Collection Overview

Repository:	Archives Center, National Museum of American History
Title:	Mergenthaler Linotype Company Records
Date:	1886-1997
Identifier:	NMAH.AC.0666
Creator:	Mergenthaler Linotype Co. (Creator)
Extent:	108 Cubic feet (257 boxes, 1 map-folder)
Language:	The collection is primarily in English, but multiple languages are present.
Summary:	These records document primarily the history of typeface development at the Mergenthaler Linotype Company of Baltimore, Maryland. The company supplied most of the typesetting machines used in the printing industry, both in America and worldwide. As changing technology ended the usefulness of the linotype machine the company pioneered new computer-driven, photo typesetting machines.

Biographical

Ottmar Mergenthaler (born May 11, 1854 in Hachtel (today: Bad Mergentheim), Kingdom of Württemberg; died October 28, 1899 in Baltimore, MD) was part of a large wave of German immigrants who sailed to the United States and settled in Baltimore between 1861 and 1910. He arrived in 1872, at eighteen years of age, and started working for his step-cousin August Hahl, who ran a workshop for electrical equipment and patent models. It was during Mergenthaler's time in Hahl's workshop that he first discovered his true passion: print technology. In 1885, thirteen years after landing in the United States, Mergenthaler was awarded a patent for a typesetting machine that eventually became known as the Linotype. The invention was the result of a decade of intense engagement with mechanized typesetting machines and the surrounding literature. The Linotype represented a major milestone in the history of printing, and, by extension, the larger history of Mergenthaler's time. His invention revolutionized the printing industry, making it possible to print faster and more efficiently than ever before. Ultimately, Mergenthaler's Linotype opened a new chapter in the history of mass communication and determined the path of the printing industry for the next century.

Mergenthaler Linotype Company was founded in the United States in 1886 to market the Linotype machine invented by Ottmar Mergenthaler.

Scope and Contents

The collection documents the development of typefaces and contains some company business records, including reports, memoranda, correspondence, marketing materials, and other business papers; and typeface examples.

Arrangement

The collection is arranged into 13 series. The series level arrangement scheme was imposed during processing to facilitate a more usable order for the records. Several series documenting typeface were combined into a single series, Series 2: Typefaces.

In most instances, original folder titles were retained. In circumstances where there was no folder title, the processing archivist created one derived from the nature of the materials.

Series 2: Office Files, 1908-1992

Scope and Contents: This series consists primarily of correspondence, documentation about certain typefaces, and published materials.

There is correspondence with Chauncey H. Griffith (1879-1956), vice president of typographical development for the company. Griffith was responsible for designing many of the typefaces used in publications and he developed a font for Devanagri, an Indian dialect, and Excelsior (1931).

Correspondence with Rudolph Ruzicka (1883-1978), is also present in this series. Ruzicka was a consultant to the Mergenthaler and designed typefaces, working closely with with Griffith.

Two files relate to William A. Dwiggin (1880-1956), a type designer and calligrapher who consulted with Mergenthaler beginning in 1929. Like Ruzicka, Dwiggin worked closely with Griffith.

Where known, correspondence with specific Mergenthaler staff or other individuals and/or organizations is noted. For example, Lorna Shanks, manager of typographic marketing.

The materials are arranged loosely alphabetically. Files about typefaces are arranged at the end of the series alphabetically. Researchers should consult Series 2: Typefaces for additional documentation and examples of typefaces developed by Mergenthaler.

Series 3: Typeface Materials, 1904-1991

Scope and Contents: This series consists of internal memoranda for the Typographic and Matrix Departments, correspondence, matrix inventory forms, position cards (detailing punch, cut, leverage, height, stem, and setting) and specimens and proofs for typeface developed and manufactured by the Mergenthaler Linotype Company.

The type specimens in this series refer to any presentation of a certain typeface to highlight its design and/or use.

The proofs or advanced proofs are primarily 6" x 9" sheets detailing the typeface name and size (e.g. height of capital and lower case letters) with examples. The date of the proof is located in the lower left hand corner. In some instances, proofs are annotated, presumably by staff in the Typography Department or were stamped "Approved" with a date and name of the staff approving.

This series is arranged alphabetically.

Subseries 3.3: Technical Development of Typeface, 1933-1985

Scope and Contents: This series consists of correspondence, internal memoranda, notes, keyboard and font position and layout charts, product literature, tracings and drawings for various fonts. There is documentation for the Teletypesetter Corporation of Chicago about a teletypesetter and perforator keyboard layout for Sweden and product literature for teletypesetter faces. Several files document the Variable Input Phototypesetter (VIP), a photomechanical typesetter which Mergenthaler introduced in 1970. The Xerox correspondence includes agreements and royalty information with Mergenthaler for the development and delivery of fonts.

Series 9: Executives' Records, 1956-1995

Scope and Contents: This series documents several of the corporate executives who managed aspects of typography at Mergenthaler. The materials consist primarily of internal memos, correspondence, typefont licensing agreements, trademark licenses, royalty payments, and routine activities such as moving furniture or using a company car.

Also included are meeting minutes and membership directory lists for the Association Typographique Internationale of which many Mergenthaler employees participated. These files contain the "Moral Code" of the Association which outlines national and international laws that define property rights. World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) documents that govern regulations for the protection of typeface are present here. The series is arranged alphabetically.

Subseries 9.1: Brian Boyajian Files, 1989

Scope and Contents: Brian Boyajian was Manager of Worldwide OEM Sales for Linotype-Hell.
