Citation

Scope and Contents

Original field notebooks from work among the Southern Arapaho in Oklahoma Territory, the Northern Arapaho in Wyoming, and the A'aninin or Atsina (Gros Ventre) in Montana. Contains extensive language material and notes on culture, including notes on acquisition of material culture now in the collection of the American Museum of Natural History in New York. In addition to language material on Arapaho and Gros Ventre, there are notes on two other Arapahoan languages, Besawunena and Nawathinehena (see Handbook of North American Indians, vol. 13, pp. 74-76.). Annotations by Kroeber indicate that notes on Assinboine were removed before the remaining books were sent to the BAE.

In 1914, Alfred Kroeber described the material he was transferring as follows: Nos. 1-14 are from work with the Southern Arapaho in 1899. Nos. 15-20 were not assigned. Nos. 21-22, 24-28 are from work with the Northern Arapaho in 1900. Numbers 41-47 and 49 are from work with the Gros Ventre in 1901.

Also 120 page typescript on Arapaho dialects and five copies of relevant letters regarding transfer of the material. These have been assigned Nos. 29 and 30, but are not part of the original series of field notebooks.
