Administrative Information

Acquisition Information

These papers were donated to the National Anthropological Archives by Vivian E. Garrison Arensberg in 2011.

Related Materials

Arensberg is listed as a correspondent in the following collections at the Smithsonian Institution's National Anthropological Archives: John Lawrence Angel papers; Papers of Carleton Stevens Coon; Ethel Cutler Freeman papers; Frederica de Laguna papers; Ruth Landes papers; William Duncan Strong papers.

For oral history interviews with Arensberg, see the following collections:

-The Smithsonian Institution's Human Studies Film Archives "Video Dialogues in Anthropology: Conrad Arensberg and Lambros Comitas, 1989." In this video oral history conducted by anthropologist Lambros Comitas, Arensberg comments on his training in anthropology, the individuals who were influential in his career, and the geographical areas where he conducted his fieldwork.

-The National Anthropological Archives Manuscript (MS) 2009-15. May Mayko Ebihara conducted this oral history interview with Arensberg on March 7, 1984 as part of a larger oral history project with anthropologists.

For more concerning Arensberg's work with interaction theory, see the Frederick L.W. Richardson papers at the National Anthropological Archives. Richardson worked closely with Eliot Chapple and Conrad Arensberg on theories concerning human interaction.

For correspondence and other information related to Arensberg's Ireland research, see: Solon Toothaker Kimball Papers, Special Collections, Teachers College, Columbia University; and Solon Toothaker Kimball Papers, The Newberry Library, Chicago.

Additional materials concerning Arensberg's research and personal life can be found among the papers of his wife, anthropologist Vivian "Kelly" Garrison. See the Vivian E. Garrison papers at the National Anthropological Archives.

Processing Information

The papers of Conrad M. Arensberg were prepared for deposit at the National Anthropological Archives by Vivian E. Garrison Arensberg. The papers arrived at the archives partially organized, with a general description of the contents written on the record storage boxes. Some of the materials were in labeled folders, but most were not. Original folder titles were retained. Folder titles assigned by the archivist are indicated by square brackets. Files have been rehoused in acid free folders. The archivist kept existing groupings and organized the collection into eight series. While the materials were organized into several natural series—correspondence, teaching materials, Eastern and Central Europe, and industrial relations files, several series—writings, biographical files, professional activities, and research files—were imposed by the archivist with the help of biographical information as well as Arensberg's curriculum vitae. These materials were scattered throughout the collection and had to be brought back together. Restricted materials were separated and replaced with notes indicating original and new locations.

Processed by Christy Fic, 2011. Finding aid originally encoded by Jocelyn Baltz, 2012 June. Finding aid updated and encoded by Katherine Madison, 2018 June.

Biographical Note

Conrad M. Arensberg was born on September 12, 1910 in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Academically inclined from a young age, he graduated first in his class at ShadySide Academy in Pittsburgh. His early success earned him admittance to Harvard College. Arensberg studied anthropology and graduated summa cum laude in 1931.

As a graduate student at Harvard University, Arensberg was asked to join a project being conducted in Ireland by Harvard's Anthropology Department. Alongside W. Lloyd Warner and Solon T. Kimball, Arensberg spent three years studying rural Irish life in County Clare. This research resulted in his doctoral dissertation, "A Study in Rural Life in Ireland as Determined by the Functions and Morphology of the Family," which was later published as The Irish Countryman in 1937. His work was groundbreaking in the field of anthropology, and his study of County Clare "became a model for other community studies... requiring that researchers study a target culture from the inside, making meticulous notes on everything they saw, heard or experienced." Arensberg reshaped the way that anthropologists approached fieldwork and opened doors for the study of modern industrial societies.

Arensberg had a long teaching career. He first became a university professor in 1938 at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and remained a professor for the rest of his life, teaching at MIT, Brooklyn College, Barnard College, Columbia University, the University of Florida, and the University of Virginia. At Columbia, Arensberg worked alongside such notable anthropologists as Margaret Mead, Charles Wagley, and Marvin Harris.

Arensberg officially retired in 1979, but he continued to collaborate with his colleagues, counsel past students, and participate in professional associations until his death. He passed away on February 10, 1997 in Hazlet, New Jersey.

