Summary: The Helga Teiwes photograph collection contains over 7,000 negatives, slides and prints made by Teiwes between 1965 and 2002. For over thirty years Teiwes worked as a staff photographer for the Arizona State Museum, photographing and documenting Native American communities across the American Southwest. During this time, Teiwes also privately took photographs and built personal relationships among members of the Akimel O’odham, Tohono O’odham, Apache, Diné (Navajo) and Hopi tribes. These photographs include portraits of artists at work, families in their homes, daily life on the reservation, special events and landscape photography. Additionally, the Teiwes collection includes photographs from a 1975 trip to Peru and photographs of the Tarahumara (Rarámuri) community in Chihuahua, Mexico.

Administrative Information

Acquisition Information
This collection was donated by Helga Teiwes in 2013.

Related Materials
There is a large collection of photographs at the Arizona State Museum where Teiwes worked from 1964-1993. These photographs include harvesting of mesquite, cholla, and saguaro; traditional farming of corn at Hopi and of tepary beans among the Tohono O’odham; and craftspeople and their art in basketry, katsina carving, pottery, and weaving.

Biographical / Historical

Helga Kulbe Teiwes was born in Büderich, near Düsseldorf, in Germany in 1930. In 1950 Teiwes began a trade apprenticeship in photography under Master photographer Erna Hehmke-Winterer, a specialist in black and white portraiture, architectural and industrial photography. In 1957 Teiwes earned her master's degree in photography and worked as an industrial photographer in Düsseldorf until she emigrated to New York in 1960. During her four years in New York City, Teiwes worked as a darkroom worker, an assistant photographer for Cartier Jewelers and as a transparency retoucher. She also continued to build her portfolio through free-lance work. In 1964, a trip to Mesa Verde inspired Teiwes to seek work in the Southwest. The same year she was hired by Dr. Emil Haury of the University of Arizona to photograph his excavation of Snaketown on the Gila River Indian Reservation. Following Snaketown, Teiwes was hired as a museum photographer for the Arizona State Museum (ASM) at the University of Arizona in Tucson. She was also sought after for other archaeological projects during the 1960s and 1970s to take publication and studio shots. During this time, Teiwes developed a deep interest in the people and cultures of the Southwest and spent a significant amount of time on reservations building personal relationships among the Hopi, Apache, Tohono O'dham and Diné (Navajo) among others. Teiwes took a particular interest in documenting Native artists and the work they produced, including basket weavers, potters, jewelers and carvers. Teiwes also worked to capture everyday life among the Native people of the Southwest in addition to documenting special events like the Apache coming of age ceremony and the Tohono O'odham Saguaro Cactus harvest. Teiwes retired from the Arizona State Museum in 1993 but continued to work as a freelance photographer and writer in Tucson.

Throughout her career Teiwes's photographs and essays were published nationally and internationally. Her photographic study Navajo was published by the Swiss publisher U. Bar Varlag in 1991 and published in English in 1993. Her books Kachina Dolls: The Art of the Hopi Carvers and Hopi Basket Weaving: Artistry in Natural Fibers were published by the University of Arizona Press in 1991 and 1996. From October 2003 to June 2004, the Arizona State Museum held an exhibition titled "With an Eye on Culture: The Photography of Helga Teiwes" highlighting the broad scope of her career.

In 2013, Teiwes donated her collection of personal photographs, not taken for the Arizona State Museum, to the National Museum of the American Indian, Archive Center. Teiwes's photographs taken for the Arizona State Museum are housed in the ASM's photographic archives.
Scope and Contents

The Helga Teiwes photograph collection contains over 7,000 negatives, slides and prints made by Teiwes between 1965 and 2002 across the American Southwest, Mexico and Peru. The majority of the photographs document daily life and activities, artists at work, and special events among members of the Akimel O’dham, Tohono O’dham, Apache, Diné (Navajo) and Hopi tribes in Arizona and New Mexico. A smaller amount of photographs documents trips Teiwes made to Mexico to photograph the Tarahumara (Rarámuri) community in Chihuahua and a 1975 summer trip to Peru. The collection is arranged into seven series with additional subseries.

