Biographical Note

Abraham Rosman was born in New York City in 1930. He earned his BA in anthropology from City College (1959) and PhD in anthropology from Yale (1962). His dissertation "Social Structure and Acculturation among the Kanuri of Northern Nigeria" was based on fieldwork conducted in 1956-1957. He was appointed Assistant Professor of Anthropology at Columbia University in 1962. He was a full professor at Barnard College from 1972 until his retirement in 1998.

Paula G. Rubel was born in The Bronx, New York in 1933. She earned her BA in psychology from Hunter College (1953) and her PhD in anthropology from Columbia University (1963). Her dissertation was based on fieldwork among an immigrant community of Russian Kalmyk Mongols in New Jersey. She was part of the faculty of Barnard College from 1965 until her retirement in 1989, becoming a full professor in 1974.

Rosman and Rubel were married 1971. They worked together throughout their careers, focusing their research on comparative studies and structural analysis of ritual exchange, kinship relations, power, social hierarchies, religion, and material culture. They studied kinship and exchange along the Pacific Northwest Coast, among pastoral groups in Iran and Afghanistan, and in New Guinea and New Ireland. They also studied ethnographic objects, tribal art, and the social world of museums, collectors, and dealers. Their partnership was collaborative, alternating first authorship with each publication. They were the authors of numerous monographs including Feasting with Mine Enemy: Rank and Exchange among Northwest Coast Societies (1971), Your Own Pigs You May Not Eat: A Comparative Study of New Guinea Societies (1978), The Tapestry of Culture: An Introduction to Cultural Anthropology (1981), and Collecting Tribal Art: How Northwest Coast Masks and Eastern Island Lizard Men Became Art (2012).

Rubel died in 2018 and Rosman died in 2020. Their final book, Aliens on Our Shores: An Anthropological History of New Ireland Papua New Guinea 1616-1914, was published posthumously in 2021.

Scope and Contents

The collection consists of materials documenting Rosman and Rubel's research, writing, and teaching, and reflects their interests in ritualized exchange systems, kinship, social organization, and material culture. The bulk of the collection documents their fieldwork and research among the Kanuri of Nigeria, Kalmyk Mongols in New Jersey, Northwest Coast and Athabaskan societies, pastoral nomads of Iran and Afghanistan, peoples of New Guinea and New Ireland, as well as research on art, ethnographic objects, museums, and collecting. The collection includes field notes, historical and archival research and notes, bibliographies, correspondence, writings, maps, photographs, and sound recordings.

Please note that the contents of the collection and the language and terminology used reflect the context and culture of the time of its creation. As an historical document, its contents may be at odds with contemporary views and terminology and considered offensive today. The information within this collection does not reflect the views of the Smithsonian Institution or National Anthropological Archives, but is available in its original form to facilitate research.

Arrangement

The collection is arranged into three series: (1) Fieldwork and research, 1952-2004; (2) Conference papers, 1970-1995; and (3) Teaching, circa 1980-circa 1990.

Series 1: Fieldwork and research, 1952-2004

Arrangement: This series is arranged into eight sub-series: (1) Nigeria, 1952-1963; (2) Kalymk Mongols, 1960-1971; (3) Iran and Afganistan, 1962-1975; (4) Northwest Coast, circa 1968-1984; (5) New Guinea, 1971-1982; (6) Collecting tribal and oceanic art, 1989-2004; (7) Computer disks, undated; (8) Sound recordings, 1974-1991.

Scope and Contents: This series contains field notes, historical and archival research, correspondence, maps, photographs, sound recordings, and other materials relating to Rosman and Rubel's research interests. It includes materials related to Rosman's dissertation research in Nigeria, Rubel's dissertation research among a Kalmyk Mongol immigrant community in New Jersey, as well as their joint research in Iran and Afghanistan, the Pacific Northwest Coast, New Guinea and New Ireland, and research concerning collecting tribal and oceanic art.

Nigeria, 1952-1963

Scope and Contents: This sub-series consists of field notes, research, correspondence and other materials related to Abraham Rosman's fieldwork among the Kanuri of Northern Nigeria from 1956-1957. Rosman's dissertation, "Social Structure and Acculturation among the Kanuri of Northern Nigeria," was based on this fieldwork. Rosman's first wife, Bernice (née Lieberman) Rosman, accompanied him to the field and conducted her own her research in support of her PhD in pyschology.

The sub-series also contains some materials related to exploratory archaeological work at Birni Ngazargamo, Bornu Province, Nigeria.

Iran and Afghanistan, 1962-1975

Scope and Contents: This sub-series consists of field notes, correspondence, travel and budget research, reprints, clippings, maps, articles, and language studies relating to research in Iran and Afghanistan. There is some material documenting Rosman's interest in pursuing field work in Afghanistan in the early 1960s. The bulk of the material, however, is related to a research trip Rubel and Rosman took to Iran and Afghanistan in the Summer 1971. They explored the possibilities for fifteen months of field research the following year studying the nature of relationships between pastoral nomads and sedentary agriculturalists. The proposed research was not funded, and they spent the sabbatical year of 1972-1973 conducting library research at the University of Oxford.
