ubrique from 1966 to 1990. The folders are grouped by town and arranged in chronological order.

Series 2: Hasidim, 1970-1981, 1985, 1959-1964, undated

2.3 Linear feet

Scope and Contents: This series contains Mintz's research on the Hasidim in New York. This includes his early research in the 1960s on Hasidic oral tradition as well as his later research on social change within the Hasidic community. Materials in this series include transcripts of interviews, Hasidic tales, bibliographic source materials, reading notes, correspondence regarding his publications on the Hasidim, papers that he presented, and Jewish Studies conference materials.

As part of his analysis of the relationship between Hasidic tales and the daily lives of the Hasidim, Mintz administered TAT drawings depicting major themes from the stories to his informants. Their responses are restricted.

Series 9: Sound Recordings, 1960, 1962-1963, 1986-1988, undated

70 Sound recordings

Scope and Contents: This series consists of field recordings from Mintz's research among the Hasidim and Hopi, as well as a recording of Polish-American folktales. Transcripts for some of the field recordings can be found in Series 2. Hasidim and Series 3. Hopi. Item numbers were assigned by the processing archivist.

The Hopi recordings are copies of original recordings held at the Archives of Traditional Music (ATM) at Indiana University, Bloomington. ATM also holds Mintz's original field recordings from Spain. Copies of the Spanish recordings are at the Human Studies Film Archives.

The contents of these sound recordings have not been verified.
