Summary: These papers reflect the professional lives of Alice Cunningham Fletcher (1838-1923), an ethnologist with the Peabody Museum of Harvard and collaborator with the Bureau of American Ethnology, and Francis La Flesche (1856-1923), an anthropologist with the Bureau of American Ethnology. Due to the close professional and personal relationship of Fletcher and La Flesche, their papers have been arranged jointly. The papers cover the period from 1874 to 1939. Included in the collection is correspondence, personal diaries, lectures, field notes and other ethnographic papers, drafts, musical transcriptions, publications by various authors, maps and photographs.

Administrative Information

Acquisition Information

The papers of Alice Cunningham Fletcher and Francis La Flesche have been received from an undocumented number of sources. Portions of Fletcher's ethnographic papers were donated to the archives by Mrs. G. David Pearlman in memory of her husband in 1959.

Separated Materials

Ethnographic photographs from the collection have been catalogued by tribe in Photo Lot 24.

Glass plate negatives from the collection have been catalogued by tribe in the BAE glass negatives collection (Negative Numbers 4439-4515).

Related Materials

Additional material related to the professional work of Fletcher and La Flesche in the National Anthropological Archives may be found among the correspondence of the Bureau of American Ethnology (BAE) and the records of the Anthropological Society of Washington.

Sound recordings made by Fletcher and La Flesche can be found at the Library of Congress. The National Archives Records Administration hold the Records of the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), including those relating to allotments in severally for the Nez Perce by Alice Fletcher. The Nebraska Historical Society has diaries, letters and clippings regarding the La Flesche family, including correspondence of Francis La Flesche and Fletcher. The Radcliffe College Archives holds a manuscript account of Alice Fletcher's four summers with the Nez Perce (1889-1892).
Correspondence between Fletcher and F. W. Putnam is also located at the Peabody Museum Archives of Harvard University.

Available Formats

Portions of the collection have been microfilmed, including the entirety of Fletcher's incoming correspondence.

Processing Information

In encoding the finding aid for upload into the Smithsonian Online Virtual Archives (SOVA) in 2017, the archivist re-assigned series and subseries numbers to the categories in this collection. The three "collection" hierarchies assigned by the original archivist were re-labeled series (Series 1: Alice Cunningham Fletcher papers; Series 2: Francis La Flesche papers; Series 3: Papers relating to the anthropological research of Alice Fletcher and Francis La Flesche). Nested series under those divisions were re-labeled as subseries, though retaining the original numbering system (i.e., series 23 became subseries 3.23).

Also in 2017, index file boxes and oversize boxes were re-numbered consecutively to other boxes in the collection. Index Files #1-7 became boxes 34-40. Oversize boxes 1 and 2 became boxes 41 and 42.

Scope and Contents

These papers reflect the professional lives of Alice Cunningham Fletcher (1838-1923), an ethnologist with the Peabody Museum of Harvard University and collaborator with the Bureau of American Ethnology, and Francis La Flesche (1856-1923), an anthropologist with the Bureau of American Ethnology. Due to the close professional and personal relationship of Fletcher and La Flesche, their papers have been arranged jointly. The papers cover the period from 1874 to 1939. Included in the collection is correspondence, personal diaries, lectures, field notes and other ethnographic papers, drafts, musical transcriptions, publications by various authors, maps and photographs.

The papers have been divided into three general categories: the papers of Alice Cunningham Fletcher, the papers of Francis La Flesche, and the ethnographic research of Fletcher and La Flesche. The first two categories represent personal and professional materials of Fletcher and La Flesche. The third section holds the majority of the ethnographic material in the collection.

Of primary concern are Fletcher and La Flesche's ethnological investigations conducted among the Plains Indians, particularly the Omaha and Osage. Fletcher's Pawnee field research and her allotment work for the Bureau of Indian Affairs among the Omaha, Nez Perce, and Winnebago are represented in the collection. A substantial portion of the ethnographic material reflects Fletcher and La Flesche's studies of Native American music. Much of the correspondence in the papers of Fletcher and La Flesche is rich with information about the situation of Omaha peoples in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

Also included in the collection are documents related to Fletcher's work with the Archaeological Institute of America and the School for American Archaeology. Additionally, substantial amounts of Fletcher's early anthropological and historical research are found among her correspondence, lectures, anthropological notes, and early field diaries. La Flesche's literary efforts are also generously represented.