Scope and Contents

This collection contains the professional papers of Conrad M. Arensberg, anthropologist, university professor, and anthropological consultant. Included are correspondence; published and unpublished writings; research materials, including notes, correspondence, diaries, charts, drafts, interviews, research plans, reports, project proposals, and bibliographic cards; speeches; pamphlets; articles from newspapers and periodicals; course materials, including bibliographies, lecture notes, reading lists, assignments, exams, project proposals, and syllabi; curriculum vitae; date books; scholarly papers and publications of other scholars; and photographs.

The materials in this collection document Arensberg's career as a university professor, his relationships with colleagues across a spectrum of disciplines, and his contributions to the field of anthropology. As a respected member of the anthropological community, Arensberg received a voluminous amount of correspondence from his peers, who often included copies of their most recent papers. He kept many of these works, which, along with his annotations, can be found throughout the collection. It appears he used these papers in a variety of ways, including as resources for his classes or as reference materials. Arensberg's own work is reflected in his writings and research files. Arensberg's Ireland research, despite its importance to his career and to the field of anthropology as a whole, has a minimal presence in the collection. Located in Series 3. Research Files, the subseries containing Arensberg's Ireland material primarily consists of photocopies of his correspondence, field notes, and diaries during this time. His role as a professor, rather than as a researcher or writer, is the most well-represented in the collection. Arensberg formed lasting relationships with many of his students, as evidenced by his continued correspondence with many of them long after their years at Columbia.

Container Listing

Series 1: Correspondence, 1933-1994

8.3 Linear feet

This series contains most of Arensberg's correspondence. Some correspondence, however, can be found throughout the collection alongside related materials such as his research files. The bulk of his correspondence is professional and documents his exchanges and collaboration with colleagues, many of whom frequently wrote to ask for his opinion regarding their most recent research project or draft for publication. Arensberg's commitment to his students can also be seen in his letters, with many relationships lasting long beyond the students' graduate years.

The material is arranged alphabetically.

Series 3: Research files, 1931-1984

2.83 Linear feet

This series contains the records of Arensberg's research projects and consultancy positions.

The series is arranged into the following 6 subseries: (3.1) Ireland, 1931-1958; (3.2) India, 1964-1970; (3.3) Germany, 1949-1955; (3.4) Linguistica, 1949-1984; (3.5) Consultancy projects, 1937-1981; (3.6) Trips, 1951-1956.

3.1: Ireland, 1931-1958

This subseries documents Arensberg's research in Ireland as part of the Harvard Irish Mission in the early 1930s. As part of the social anthropology team, Arensberg was one of the first anthropologists to study modern industrial cultures during this trip. His focus was on rural life in County Clare. This work resulted in his doctoral dissertation and the publication of two books and various articles. It influenced anthropologists to study modern industrial societies. The diaries, correspondence, and notes in this subseries are photocopies.

The material is arranged alphabetically.

Series 5: Teaching files, 1938-1983

11.6 Linear feet

This series contains Arensberg's files from his years as a faculty member at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Brooklyn College, Barnard College, and Columbia University. Throughout his extensive career in the university setting, Arensberg developed and refined many courses, advised numerous doctoral candidates, and engaged in intellectual endeavors with his colleagues through attending Columbia University seminars.

Each subseries represents a course topic Arensberg taught over the years in various forms. The bulk of material consists of resources Arensberg gathered for his classes.

Materials in this series consist of articles, papers, bibliographies, lecture notes, reading lists, assignments, exams, correspondence, meeting minutes, project proposals, and course syllabi.

The series is divided into the following 11 subseries: (5.1) Applied Anthropology, 1953-1976; (5.2) Urban Anthropology, 1964-1977; (5.3) The People of the United States, 1946, undated; (5.4) Ethnic Groups, 1938-1961; (5.5) Peoples of the Old World-Europe and the Middle East, 1952-1979; (5.6) Peoples of the Old World-India and Asia, 1952-1979; (5.7) Community Studies in Complex Cultures, 1948-1977; (5.8) Industrial Society, 1938-1980; (5.9) Political Anthropology, 1955-1979; (5.10) Seminars, 1950-1983; (5.11) General, 1938-1979, undated.

The grades of Arensberg's students are restricted.

5.1: Applied Anthropology, 1953-1976

This subseries contains materials related to Arensberg's courses on applied anthropology, a strong subject for him considering his work applying anthropology to solve practical problems.

The material is arranged alphabetically.
