Biographical Note

Vivian Eva Garrison, known as "Kelly" to friends and colleagues, was an applied medical anthropologist who researched the cultural understandings and community treatment structures surrounding mental illness and mental health care among low-income, minority, and migrant communities the New York metropolitan area. She worked predominantly with African American, Hispanic, and Caribbean migrant populations in the South Bronx and in Newark, New Jersey.

Garrison was born on August 28, 1933 in Butte, Montana. She earned a B.A. in Spanish and psychology from New York University in 1961 and a Ph.D. in anthropology from Columbia University in 1972. Her dissertation, Social Networks, Social Change and Mental Health among Migrants in a New York City Slum, was completed in 1971.

Garrison conducted her research under the purview of various federal and state grants to examine community mental health care. The majority of her research was completed at Lincoln Hospital in the Bronx, at the College/University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, and at Columbia University.

Throughout her career, Garrison acted as a consultant in matters of folk healing and community health care and published frequently on folk healing, espiritismo, psychiatry, and psychiatric methodology. She taught intermittently, including teaching one semester of Margaret Mead's "Problems and Methods in Anthropology" course at Columbia University (1979). She also contributed to the President's Commission on Mental Health in 1977-1978.

Garrison married anthropologist Conrad M. Arensberg in 1973 and died in April 2013 at the age of 79.

Scope and Contents

The papers of Vivian E. Garrison, circa 1930-2009 (bulk 1960-1993) document her work as an applied medical anthropologist in the New York metropolitan area. Garrison studied and published on the cultural understandings and community treatment structures surrounding mental illness and mental health care among low-income, minority, and migrant communities. The collection includes clinical and case files, sound recordings, and films; research policies and protocols; presentations and workshop notes and recordings; manuscripts and drafts; publications and working papers; correspondence; grant applications; administrative files; annotated scholarly literature (reprints and books); and personal biographical material.

The bulk of material in the collection relates to Garrison's research under and administration of different research grants focusing on community mental health care in the greater New York City area. As a research scientist at the Lincoln Hospital Mental Health Services (LHMHS), Garrison undertook anthropological research under the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) grant, "Study of Neighborhood Centers and Mental Health Aides" (1965-1969). The research completed at LHMHS was used in her dissertation (1971). Garrison continued her studies of the South Bronx populations at the Columbia-Bronx Research Center as principal investigator under the NIMH grant, "Folk Healers and Community Mental Health Programming" (1972-1975). She built upon that research as the director and principal investigator of the U.S. Public Health Grant "Inner-City Support Systems" (ICSS) from 1976-1982, run through the College (later University) of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (C/UMDNJ). Within the Resource Center for Multicultural Care and Prevention (RCMCP) at UMDNJ (born out of the ICSS program), Garrison administered the NIMH grant "Community Support Systems of Haitian Immigrants," (CSSHI) which transferred to Columbia University in 1984. Garrison's research under these and other grants was typically undertaken in concert with anthropological colleagues, community consultants, and medical professionals. The materials in this collection reflect the collaborative nature of this research process, as well as Garrison's administrative role at the ICSS project at UMDNJ. Some research notes, case files, and manuscript drafts of colleagues and contributors are present in this collection.

The collection also contains personal biographical, medical, and historical material documenting the lives of Vivian Garrison and her husband, anthropologist Conrad M. Arensberg. Much of this material relates to Arensberg's medical history and care in the last years of his life, as meticulously recorded and analyzed by Garrison. Personal material in the collection also relates to the preservation and destruction of her historic home in Rumson, New Jersey (the Morris-Salter-Hartshorn-Tredwell House).

Series 2: Columbia University Bronx Research Center, circa 1968-1977

16.28 Linear feet

Series 2 consists of material documenting Garrison's research into the mental health care and folk healing practices of Puerto Rican and African American communities of the South Bronx with Columbia University. The series includes administrative files, case vignettes, coding cards and forms, correspondence, data and tabulations, field notes, grant applications, presentations, reports, and sound recordings.