Arrangement

The collection is divided into the following 3 series: 1) Alice Cunningham Fletcher papers, 1873-1925; 2) Francis La Flesche papers, 1881-1930; 3) Papers relating to the anthropological research of Alice Fletcher and Francis La Flesche, 1877-1939.

Series 1: Alice Cunningham Fletcher papers is divided into the following 10 subseries: 1.1) Incoming correspondence, 1874-1923 (bulk 1882-1923); 1.2) Outgoing correspondence, 1873-1921; 1.3) Correspondence on specific subjects, 1881-1925; 1.4) Correspondence between Fletcher and La Flesche, 1895-1922; 1.5) Publications, 1882-1920; 1.6) Organizational records, 1904-1921; 1.7) General anthropological notes, undated; 1.8) Lectures, circa 1878-1910; 1.9) Diaries, 1881-1922; 1.10) Biography and memorabilia, 1878-1925.

Series 2: Francis La Flesche papers is divided into the following 6 subseries: 2.11) General correspondence, 1890-1929; 2.12) Correspondence on specific subjects, 1881-1930; 2.13) Publications, 1900-1927; 2.14) Literary efforts, undated; 2.15) Personal diaries, 1883-1924; 2.16) Biography and memorabilia, 1886-1930.

Container Listing

Series 1: Alice Cunningham Fletcher papers, 1873-1925

Scope and Contents: The papers of Alice Fletcher include materials that reflect her allotment work among Native Americans and her many anthropological investigations and organizational affiliations. Additionally, Fletcher's early ethnographic research, conducted under the tutelage of F. W. Putnam at Harvard University's Peabody Museum, is well represented. Little material predating 1879 can be found in the series.

Items of interest include Fletcher's early correspondence in which she outlines her views on the contemporary problems facing Native Americans, as well as her early historical lectures, which illustrate the evolution of her interest in ethnology and archaeology.

Materials related to Fletcher's ethnographic work among the Nez Perce, Omaha, Pawnee, Ponca, and Winnebago tribes, as well as her government-sponsored trip to Alaska, may be found in series 3.

Arrangement: Series 1 is divided into the following 10 subseries: 1.1) Incoming correspondence, 1874-1923 (bulk 1882-1923); 1.2) Outgoing correspondence, 1873-1921; 1.3) Correspondence on specific subjects, 1881-1925; 1.4) Correspondence between Fletcher and La Flesche, 1895-1922; 1.5) Publications, 1882-1920; 1.6) Organizational records, 1904-1921; 1.7) General anthropological notes, undated; 1.8) Lectures, circa 1878-1910; 1.9) Diaries, 1881-1922; 1.10) Biography and memorabilia, 1878-1925.

1.1: Incoming correspondence, 1874-1923 (bulk 1882-1923)

Scope and Contents: Correspondents include government officials, philanthropists and others involved in contemporary Native American issues, informants, colleagues and collaborators.

Many items in this subseries reflect Fletcher's involvement in contemporary Native American issues. The majority of correspondence from 1881 to 1891 relates to Fletcher's efforts to gain property rights and education for Native Americans and the Omaha tribe in particular. Also of interest are letters from 1885 and 1886 regarding the Omaha tribe's plans for self-government.

Other materials in this subseries reflect Fletcher's ethnographic work and professional affiliations. Ample correspondence from informants and colleagues is found from 1891 to 1918.

The subjects of some of this correspondence may overlap with items in subseries 1.3. For more information and materials regarding Fletcher's involvement with the School of American Archaeology and her relationship with Edgar Hewett, see subseries 1.6. Further correspondence from Fletcher's years as a Special Agent for the Bureau of Indian Affairs may be found elsewhere in the collection (subseries 1.3).

Letters from Francis La Flesche are located in a separate subseries (1.4), but letters between Fletcher and other La Flesche family members, including Rosalie La Flesche Farley, are located in this subseries, particularly between the dates 1885 and 1887.

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically. Dates are non-inclusive.

1.2: Outgoing correspondence, 1873-1921

Scope and Contents: Fletcher rarely retained complete copies of letters that she sent; therefore the bulk of these materials are incomplete handwritten drafts.

Material dated between 1881 and 1892 was largely written by Fletcher while she was pursuing field work and government allotment and may overlap with items in subseries 1.3 relating to Fletcher's work at the Omaha, Nez Perce, and Winnebago reservations.

The majority of the items between 1898 and 1911 reflect Fletcher's anthropological work and professional affiliations. More information on Fletcher's research on earth lodges, as illustrated in her 1898 correspondence with "Lassie" (E. Jane Gay), is located elsewhere in the collection (subseries 3.18).

