Administrative Information

Acquisition Information

This collection was donated as part of the estate of Mary Harriman Rumsey to the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, in May 1934.

Provenance

Photographs of the Harriman Alaska Expedition may have originally been collected by Edward Henry Harriman.

Separated Materials

The following materials were also part of Mary Harriman Rumsey's estate, gifted to the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, in 1934. Where possible, their current locations have been noted.

- 33 artifacts, most of which were likely collected in Alaska by the Harriman Alaska Expedition, are now housed in the NMAI object collection (catalog numbers 18/6460 - 18/6494)

- A set of Harriman Alaska Expedition books, probably now in the Cornell University Libraries
- 4 phonograph records
- A bundle of botanical specimens

Related Materials

The Smithsonian Institution Archives, University of Washington Special Collections, and Library of Congress have photo albums relating to the Harriman Alaska Expedition. The SI Archives also holds the Harriman Alaska Expedition Collection and photogravure plates from the Harriman Alaska Series.

NMAI holds photogravure plates and proofs made from Edward Curtis's later photographs and Frederick Dellenbaugh's expedition notes in the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation records. The National Anthropological Archives also holds Curtis photographs and papers.

Processing Information

Processed by Sarah Ganderup, Contract Archivist in 2014, with funding from the Smithsonian Women's Committee. Additional item level processing by Rachel Menyuk, Processing Archivist, in 2018.

Preferred Citation

Identification of specific item; Date (if known); Mary Harriman Rumsey Collection of Harriman Alaska Expedition Photographs, Box and Folder Number; National Museum of the American Indian Archive Center, Smithsonian Institution.

Biographical / Historical

Mary Harriman Rumsey (1881-1934) was an important American philanthropist and the oldest child of railroad tycoon Edward Henry Harriman. In 1901, while studying at Barnard College, she co-founded the Junior League for the Promotion of Settlement Movements (later named the Junior League of the City of New York), which facilitated charitable work by privileged women among New York's impoverished groups. Rumsey's efforts lead to the establishment of the Association of Junior Leagues International Inc. in 1921.

Additionally, Rumsey co-founded Today magazine with her brother Averell Harriman and others, and in 1933 she chaired the Consumer Advisory Board of the National Recovery Administration.

In 1899, Mary Harriman was among the Harriman family members who accompanied the Harriman Alaska Expedition. Originally planned as a bear-hunting trip for the family, the expedition, was funded by Edward Henry Harriman and organized with the help of ethnographer and naturalist Clinton Hart Merriam. The party of accomplished scientists, naturalists, photographers, artists, and writers cruised from British Columbia to Siberia and back on a private ship, the SS George W. Elder, in June and July of 1899. The scientists' findings were published in the thirteen-volume Harriman Alaska Series, and Harriman also paid the expedition's official photographer, Edward S. Curtis, to compile souvenir albums from the over 5,000 photographs made during the course of the expedition.

Scope and Contents

The bulk of the collection comprises photographic prints, lantern slides, and one map documenting the Harriman Alaska Expedition from May to July of 1899. These photographs were made by members of the expedition, most prominently its official photographer Edward S. Curtis, funder Edward Henry Harriman, and lead scientist C. Hart Merriam. They depict Alaskan scenery, members of the expedition, and Native people and settlements that they encountered. Mary Harriman Rumsey's collection also includes later platinum prints of American Indians made and signed by Curtis (1900, 1903), photographs of glaciers in Alaska by Dora Keen (1914), a photograph of a painting by Charles Schreyvogel (1903), and a photograph of White Pass by Arthur Clarence Pillsbury (1898).

Arrangement

The collection is arranged in three series: photographs relating to the Harriman Expedition; photographs of Alaska that were not made on the Harriman Expedition; and other photographs relating to American Indians. The Harriman series is arranged in a rough chronological order.

Container Listing

Series 1: Harriman Alaska Expedition, 1899 May-July

1 Map

271 Photographic prints

396 Lantern slides

This series contains photographs made from May 31 to July 30, 1899, during the Harriman Alaska Expedition. Photographers represented in the series are Edward S. Curtis (official photographer for the expedition), Edward Henry Harriman, C. Hart Merriam, W. B. Devereux, William H. Averell, Wesley Coe, Leon J. Cole, Grove Karl Gilbert, and Robert Ridgway; some photographs also may have been made by Curtis's assistant for the voyage, D. J. Inverarity. There is also a map documenting the passage of the expedition's ship, the SS George W. Elder.

Most of the prints were likely removed from one of the expedition's souvenir albums, or at least were made in preparation for the albums, and they are duplicated in the lantern slides. Many of the lantern slides represent unique images and many are hand-colored.

The following is a rough chronology of the expedition, based on PBS's Harriman Expedition Retraced (<http://www.pbs.org/harriman/1899/chronology.html>):

May 23	Harriman's private train leaves New York City with many of the scientists on board
May 31	The train arrives in Seattle, where the remainder of the expedition party joins them on the SS George W. Elder
June 2	The expedition stops at Vancouver Island before traveling north along the British Columbia coast
June 3	Stop at Lowe Inlet to allow a group of scientists to explore Princess Royal Island
June 4	Stop at Metlakatla
June 5	Stop at Wrangell
June 6	Stop at Treadwell Mine near Skagway; 5 scientists stay for several days
June 7	Stop to ride White Pass Railroad
June 8	Stop at Juneau to pick up scientists left at Lowe Inlet and then head to Glacier Bay
June 15-18	Stop at Sitka
June 9-14	Cruise Glacier Bay, including exploration of Muir and other glaciers and a 12-man hike to Howling Valley
June 19	Stop at Yakutat mission settlement
June 20-23	Cruise to map Malaspina Glacier, observe seal hunters, and explore Disenchantment Bay
June 24	Stop at salmon cannery at Orca; converse with gold rush miners
June 25-29	Cruise Prince William Sound and discover and name Harriman Fiord and Harriman Glacier on June 26

June 30	Originally headed to Cook Inlet, but instead head to Kodiak Island to hunt bear
July 1-4	Bear hunting and July 4th celebration in Kodiak town (with boat races); Dellenbaugh hears about uninhabited Tlingit village in south Alaska
July 5-6	Pass Shumagin Islands on way to Bering Sea
July 7	Five scientists set up camp on Popof Island as the Elder heads onward
July 8	Stop at Dutch Harbor, Unalaska, and at Bogoslof before heading into the Bering Sea
July 9	Stop at St. Paul Island in the Pribilofs
July 10	Travel through Bering Sea toward Siberia
July 11	Stop at Plover Bay, Siberia, to visit Eskimo settlement
July 12	Stop at Port Clarence
July 13	Stop at St. Lawrence Island
July 14	Stop at Hall Island
July 15	Stop at St. Matthew Island
July 16-19	The Elder returns south, stopping at the Shumagins to retrieve camping scientists
July 20	Return to Kodiak
July 21-25	Returning south, stop at Juneau
July 26-27	Stop at uninhabited Tlingit village near Cape Fox
July 30	Arrive in Seattle

Series 3: Photographs relating to Southwest, Plains, and Northwest Indians, 1903, 1900

10 Photographic prints
Box Oversize 2

P11170-P11179

The bulk of this series comprises nine platinum prints made and signed by Edward Sheriff Curtis, which depict Apache, Hopi, Zuni, and Suquamish Indians and a Piegan camp. Most of these photographs were made as part of Curtis's The North American Indian project. This series also includes a print of a painting by Charles Schreyvogel entitled Custer's Demand, which was presented to E. H. Harriman by Colonel John Schuyler Crosby.
