Compendio y Descripción de las Indias Occidentales, 1921 ?
2,000 Pages

Creator: de Espinosa, Antonio Vasquez, Fray
Clark, C. U. (submitter)

Language: Undetermined.

Notes: NAA MS.3236-a

A comprehensive report on Central and South America, including New Mexico, some on California, a part of the West Indian Islands, and the Philippines (then under the Vice-Royalty of New Spain). Gives descriptions of the important cities and towns; descriptions of the countries, the Indians, customs and habits, lists of ecclesiastics and other officials, with their salaries; list of the gun armament at El Morro and other fortresses in Cuba; showing Indian population of towns, especially in Yucatan. Gives summary of Conquest history, with a bit of pre-Conquest history. Typed copy made by C. U. Clark from original Manuscript.

Original in Vatican Library.

Speaks authoritatively, and material on the Indians of South America is already in demand. Mentioned several times by Spanish biographers, but entire work has been lost for practically three centuries. Was in process of printing when stopped by death of Espinosa in 1630.