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically. Dates are non-inclusive.

1.3: Correspondence on specific subjects, 1881-1925

Scope and Contents: This subseries was created to encompass correspondence that was separated from the rest of Fletcher's letters. Materials have been divided into five subject headings, covering Fletcher's allotment work for the Omaha (1881-1884), Winnebago (1887-1889), and Nez Perce (1889-1894); the theft of the Omaha sacred buffalo hide; and the anthropology department at the University of California, Berkeley.

Fletcher's allotment work consisted of distributing and assigning plots of reservation land, previously held communally, to private Native American individuals under the provisions of various Congressional bills. The bulk of the allotment correspondence is between Fletcher and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. Included are her instructions, inquiries regarding spurious land claims, and updates on her work. There is no incoming correspondence for the Nez Perce allotment. Other materials relating to allotment, including record books of land claims, are included in this subseries.

In 1898 the Omaha sacred hide was stolen from James Robinson. Francis La Flesche was involved in the search for item and is included in this correspondence.

In 1901, Phoebe Apperson Hearst funded a new Anthropology museum and department at the University of California, Berkeley, and Fletcher was named a member of its Advisory Committee. This section reflects her brief involvement in the new department.

Ethnographic materials are filed under series 3: for the Omaha, see subseries 3.21; for the Winnebago, see subseries 3.26; for the Nez Perce, see subseries 3.20.

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by subject.

1.4: Correspondence between Fletcher and La Flesche, 1895-1922

Scope and Contents: These materials reflect the professional and personal relationship of Fletcher and La Flesche. When the two were separated, they wrote each other regularly and often, even as much as twice a day.

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically. Dates are non-inclusive.

1.5: Publications, 1882-1920

Scope and Contents: This subseries includes early articles on Native American affairs, abstracts from proceedings of scientific meetings, and some scholarly works. The drafts of published materials are primarily Fletcher's articles on Indian music reviews of other individuals' publications. The draft of Indian Songs and Music includes an announcement for a lecture which appears to be basis of this draft.

This subseries also encompasses Fletcher's unpublished fictionalized account of her early fieldwork with the Omaha tribe and Rosebud Sioux.

Arrangement: The material is arranged by reprints, drafts, and unpublished drafts, ordered chronologically therein. Dates are non-inclusive.

Box 5A

1.6: Organizational records, 1904-1921

Scope and Contents: Materials have been divided into three subjects to encompass the act to preserve American antiquities, the Archaeological Institute of America (AIA), and the Colorado Cliff Dwellings Association. Materials include correspondence, committee proposals and Congressional documents.

Fletcher was actively involved in the business and development of the Archaeological Institute of America throughout her career. Of particular interest is rich information in the form of correspondence and newspaper clippings on the character defamation controversy between Edgar Hewett and Franz Boas in 1911. Related materials are located among Fletcher's incoming correspondence in 1911 (subseries 1.1).

The formation of the School of American Archaeology (later the School of American Research), which Fletcher avidly supported, created friction between herself and F. W. Putnam. These issues are reflected in the folder relating to the formation of the school, the contents of which consist of drafts of letters from Fletcher to Putnam and Charles Bowditch.

The Colorado Cliff Dwellings material may relate to Fletcher's work for the preservation of antiquities.

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by subject.

1.7: General anthropological notes, undated

Scope and Contents: Much of this subseries consists of fragmentary reading notes and other unidentifiable materials, some of which may have been intended for publication. The majority of these papers likely date to Fletcher's early ethnographic research which she undertook in the late 1870s and early 1880s at Harvard University's Peabody Museum. The folder labeled "General" consists of materials kept together by Fletcher and may have been research for her early anthropological lectures, particularly those on the mound builders (see subseries 1.8).

1.8: Lectures, circa 1878-1910

Scope and Contents: This subseries encompasses lecture tours and individual addresses. The dates of many of Fletcher's lectures are unknown, and the archivist used the content to assign tentative dates. Some papers may have been manuscripts for publication.

Fletcher's early lecture tours, "Lectures on America" (circa 1878-1879) and "Lectures on Ancient America" (circa 1879), were primarily historical in content, reflecting her early studies in the history of man. There appears to be some overlap between individual lectures from the "Ancient America" group; two different lecture tours were given under the same title (see "Lecture series announcements").
Fletcher's lectures on Armenia (1894-1895) illustrate her interest in the oppression of Armenians which she encountered on a trip to Europe in 1894.

