Biographical / Historical

The Grepkes were prolific collectors of paper dolls, beginning their collecting in the 1970s.

Scope and Contents

The collection consists of paper dolls dating from 1890-1998. The bulk of the paper dolls, however, date from the 1900s-1970s. Some of the paper dolls have been cut while others remain intact. There is also a large collection of dolls that are still contained within their original packaging. Such packaging could include the periodical or comic book in which it was published, the original box, or a folder or booklet. While a substantial amount of the paper dolls were commercially produced, there are examples of hand made dolls and clothing. The clothing for the dolls is mostly created from paper with some examples of cloth and plastic. Hand colored commercially produced dolls and clothing also exist within the collection. Special features on the dolls could include hair, plastic eyes, photographic faces, and moveable parts. The artwork aspect of the paper dolls may be of interest to researchers. The collection includes works by such paper doll artists as Queen Holden, who was renowned for her dolls of the 1930s, and Tom Tierney, who has depicted almost every celebrity of the 20th century in paper doll form. Originals and reproductions of Grace Gebbie Drayton's (1877-1936) Dolly Dingle paper dolls series, which appeared in the Pictorial Review from 1913-1933, are included among the materials. Drayton is well known for her creation and illustration of the "Campbell Kids". She illustrated a number of books and other publications and designed dolls and toys. Frances Tipton Hunter, creator of the "Little Busy Bodies" who appeared in Women's Home Companion in 1922 and 1923, career spanned from the 1920s to her death in 1957. Besides the "Little Busy Bodies" her work also appeared in a number of periodicals including the Saturday Evening Post, The Delineator, Collier's and Ladies Home Journal.

Not just seen from the perspective of artwork or playthings the serious scholar will be able to focus on a variety of topics related to the dolls. Researchers interested in fashion, popular culture, and images of women, children, or celebrities will find this collection of great value. The collection has a large representation of movie and television stars from the 1930s through the 1950s. These particular series would be of interest to research pertaining to the entertainment industry. In addition, American notions of ideal family sizes, settings, relationships, teenage life and leisure activities are represented in the collection.

Container Listing

Series 1: Advertising

Series 1 includes some of the earliest examples from the late 19th century of paper dolls used to promote products. Often manufacturers and distributors would use the reverse side of the doll to print information pertaining to the product and the location of the business. Clothing companies used dolls in women's magazines to promote ready to wear apparel and sewing patterns. Later examples are found in clothing catalogues. Arranged alphabetically by the name of the company.

Series 3: Celebrities, circa 1930-1995

Series 3 is arranged into five subseries by type of celebrity. Most of the paper dolls were produced in the 1930s, 40s and 50s. However, publishers continued to find them highly popular among consumers in later decades.

Subseries 3.1, Film Stars, circa 1930-1995, features a large variety of movie stars from silent film stars like Rudolph Valentino to major personalities like Shirley Temple and Marilyn Monroe. Most of the actors and actresses in the collection are from the 1930s and 1940s. However, some of these stars have paper doll books and collections that were still in print in the 1990s. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by last name.

Subseries 3.2, Musicians, circa 1950-1995, This small subseries includes popular musicians and singing groups. The majority of the dolls are from the 1950s and 1960s. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by last name or group (band) name.

Subseries 3.3, Pop Culture Personalities, circa 1950-1995, include figures that do not fit into the other categories in this series, like the Dionne Quintuplets and 1960's model Twiggy. The subseries are arranged alphabetically by last name or title.

Subseries 3.4: Royalty, circa 1950-1995, contain paper dolls portraying the British Royal family between the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II to the marriage of Prince Charles and Princess Diana. However, other royal families and figures are included. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by name.

Subseries 3.5, Stage and Theater Personalities, circa 1930-1950, this small subseries features stars from theater and stage productions. The subseries are arranged alphabetically by last name.

Subseries 3.6, Television Stars, circa 1950-1995, Similar to the subseries A, this subseries features famous celebrities from the earliest television programs to the present day. Most of the stars featured in the subseries are from the 1950s and 1960s. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by last name.

Series 5: Characters in Mass Media, circa 1935-1995

Series 5 features characters from television and print sources. Unlike series three, the celebrities found in this series are portrayed in the form of their television or radio personality. This series also includes characters from cartoons and comic strips. The series is divided into six subseries based on the type of mass media.

Subseries 5.1, Cartoon Characters, circa 1960-1995, includes cartoon characters. This includes Looney Toon and Disney characters as well as popular 1980s "Saturday morning" cartoon characters like She-Ra and Rainbow Brite. Arranged alphabetically by character name or title. Subseries 5.2, Comic Book and Strip Characters, circa 1940-1995, features character from comic books and strips. This includes special paper doll collections featuring the characters as well as actual copies of the comic strip that featured a character in paper doll form. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by character or comic strip title.

Subseries 5.3, Film Characters and Films, circa 1935-1995, features characters from famous movies. Most of the films featured are children's films, however some adult movies, like Gone with the Wind, are included. Literary characters that are portrayed in their film form are found within this series. Therefore, some of the titles from series four are found within this subseries as well. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by film title.