Garrison worked as a Senior Research Associate and Principal Investigator at the Columbia-Bronx Research Center/Unit, funded by the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) grant, "Folk Healers and Community Mental Health Programming." Of note in this series are the clinical case study notes and interviews (predominantly sound cassettes) of patients and folk healers.

Research documented in this series built on Garrison's earlier South Bronx research conducted at the Lincoln Hospital Mental Health Services (see Series 1). Columbia is where she completed some of her analysis and computations regarding LHMHS-gathered data.

Related Material related to various clinical cases and folk healers can also be found in Series 3: Inner-City Support Systems Project. Additional material related to publications made from Columbia Bronx-gathered data can be found in Series 5: Publications, manuscripts, and associated research files.

Series 2 is arranged into 4 sub-series: (2.1) Research files, data, and tabulations, circa 1972-1976; (2.2) Medical questionnaires, circa 1968-1974; (2.3) Sound recordings, 1972-1977; (2.4) Administrative files, 1970-1977.

Sub-series (2.2) is restricted until 2054 and sub-series (2.3) is restricted until 2057 due to the presence of personal health information (PHI). Any additional restrictions are noted at the item level.

Series 3: Inner-City Support System Project, circa 1968-1997

30.12 Linear feet

Series 3 contains material documenting Garrison's research into the community health practices of low-income and minority communities of the greater New York City area (predominantly Newark, New Jersey), as well as her implementation of culturally sensitive clinical practice and health care training with the College/University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (C/UMDNJ). This series includes case files and clinical interviews; clinical evaluation instruments, including interview and observation schedules; data cards; tables and tabulations; sound and video recordings of clinical interviews with patients and healers; correspondence; conference notes; drafts and publications; grant applications; reports; photographic slide presentations; sound and video recordings of workshops, presentations, and staff meetings; workshop scripts and handouts; training manuals; and notes.

Garrison served as the Principal Investigator of the U.S. Public Health Grant "Inner-City Support Systems" (ICSS) at UMDNJ. Much of the material in this series is administrative, documenting the implementation of research done at ICSS (through workshops, presentations, and publications) and the administration of the grant (through applications, reports, and financial documents).

Of note in the series are materials related to "Bumi" (in sub-series (3.5)). These materials document a particular training module created by ICSS staff surrounding the implementation of culturally-sensitive clinical healing practices. Also of note is sub-series (3.6) Working papers and publications, circa 1975-1989, 2006. This sub-series documents both internal reports and external publications created by ICSS staff. It includes correspondence, drafts, and proofs ("slugs") of a series of ICSS-specific papers published in the journal Psychiatric Annals. This sub-series also contains detailed definitions of "support systems" and the ICSS project.

Material in this series also documents the Resource Center for Multicultural Care and Prevention (RCMCP) at UMDNJ - an offshoot of the ICSS program. The series also contains material related to the development and implementation of the workshop "Culturally Sensitive Case Management Training" (CSCMT), which Garrison administered while at UMDNJ, and to the Community Support Systems Assessment (CSSA) manual developed by Garrison and ICSS staff.

Related material can be found in Series 4: Community Support Systems of Haitian Immigrants (CSSHI), which grant was connected to the ICSS project and was administered by Garrison during her time at UMDNJ. Additional material related to publications made from ICSS-gathered data can be found in Series 5: Publications, manuscripts, and associated research files.

Series 3 is arranged into 8 sub-series. The first half (sub-series 3.1 to 3.4) contains research material and clinical files. The second half (subseries 3.5 to 3.8) contains materials related to the administration, implementation, and dissemination of the ICSS project. The sub-series are as follows:

(3.1) Research files, data, and instruments, circa 1968-1984, undated; (3.2) Case files of clinical patients, 1978-1984; (3.3) Sound recordings of clinical interviews, consultations, and treatments, 1975-1988; (3.4) Video recordings of clinical interviews, consultations, and treatments, circa 196074-1983; (3.5) Administrative files, circa 1972-1991; (3.6) Working papers and publications, circa 1975-1989, 2006; (3.7) Sound recordings of administrative and professional material, 1972-1984, 1997 (3.8) Video recordings of presentations, demonstrations, and interviews, circa 1970-1990.