The later lectures in this subseries were delivered to a number of organizations, from the Literary Society in Washington to the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically. Lecture series are placed before single lectures. Dates are non-inclusive.

1.9: Diaries, 1881-1922

Scope and Contents: This material consists of Fletcher's field diaries of 1881, as well as her personal diaries and address books.

In 1881, Fletcher ventured into the field for the first time, traveling to the Omaha and Rosebud reservations in Nebraska and South Dakota. Her field diaries from this trip contain scant ethnographic material but are rich in personal insights and include many passages relevant to Fletcher's interest in the plight of Native Americans. Field diaries include sketches Fletcher drew along her trip; drawings which were removed from the notebooks have been filed directly behind them. Francis La Flesche copied the majority of the field diaries and this subseries includes two copies of his transcripts.

Alice Fletcher kept a small daily record of her activities when home from the field. These items provide a comprehensive account of Fletcher's affairs throughout her career. Newspaper clippings which Fletcher kept in personal diaries have been removed, photocopied and placed in a separate folder with their original location noted. Other field diaries may be found in series 3, filed according to tribe.

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically.

Box 11 | Field Diary, 1881 September-November |
| Notes: | Item was previously misdated as November-December 1881. |
1.10: Biography and memorabilia, 1878-1925

Scope and Contents: This subseries encompasses materials Fletcher saved as memorabilia as well as those documents and items that reflect her life and scientific work. Few of the items in this subseries were produced by Fletcher; a short autobiographical sketch is included.

Fletcher saved items from expositions and organizational meetings she attended, illustrating her various interests from women's organizations to social clubs and scientific societies. The majority of institutional records in this subseries encompasses the 1896 meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which Fletcher attended as Vice-President, as well as the St. Louis Exposition of 1904.

Reviews dominate the clippings about Fletcher's life and work, in particular those of Indian Story and Song. Unfortunately, many of the identifying papers for these articles were removed. They have been preserved in the folder labeled "Clippings Bureau."

In 1907, Alice Fletcher met Leo Tolstoy and wrote an account of the experience. Other Tolstoy materials include correspondence with and articles by Tolstoy admirers.

Alice Fletcher also collected and wrote poetry. Few of these items are dated.

The folder labeled "Collected clippings" includes only materials that do not relate directly to Fletcher's life or work, including obituaries of friends, notices of women's organizational meetings, and articles about various exhibits at the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893.

Miscellaneous materials include invitation cards from Phoebe Apperson Hearst, hotel bills from Fletcher's 1907 trip to Europe, sparse financial records, photographs, and a notebook outlining her filing system.

Arrangement: The material is arranged by subject, chronologically therein. Dates are non-inclusive.

Return to Table of Contents
Series 2: Francis La Flesche papers, 1881-1930

Scope and Contents: The papers of Francis La Flesche include materials that reflect his anthropological research and organizational affiliations, as well as his continual involvement in Omaha tribal affairs. Items of interest include La Flesche's short story manuscripts and his daily diaries.

Materials related to La Flesche's ethnographic work among the Omaha, Osage and Ponca tribes may be found in series 3.

Arrangement: Series 2 is divided into the following 6 subseries: 2.11) General correspondence, 1890-1929; 2.12) Correspondence on specific subjects, 1881-1930; 2.13) Publications, 1900-1927; 2.14) Literary efforts, undated; 2.15) Personal diaries, 1883-1924; 2.16) Biography and memorabilia, 1886-1930.

2.11: General correspondence, 1890-1929

Scope and Contents: These items are primarily professional in nature. Further materials relating to La Flesche's interest in Osage sacred bundles are located elsewhere (subseries 2.12 and 3.22).

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically. Dates are non-inclusive. Includes mixed incoming and outgoing correspondence.

2.12: Correspondence on specific subjects, 1881-1930
Scope and Contents: This subseries encompasses items which were separated topically from La Flesche's general correspondence.

Materials relating to La Flesche's employment reflect his work as a clerk in the Office of Indian Affairs (1881-1910) and as an ethnologist for the Bureau of American Ethnology (1910-1929). Items include La Flesche's instructions for work under both bureaus, records of his field expenses for the BAE (particularly 1910-1912), and updates on his ethnographic work.

La Flesche's fictionalized account of young Indian boys at school, The Middle Five, was published in 1900. Materials under this subject heading include business letters from his publisher and personal letters from friends and fans. Many of the latter items are addressed to Alice Fletcher.