Series 1, Akimel O’dham (Pima), 1965-1993, 2001, contains photographs mostly taken among the Gila River Indian Community in Arizona. These include intimate portraits, landscape views and views of farming and agriculture. Of particular note are photographs of Patricia "Pat" Stone and her family and basket weaver Julia Francisco. The majority of the photographs in Series 2, Apache, 1973-1994, are from two San Carlos Apache coming of age ceremonies, or "Changing Woman* ceremonies, from 1992 and 1994. The 1992 ceremony for Leia Tenille Johnson was held in Whiteriver, Arizona and the 1994 ceremony for Vanessa Jordan of Bylas, Arizona. A selection of 50 photographic prints from these ceremonies were later exhibited in "Western Apache Sunrise Ceremony" at the University of Kansas Museum of Anthropology. The largest series, Series 3, Diné (Navajo), 1969-2002, is divided into seven subseries by topics. This includes artists and artisans, families and individuals across the Navajo Nation, industry and agriculture, trading posts and markets, places, schools, and other topics. Of particular note are the photographs of the Greeyes family from Tsegi Canyon, Arizona. In addition to photographing matriarch Bessie Salt Greeyes at home with family, weaving, cooking, shopping around town and herding sheep and goats, Teiwes accompanied Pete Greeyes to work at the Peabody Coal Mining Company. Other places and events of note include photographs of Monument Valley, Window Rock, seat of the Navajo Nation, the Hubbell and Shonto trading posts and the 1990 graduation from Navajo Community College (Now Diné College).

Series 4, Hopi, 1968-2002, highlights the work and artistry of Hopi basket weavers. Many of the photographs in this series were included in Teiwes's 1996 book Hopi Basket Weaving: Artistry in Natural Fibers. Coiled basket weavers from the Second Mesa include Madeline Lamson, Joyce Ann Saufkie, Evelyn Selestewa and Bertha Wadsworth, among others. Wicker basket weavers from the Third Mesa include Eva Hoyungowa, Abigail Kaursgowva, Vera Pooyouma and Vernita Silas, among others. Teiwes also photographed additional artists and events on the Hopi reservation including Maechel Saufkie's 1995 wedding. Series 5, Peru, 1975 includes photographs from Teiwes's 1975 summer trip to Peru. Teiwes visited and photographed several pre-Colombian archaeological sites including Sacsahuaman and Machu Piccu in addition to photographing in larger cities such as Cuzco, Lima and Quito (Ecuador). A large number of photographs in this series are from the Inti Raymi parade and festival held in Cuzco during their winter solstice. Series 6, Tarahumara (Rarámuri), 1971, 1977-1979 contains photographs from three trips to Chihuahua, Mexico to photograph the Tarahumara (Rarámuri) people for an Arizona State Museum exhibition held in 1979. Also included are photographs from the exhibition opening in Arizona.

Series 7, Tohono O’dham, 1969-1995, 2002 contains photographs of the saguaro cactus harvest in addition to other special events among the Tohono O’dham people. Teiwes documented Juanita Ahill, and later her niece Stella Tucker, throughout the process of harvesting and processing the saguaro cactus plant to make jam and ceremonial wine. Additional events photographed in this series include the San Xavier Elders parade and Tumacacori festival.

The photographs in this collection range all media types: 6x6cm color/black and white negatives; 35mm color/black and white negatives; 35mm and 6x6cm color slides; 6x6cm transparencies; contact sheets; and 3x5, 4x6, 8x10 and larger color/black and white photographic prints, some matted for sale or exhibition purposes. Teiwes did include handwritten notations on the backs of some photographs and slide mounts. There is also a small amount of paper documentation.