The following sub-series are restricted due to the presence of personal health information (PHI) and personally-identifiable information (PII): (3.2) until 2064; (3.3) until 2068; (3.4) until 2063. Any additional restrictions are noted at the item level.

Series 4: Community Support Systems of Haitian Immigrants, circa 1973-1988

6.8 Linear feet

Series 4 consists of material documenting Garrison's research into the community health practices of the Haitian population of the greater New York City area (predominantly New York City and Newark, New Jersey) with the College/University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (C/UMDNJ) and Columbia University (CU). The series includes administrative files, case vignettes, correspondence, data and tabulations, field notes, financial documents, forms, grant applications, linguistic glossaries, presentations and workshop notes, publications, research policies and protocols, surveys, and working papers.

Garrison worked as the Principal Director administering the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) grant, "Community Support Systems of Haitian Immigrants" (referred to throughout her records variously as "Haitian grant," "Haitian project," and "CSSHI"). The grant was first awarded to CMDNJ under Garrison's oversight of the Inner-City Support Systems Project. The project director of the grant at UMDNJ was Linda Gutwirth, and many of the materials in this series were created or compiled by her. The CSSHI grant was transferred to Columbia University in 1984. Of note in this series are the case study vignettes, in both draft and final forms, that discuss the experience of various patients and healers as well as Haitian Vodun (Vodou/Voodoo) practices.

Related material can be found in Series 3: Inner-City Support Systems Project. Additional material related to publications made from CSSHI-gathered data can be found in Series 5: Publications, manuscripts, and associated research files.

Series 4 is arranged into 3 sub-series: (4.1) Research data, field notes, and analysis, circa 1973-1987, undated; (4.2) Sound recordings, 1983-1986; (4.3) Administrative files, 1980-1988.

Certain materials in this series are restricted due to the presence of personally-identifiable information (PII). The restricted materials are noted in the following inventory and have been removed to box 59.

4.1: Research data, field notes, and analysis, circa 1973-1987, undated

Series 5: Publications, manuscripts, and associated research files, circa 1960-2005

5.63 Linear feet

Series 5 consists of material documenting Garrison's drafted and completed publications. The series includes copies of published articles in various formats; collections of citations; correspondence; references and reviews; manuscripts, drafts, and earlier versions of research papers; scholarly literature directly related to the manuscript topic; and associated research files of data, case studies, and collection instruments.

The research files in this series reflect research done throughout Garrison's career and are directly related to material in Series 1 (Lincoln Hospital Mental Health Services), Series 2 (Columbia University Bronx Research Center), Series 3 (Inner-City Support Systems Project), and Series 4 (Community Support Systems of Haitian Immigrants). Garrison's publications often reflected research completed under multiple grants and at different institutions. The research files included in this series were kept separately by Garrison alongside her manuscripts and drafts. That distinction has been maintained by the archivist.

Related research material can be found in Series 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Series 5 is arranged into 3 sub-series: (5.1) Publications, circa 1974-1985; (5.2) Citations, references, and planning files, circa 1974-1991, 2002-2005; (5.3) Manuscript drafts and associated research files, circa 1960-1977, circa 1991, undated.

Any restrictions in this series are noted at the item level.

Series 6: Presentations, workshops, and conferences, 1969-2000

3.78 Linear feet

Series 6 consists of material documenting the presentations, conferences, and workshops Garrison attended, arranged, or participated in. The series includes correspondence; agendas and programs; brochures; draft presentations; annotated papers; handouts; and travel memoranda.

Garrison attended regional, national, and international conferences across a variety of disciplines including mental health care, psychiatry, and psychoanalysis, as well as anthropology and cultural studies. She frequently presented her research related to community-based support systems in workshops or seminar presentations at universities, hospitals, and research or community centers in the greater New York City area. Of note in this series are the materials related to a presentation at the National Institute of Mental Health Staff College in December 1980, "Natural Support Systems in Minority Communities." Much of the material in this series relates explicitly to research completed under the Inner-City Support Systems (ICSS) grant at the College/University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey. However (as with her manuscripts and publications), Garrison frequently referenced earlier Bronx-based research alongside her ICSS data.

Related material can be found in Series 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5.