Subseries 5.4, Newspapers, circa 1940-1960, includes characters that were featured in newspapers. These characters were not necessarily paper dolls, but occasionally they would be featured in such a form. Characters not in this series may appear in series 12, which includes characters from periodicals and magazines. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by series or character name.

Subseries 5.5, Radio Characters and Shows, circa. 1940-1955, includes characters from radio programs. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by title of the program or by character name.

Subseries 5.6, Television Characters and Shows, circa. 1950-1980, includes paper dolls based on television shows and characters. Most of the shows featured are from the 1960s and 1970s. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by show title.

Series 6: Dolls and Toys, circa 1890-1990

Series 6, Dolls and Toys, circa 1890-1990, represents the toy aspect of paper dolls. Unlike the other series, these dolls were not intended to be collectors' items or works of art. The dolls in this series were intended to be used as toys. This is the largest series in the collection.

Subseries 6.1, Paper Dolls, circa 1890-1980, includes paper dolls that do not fit into the other series of the collection. These dolls were intentionally made for children to play with and were considered toys. The dolls are not based on a certain personality or character, but were original paper doll creations. This subseries includes paper dolls from their creating in the late 19th century through today. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by doll name.

Subseries 6.2, Paper Dolls Made From Three Dimensional Dolls and Toys, circa 1910-1990, Unlike the dolls in subseries 6.1, these dolls are based on other three dimensional dolls and toys like Raggedy Ann and Andy, The Gingham Family, or Holly Hobby. The largest portion of this subseries is made up by Barbie paper dolls. Barbie paper dolls were produced soon after the real Barbie doll was created. Since 1980, Barbie has been the most popular paper doll produced each year. This subseries will be of particular interest to researchers interested in toys that are not necessarily paper dolls. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by doll name.

Series 7: Family, circa 1880-1990

Series 7, Family, circa 1880-1990, includes paper dolls that represent families. It is arranged into four subseries based on the age of the family member.

Subseries 7.1, Children, circa 1880-1980, includes paper doll depictions of children. This subseries covers the largest period of time because children have always been a popular form for paper dolls. The subseries is arranged chronologically by decade. Undated material is at the end of the arrangement.

Subseries 7.2, Infants, circa 1920-1970, includes paper dolls who are babies or infants. The subseries is arranged chronologically by decade. Undated material is at the end of the arrangement.

Subseries 7.3, Parents and Children, circa 1930-1950, includes paper dolls with parents and children. For example, mother and daughter dolls with matching clothes are a highlight of this subseries. The subseries is arranged chronologically by decade. Undated material is at the end of the arrangement.

Series 8: Fashion and Costume

Series 8 features paper dolls which present fashions from a particular time period or place. The dolls depict fashions which represent the time they are from as well as retrospective dolls that represent past fashion. The series includes five subseries based on the type of fashion being depicted.

Subseries 8.1, Bridal, circa 1900-1990, bridal fashions throughout the 20th century. These fashions may include bridal gowns, groom tuxedos, and entire bridal parties. The subseries is arranged chronologically by decade of fashion represented. Retrospective collections are at the end of the arrangement.

Subseries 8.2, Costumes of the World, circa 1900-1995, includes paper dolls that represent the costumes of other cultures. Of particular interest is a large collection of Native American paper dolls. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by country or region.

Subseries 8.3 Designers, circa 1950-1980, feature the work of famous designers in paper doll form. This includes fashion designers like Schiaparelli and Chanel as well as costume designers for movies and productions. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by designer name.

Subseries 8.4, Eras and Historic, circa 1890-1995, contains materials that exemplify the changing fashions of certain time periods. Although paper dolls were not created until the 19th century, earlier fashions are also depicted in paper doll form. This subseries is arranged chronologically by decade. Dolls that fit into a larger time frame are arranged by time period. (pre-1865, for example).

Subseries 8.5, Military, circa 1940-1950, contains military fashions of World War II. Paper dolls that depict women who worked for the military during the war may be of particular interest to some researchers. The subseries is arranged alphabetically by position.

Series 12: Periodicals, circa 1890-1995

Series 12 includes paper dolls that were collected from periodicals. It is broken into two subseries. The first includes regular periodical characters, like the famous Betsy McCall. The second subseries includes paper dolls that were found in particular periodicals. This series includes a special aspect of the history of paper dolls as both play things and collectibles.

Subseries 12.1, Characters, circa 1900-1995, Women artists during the 1910s-1930s, generally known for their illustrations in children's publications, created and submitted paper dolls to periodicals such as the Ladies Home Journal, Woman's Home Companion, McCall's Magazine and the Pictorial Review. The popularity of the characters meant that the dolls were included in each issue for a number of years. Reproductions later printed as a collection of the dolls spanning many years. Materials are arranged alphabetically by the name of the character.

Subseries 12.2, Periodicals, circa 1890-1995, number of children's publications included a different paper doll in each issue. Wee Wisdom ran a series of paper dolls in the 1940s that had been drawn and submitted by children under the age of 15. Each doll had to be accompanied by a note from a teacher or parent stating that the doll was an original. Dolls appeared in the magazine with a name and clothing and the name and age of the creator. Dolls were redrawn by Dorothy Wagstaff. Materials are arranged alphabetically by title of periodical.