Material under the headings of La Flesche family and Omaha tribal affairs reflect La Flesche's concern about land possession and welfare on the Omaha reservation.

La Flesche spent many years studying Osage sacred bundles owned by museums, private collectors and Native Americans. For more material on sacred packs, see La Flesche's general correspondence with Harry L. George and George H. Pepper, 1915-1916 in his general correspondence (subseries 2.11). Additional materials on sacred bundles may be found among La Flesche’s general correspondence (subseries 2.11) and Osage ethnography (subseries 3.22).

In 1916, La Flesche sought the results of George Pettigrew's mound survey in the Sioux Falls region, which had likely come to his attention through Alice Fletcher. Fletcher corresponded with George Pettigrew in the 1890s (these letters are included in this subseries) and La Flesche corresponded with his descendants in order to obtain Pettigrew's findings. Photographs and diagrams of the Pettigrew survey are located elsewhere (subseries 3.25).

In 1918, the Missouri Historical Society commissioned La Flesche to complete a dictionary of Osage which was ultimately published by the Bureau of American Ethnology in 1932. Drafts of the dictionary are located in a separate subseries (3.22).

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by subject. Dates are non-inclusive. Correspondence is mixed incoming and outgoing.

2.13: Publications, 1900-1927

Scope and Contents: Included is a draft of "Alice Fletcher's Scientific Work." The reprints and articles include La Flesche's addresses and articles on Indian policy issues.
Manuscripts and materials for La Flesche's Omaha and Osage texts are located elsewhere in the collection (subseries 3.21 and 3.22).

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically. Dates are non-inclusive.

2.14: Literary efforts, undated

Scope and Contents: The majority of these materials are brief short stories about Native American life. Most range in length from one to three pages and are unfinished. Some of the tales about young Indian boys may be autobiographical in nature; others may have been adapted from mythology La Flesche collected in the field. La Flesche commonly used the same character names in multiple stories; as a result, the relationships between tales are unclear.

Arrangement: The material is arranged alphabetically by title.

2.16: Biography and memorabilia, 1886-1930

Scope and Contents: Items include a short autobiographical sketch, La Flesche's law degrees and his certificate of membership to the Freemasons. Clippings include reviews of The Middle Five that Fletcher may have collected for La Flesche.

Series 3: Papers relating to the anthropological research of Alice Fletcher and Francis La Flesche, 1877-1939

Scope and Contents: The following materials represent Fletcher and La Flesche's ethnographic work and publications dating from 1882 to 1939. Ethnographic materials have been arranged alphabetically by subject. Although some of the materials in this section represent work by only Fletcher or La Flesche, they have been filed together to maintain consistency with the papers' prior arrangement.

This section also includes the personal photographs of Fletcher and La Flesche.

3.17: Alaska, 1886-1887

Scope and Contents: Under the direction of the U.S. Office of Education, Alice Fletcher ventured to Alaska in 1886 and provided the government with a report on "Indian Education and Civilization" which summarized her findings and recommendations for Native education in the territory. Her field notebooks include a census, a petition of teachers for better native education and loose notes and drawings from the voyage. Also included is correspondence between Sheldon Jackson and William Thaw, dated 1883, regarding plans for establishing the trip to Alaska.

Fletcher conducted ethnographic research on her voyage, and, following her return, communicated with informants about Alaskan totems.

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by document type.

3.18: Earth lodges, 1882, 1898-1899

Scope and Contents: This subseries reflects Fletcher's research for an intended joint publication with Washington Matthews on earth lodges (see Fletcher's incoming correspondence, 1898, subseries 1.1). Further Pawnee and Omaha materials are located elsewhere in the collection (subseries 3.21 and 3.23).

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by document type.

Box 18
- Notes from informants, 1898-1899

3.19: Music, 1888-1918

Scope and Contents: The majority of this material is musical transcriptions of native songs and ceremonies. In many cases Fletcher and La Flesche did not label the tribe or otherwise identify the sheet music. Those items not clearly related to any publications have simply been labeled as sheet music.

The Omaha and Osage tribes are most fully represented in this subseries, although a few transcriptions of other tribes (Nez Perce, Ponca, Winnebago, etc.) are included.

Fletcher acquired J. C. Fillmore and Franz Boas’ musical transcriptions of non-Native American peoples from the World’s Columbian Exposition in 1893. This material is located at the end of the subseries. Many composers created popular adaptations of Native American music; Fletcher's collection of these materials is located at the end of this subseries.

Arrangement: The material is arranged by document type; by tribe and date therein. Dates are non-inclusive.