Series 1: Akimel O'odham (Pima) contains photographs taken by Teiwes during her many trip to visit the Akimel O'odham people from 1965-1983 and 2001. The Akimel O'odham people, formerly known as the Pima, are located in southern and central Arizona with the majority of the population being located in the Gila River Indian Community and the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Community. Teiwes spent the majority of her time in the Gila River Indian Community visiting with two women and their families, Julia Francisco and Patricia Stone. This series is divided into three subseries. Julia Francisco and Family (Subseries 1.1), Stone Family (Subseries 1.2) and Other Activities (Subseries 1.3). Photographs in this series include many portraits of individuals and groups as well as landscape views and events photographs. Photograph types include negatives, slides, transparencies and prints.

Arranged in subseries by subject then chronologically within the subseries.

12 Transparencies (color; 6x6cm)

This subseries (Subseries 1.1) has photographs of Julia Francisco (Akimel O'odham) and her family in 1974, 1981 and 1983. Julia Francisco (1916-1999) was a basket weaver who used traditional methods and materials to weave her baskets. Teiwes visited with Francisco and purchased several of her baskets for her personal collection. Teiwes notes that her baskets were made of willow, cattails and the seed pods of devil's claw. During her visits, Teiwes photographed Julia Francisco weaving baskets as well as spending time with her family. The photographs range all types, black and white and color negatives as well as slides and transparencies.

The Stone family photographs (Subseries 1.2) reflect the daily life of Patricia Stone (1933-2013), referred to by Teiwes as "Pat," and her family primarily in 1974. Pat was married to Leonard Stone (1928-2013) and they lived and worked in the Gila River community. In addition to working as a farmer, Leonard played the violin and helped form the Gila River Old Time Fiddlers. Almost all of the Stone children, William, Robert, Roger, Edward, Donald, Colleen, Phyllis, Carol, Louise, Rebecca, Lila and Leah were photographed by Teiwes. The majority of the photographs in this subseries were taken in 1974, though Teiwes first visited in 1965. A note by Teiwes indicates that the photographs were taken for an educational filmstrip to be used in schools. These photographs show the family at home preparing dinner, out in the fields collecting greens, the Stone family home as well as the children in town enjoying popsicles. Of all the children, Rebecca was photographed the most, particularly with siblings Edward, Leah and Lila. The majority of the photographs are black and white 6x6 cm negatives and color slides.

The Stone family was contacted and gave permission to have their photographs viewable online.

This subseries (Subseries 1.3) covers four distinct time periods Teiwes visited the Akimel O'odham, 1966, 1974, 1982-1984 and 2001. All of the photographs except those in 2001 were taken on the Gila River Reservation. The majority of the farming, house building and landscape views were taken in 1966 and 1974 with only a few from 1982-1984. The photographs from 2001 were taken on the Ak-Chin Reservation and show Leonard Stone playing violin with his band the "Gila River Old Time Fiddlers" as well as shots of the Francis Assisi church.

Series 2: Apache contains photographs from the White Mountain Apache and San Carlos Apache reservations from 1973-1994. Both the White Mountain Apache and San Carlos Apache reservations are located in east central Arizona. Although Teiwes did make earlier trips (see Subseries 2.1), particularly to Whiteriver, Arizona, the majority of the photographs in this series were taken at two Coming of Age Ceremonies: Leia Tenille Johnson, 1992, in Whiteriver (Subseries 2.2) and Vanessa Jordan, 1994, in Bylas (Subseries 2.3). Teiwes consulted with the families and received permission to photograph the two ceremonies. A selection of 50 photographs were later exhibited in "Western Apache Sunrise Ceremony" at the University of Kansas Museum of Anthropology. These prints are located in Subseries 2.4.

Arranged in subseries by subject then chronologically within the subseries.

This subseries (Subseries 2.1) includes photographs taken by Teiwes between 1973 and 1993 in San Carlos Apache and White Mountain Apache communities. This includes slides and negatives of people such as Edgar Perry at Fort Apache, Chesley Wilson, Geronimo III and Blessing Goklish. There are also several landscape views in Whiteriver and other locations in Arizona.

