Scope and Contents

The collection consists of a scrapbook created by Richard K. Cautley, an Englishman who travelled in the United States from 1860-1862. The scrapbook includes photographs, clippings, watercolor sketches, menus, and various types of souvenirs. The photographs include views made around English cities and towns including Chatham, Peterborough, York, Rochester (especially castles, abbeys, and cathedrals); St. Paul, Minnesota; and Cleveland, Ohio. There are also photographs of Dakota men and women and members of Cautley's family.

Please note that the contents of the collection and the language and terminology used reflect the context and culture of the time of its creation. As an historical document, its contents may be at odds with contemporary views and terminology and considered offensive today. The information within this collection does not reflect the views of the Smithsonian Institution or National Anthropological Archives, but is available in its original form to facilitate research.
