Biographical Note

The Keystone View Company was established in 1892 in Meadville, Pennsylvania, by B. L. Singley, who served as sole photographer for the company until 1897. In 1898, the company developed an Education Department that produced boxed sets of images and informative text illustrating culture, industry, commerce and politics world-wide. By 1905, Keystone had expanded to become the largest stereographic company in the world. Mast Development Company purchased Keystone in 1963 and closed the Meadville manufacturing site in 1972.

Scope and Contents

Stereoview of a Turumu village and people in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.