Arranged chronologically.

2.2: Coming of Age Ceremony, Leia Tenille Johnson: Whiteriver, AZ, June 1992
29 Photographic prints
239 slides (photographs)
36 negatives (photographic) (black and white; 35mm)
148 negatives (photographic) (color; 35mm)

This subseries (Subseries 2.2) includes photographs from Leia Tenille Johnson’s Coming of Age Ceremony. On June 4, 1992, Teiwes was granted permission to photograph the Sunrise and Painting ceremonies of 12 year old Leia Tenille Johnson of Whiteriver. Her parents, Patricia and Edwin Johnson allowed Teiwes to join them at their camp on June 19, 1992 at the beginning of the ceremony. Additionally, Teiwes received permission from Leia’s sponsor Geneveive Hopper and her brother Tilford Hopper (Leia’s godfather) as well as from the medicine man of San Carlos. Because Leia’s mother was born on the San Carlos Apache reservation, the coming of age ceremony was the San Carlos version even though it was held in Whiteriver on the Whiteriver Apache reservation. The photographs document all steps of the ceremony from Friday, June 19 to Sunday, June 21. The majority of the photographs are slides though there are also 35mm color negatives. Teiwes numbered all the images using an A-xxx system, though there are gaps in between the numbers. The slides in this subseries have begin with A-75. The images are arranged chronologically and demonstrate the various parts of the Coming of Age ceremony: Food exchanges, the Sunrise Ceremony, the Mountain Spirit Dancers (Gaان) and the Painting Ceremony. The prints that were made from these photographs for the exhibition “Western Apache Sunrise Ceremony” are listed in Subseries 2.4.

6 negatives (photographic) (black and white; 6x6cm)
13 Photographic prints
120 negatives (photographic) (color; 35mm)
103 slides (photographs)
This subseries (Subseries 2.3) includes photographs from Vanessa Jordan's Coming of Age ceremony in April, 1994 in Bylas, Arizona. Wishing to increase documentation of the Painting Ceremony, Teiwes attended and photographed that portion of twelve year old Vanessa's Coming of Age ceremony. There are also photographs from the evening before of the Mountain Spirit Dancers (Gaan). Unlike the photographs from Leia Tenille Johnson's ceremony the slides and negatives in this subseries were not given A-xxx numbers. Teiwes also took photographs of Vanessa's Uncle, Chesley Wilson, with his granddaughters Leslie and Michaelina before attending the ceremony. The prints that were made from these photographs for the exhibition "Western Apache Sunrise Ceremony" are listed in Subseries 2.4.

2.4: Exhibition Photographs: "Western Apache Sunrise Ceremony", 1992, 1994
61 Photographic prints (11"x14"; 16"x20")
This subseries (Subseries 2.4) includes the color prints used in the exhibition "Western Apache Sunrise Ceremony." The exhibition of 50 color photos was first shown in Teiwes's hometown of Dusseldorf,
Germany, and then later at the Kansas University's Museum of Anthropology in 1997. Detailed captions about each phase of the ceremony and its meaning were included with the photographs. These captions and additional documentation gathered by Teiwes on the ceremony can be found in Box 20, Folder 33. Teiwes divided the photographs into three groupings, "Friday: The Day of Food Exchanges" (numbers 1-12), "Saturday: The Sunrise Ceremony" (S1-S20), and "Sunday: The Painting Ceremony" (P1-P16). There are a number of prints which do not have an exhibition number, so do not have a corresponding caption. The majority of the prints are 11"x14" with a select few being 16"x20". Several of the prints are still in their original matting with Teiwes's title and signature. It has been noted where the original slide or negative is located. Out of the 61 prints, 54 are from Leia Tenille Johnson's Coming of Age ceremony and 7 are from Vanessa Jordan's.