3.20: Nez Perce, 1889-1909

Scope and Contents: Fletcher collected ethnographic information while allotting land to the Nez Perce for the Bureau of Indian Affairs between 1889 and 1892. She never published on the Nez Perce, although she did maintain correspondence with some informants for years after finishing her allotment work.

This subseries includes items sent to Fletcher by Kate McBeth, a missionary among the Nez Perce who provided Fletcher with much information. For other letters from Kate McBeth, see Fletcher's incoming correspondence (subseries 1.1).

In 1926, Francis La Flesche submitted Alice Fletcher's manuscript on the Nez Perce to J. W. Fewkes for publication by the Bureau of American Ethnology; Fewkes decided against publishing the material (Fewkes to La Flesche, 10-4-26, in La Flesche general correspondence). F. W. Hodge appears to have annotated one of the drafts.

Fletcher's informant, Billy Williams, drew a map titled "Nez Perce Country," which is located in the map case (drawer 1, photo mounted in corner, neg. no. 55,020). The collection also includes four negatives of Williams (BAE neg. nos. 55,021 a, b, c).

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by document type.

3.21: Omaha, 1882-1922

Scope and Contents: Those materials filed under "General papers" encompass items that cannot be definitively identified as field notes or drafts of published works. They include lectures and other materials on subjects such as Omaha child life, the legend of the sacred pole, and items that may have formed the basis for Fletcher and La Flesche's joint publication, The Omaha Tribe.

Photographs of ethnographic subjects are filed separately in NAA Photo Lot 24. Music of the Omaha tribe is located elsewhere in the collection (subseries 3.19). Omaha allotment correspondence is located in subseries 1.3. For materials relating to the theft of the Omaha sacred buffalo hide, see subseries 1.3.

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by document type.

3.22: Osage, 1896-1939

Scope and Contents: La Flesche devoted a large amount of his field work to the study of Osage rituals, culminating in a three part monograph, The Osage Tribe. La Flesche appears to have saved intact only those parts of his drafts that were not ultimately published. These materials, including lyrical translations and miscellaneous notes, are filed according to their respective publications.

La Flesche's War Ceremony and Peace Ceremony of the Osage was published posthumously; because he conducted the research for this text over a number of years and the date of completion is unknown, manuscript materials have been filed by publication date.

La Flesche's Osage research dominated much of his career and many references to the tribe may be found among his correspondence. Further information on Osage sacred bundles, including their relationship to tattooing rites, is located elsewhere in the collection (subseries 2.12).

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by document type.

3.23: Pawnee, 1897-1910

Scope and Contents: Although Fletcher published a monograph on the Pawnee, few of her field notes for the Ha-ko ceremony are preserved. Two field notebooks including some Pawnee materials, dated September 1895 and June 1898, are located with the Omaha ethnographic materials in subseries 3.21.

James Murie was Fletcher's primary Pawnee informant and co-authored The Hako: A Pawnee Ceremony. For more ethnographic information relating to the Pawnee, see Fletcher's incoming correspondence from Murie, 1898-1904 (subseries 1.1).

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by document type.

3.25: Sioux, 1877-1896

Scope and Contents: Many items in this subseries reflect Fletcher and La Flesche's research on the Sioux Sun Dance, conducted from 1882 to 1896. Fletcher prepared a manuscript documenting a Sun Dance she witnessed in 1882. Fletcher's field notebook also includes drawings and notes about the Sioux elk mystery.
Avidly opposed to the misrepresentation of Native ceremony by the uninformed, Fletcher composed an undated letter in response to an exaggerated account of the Sioux Sun Dance which is included in the folder "General papers."

Fletcher and La Flesche also sought information about George Pettigrew's mound excavation near Sioux Falls. Correspondence regarding these materials is located elsewhere in the collection (subseries 2.12).

Arrangement: The material is arranged chronologically by document type. Dates are non-inclusive.

3.26: Other tribes, 1882-1922

Scope and Contents: This subseries encompasses the slight amount of information that Fletcher and La Flesche collected on other Native American tribes. Much of the material in this subseries reflects their field work among the Ponca and the Winnebago, some of which yielded information used in The Omaha Tribe. Other field notes illustrate Fletcher and La Flesche's interest in the Sun Dance among different tribes. In addition, this subseries includes miscellaneous reading notes.

Further materials on the Sun Dance are located in subseries 3.25.

Arrangement: The material is arranged alphabetically by tribe. Dates are non-inclusive.
