1 Item (5" x 8").
| Publisher: | Underwood & Underwood |
| Attributed name: | Ashton, Howard W. (photographer) |
| Language: | English |
| Notes: | RSN 22536 Silver gelatin on glass plate. Cf. RSN 22537 (video number 21772). Currently stored in box 3.2.24 [229]. Image shows photographer looking in camera while seated on an unfinished skyscraper. Another copy (original negative?) is in the Keystone-Mast Collection, California Museum of Photography, University of Calif., Riverside. A reproduction on a poster from that organization did not use a true stereo pair, however (two identical images instead of images showing a parallax difference), indicating that one image may be damaged or missing. The Keystone-Mast version uses same catalog number with variant caption: "Looking N. Up Fifth Ave. past Flatiron Building and Madison Square, New York." |

Shattered sanctuary of Aphaia (E.N.E.), pride of rich and powerful Greeks 2,500 years ago, Aegina. Active no. 9303 : stereo Interpositive, 1905
1 Item (5" x 8")
Publisher: Underwood & Underwood

Language: English.
Notes: RSN 23209
Silver gelatin on glass.
It is situated on the top of a hill covered with pines, in the NE part of the island, and is distinguished by the very good preservation of the Late Archaic temple. The sanctuary was initially dedicated to the cult of Aphaia, a local deity later assimilated by Athena. Finds dating from the prehistoric period--including figurines of breeding women--point to the conclusion that the cult was established very early, possibly in the beginning of the 2nd millennium B.C. Judging from votive offerings and, mostly, from building activity, the sanctuary flourished mainly in the Archaic period. At the end of the period, around 500 B.C. and a little later, the sanctuary assumed the monumental form it preserves today. ... Pottery evidence of the following periods suggests restricted activity on the site until the beginning of the 1st century B.C., when the sanctuary definitely declined. (Hellenic Ministry of Culture web site, 2/6/2002).

Man with goatee holds book open over map of Rome, while viewing stereograph in a stereoscope in a library filled with Underwood Travel System faux book slipcases for stereograph sets. The stereograph he views apparently shows St. Peter's Basilica, Vatican City, Rome. Details at the top of the image show that the room is merely a stage set. |