The materials in Series 6 are arranged chronologically by the date of the presentation or conference, which is indicated in parenthesis alongside the title.

Series 7: Professional development files, 1955-2008

3.78 Linear feet

Series 7 consists of material documenting Garrison's professional commitments to anthropology and applied medical anthropology distinct from her grant-funded research and her publications. The series includes Garrison's student files at Columbia University in the 1960s and 1970s; her teaching files regarding the Columbia University class "Problems and Methods in Anthropology," which she took over from Margaret Mead in 1979; her curriculum vitae and resumes from her anthropological and pre-anthropological career; and notes and correspondence regarding various clinical and anthropological consultations she undertook in the 1980s and 1990s. Of note in the series are the correspondence, reports, and notes regarding Jimmy Carter's President's Commission on Mental Health and the Commission's four-volume report (1978) to which Garrison contributed case studies.

Series 8: Personal files, circa 1930-2009

4.32 Linear feet

Series 8 consists of personal biographical, medical, and historical material documenting Vivian Garrison and Conrad Arensberg's lives. It includes personal Garrison records, including a copy of her birth certificate; driver's license; marriage certificate and license; passports; Garrison family genealogy; and notes, reflections, and medical records from her time spent in a psychiatric hospital. The series also includes correspondence with friends and family, the bulk of which is with Conrad Arensberg's three adult children (Cornel, Emily, and Meg/Margaret) and grandchildren.

Most of the material in this series documents Arensberg's life and death through records kept and curated by Garrison. The series contains Garrison's "archive" of personal Arensberg materials, including his birth certificate and passports; bibliographies; class directories; correspondence; obituaries and memorials; and personal biographies created by close family and friends. The bulk of the Conrad Arensberg material relates to his medical history, including medical records; correspondence with physicians, organizations, and colleagues; care plans; notes; and handwritten logs kept by Garrison and by Arensberg's various nurses and aides. Garrison kept meticulous records regarding her husband's medical condition following a traumatic car accident in December 1991, when Arensberg was 81. The records document Arensberg's rehabilitation from his accident, as well as his decline in the last years of his life. The records also document Garrison's reflections as a wife, caregiver, and medically-trained anthropologist. Arensberg's official medical records, as well as Garrison's correspondence with her husband's physicians, have been retained to provide context for Garrison's notes and analysis.

The series also contains correspondence, notes, tests and reports, newspaper clippings, and newsletters related to Garrison and Arensberg's historic home in Rumson, New Jersey: the Morris-Salter-Hartshorn-Tredwell House, commonly referred to as the Tredwell House.

In notes and labels, Garrison often abbreviated her husband's name to "CMA."

Series 8 is divided into the following 5 sub-series: (8.1) Vivian Garrison biographical files, 1958-2007; (8.2) Correspondence, circa 1977-2009; (8.3) Conrad M. Arensberg biographical files, circa 1930-2007; (8.4) Conrad M. Arensberg medical files, 1991-1997; (8.5) Morris-Salter-Hartshorn-Tredwell House files, 1984-2007.

Due to the personal and medical nature of the material, sub-series (8.4) is restricted until 2057.

Series 9: Scholarly literature and bibliographies, circa 1970s-1980s, undated

12.48 Linear feet

Series 9 consists of books, articles, newspaper clippings, and unpublished manuscripts collected and annotated by Garrison and others, including her husband, Conrad Arensberg. The series also contains topical bibliographies related to anthropological themes.

The bulk of the articles, newspaper clippings, and manuscripts in this series were likely part of a research library at the Inner-City Support Systems Project/the Resource Center for Multicultural Care and Prevention at the College/University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (see Series 3) maintained by Garrison, but it is unclear. Books retained were from Garrison's own library.

Of all the reprints, journals, and books that were transferred to the National Anthropological Archives, only the material that had archival value was retained in the archives - including annotated items, photocopies with accompanying notes, newspaper clippings, and rare/unpublished material.

Series 9 is arranged in 2 sub-series: (9.1) Articles, books, and journals, circa 1970s-1980s, undated; (9.2) Bibliographies, circa 1970s-1980s, undated.