Series 3: Diné (Navajo) is the largest series in the Helga Teiwes collection. Though the dates range from 1969-2002 the majority of the photographs were taken in 1979-1980 and then in 1989-1990. The Navajo Nation covers over 27,000 square miles in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah and is the largest land area held by a sovereign Native American nation. This series is divided into seven subseries and includes media of all types including slides, negatives, prints and transparencies. Artists and Artisans (Subseries 3.1) includes photographs of jewelers, potters, painters and weavers at work and with their families. People and Families (Subseries 3.2) includes photographs of Diné (Navajo) families and individuals across the Navajo Nation. Of particular note are the photographs of the Greyeyes family, particularly of Bessie Salt Greyeyes. Additional series include photographs of Industry and Agriculture (Subseries 3.3), Trading Posts and Markets (Subseries 3.4), Places (Subseries 3.5), School (Subseries 3.6) and Other Topics (Subseries 3.7). Most of the photographs in this series have been identified by Teiwes and it is evident that she maintained a close relationship with the Greyeyes family during her many trips to Tsegi Canyon where they lived. As with much of the rest of her collection, this series includes a mix of intimate portraits, landscape views, event photography and group photographs. In 1991, 160 photographs that Teiwes took among the Diné were used to illustrate Wolfgang Lindig's book Navajo: Tradition and Change in the Southwest which was published in German. An english translation was published in 1993.

Arranged in subseries by subject and then alphabetically within the subseries.

47 negatives (photographic) (black and white; 35mm)
325 negatives (photographic) (black and white; 6x6cm)

This subseries (Subseries 3.1) includes photographs of Diné (Navajo) artists and artisans between 1979 and 2002. This includes images of Navajo jewelers, painters, potters, sandpainters, sculptors and weavers. There are both photographs of the artists at work and of their finished works. The majority of the photographs were taken in 1989-1990 though there is a large series of photographs taken of Lurina Bartlett and her family making pottery in 1980. In addition to photographing artists in their homes and workshops, Teiwes also captures artists at work at the Heard Museum (1983) and at various trading posts around the Navajo Nation. The photographs range all types including black and white and color negatives as well as slides and transparencies.

This subseries (Subseries 3.2) includes photographs of Navajo families and individuals from 1977, 1979-1982 and 1990 from Arizona, New Mexico and Utah. This includes the Black family (Douglas Mesa, UT), Evelyn Rose Curley (Ganado, AZ), Gaile B. Davis (Tsaile, AZ), the Greyeyes family (Tsegi Canyon, AZ), the Greymountain family (Navajo Mountain, UT), the Huskons (Cameron, AZ), the Jackson family (Monument Valley, AZ), the Kee family (Vanderwagon, NM), Priscilla Neboyia (Chinle, AZ), Agnes Sorrel Horse (Shiprock, NM) and Alice Yellowman (Chinle, AZ). The photographs range all types including black and white and color negatives as well as slides and transparencies.

Teiwes spent a significant amount of time with the Greyeyes family in and around Tsegi Canyon particularly photographing Bessie Salt Greyeyes, the matriarch of the family. Bessie and Pete had eleven children (Ray, Jack, Leo, Irvin, Leonard, Ned, Leon, Alice, Avylena, Jean and Nadine) some of whom are photographed with their own children by Teiwes. In addition to photographs around town, doing laundry and shopping, Teiwes captured images of Bessie at home weaving in her hogan, tending goats and sheep, carding wool and cooking, often surrounded by family. Pete, who worked for the Peabody Coal Mine also allowed Teiwes to photograph him at work (see Subseries 3.3). Teiwes made several prints of her photographs of Bessie and Pete Greyeyes including an image of Pete and Bessie together, Bessie with her goats, Bessie weaving and Bessie shopping. These are listed alongside their corresponding negatives.

This subseries (Subseries 3.3) includes photographs documenting industry and agriculture on the Navajo Nation in 1979 and 1990. Teiwes took photographs of the cattle industry near Tuba City, the Navajo Agricultural Products Industry (NAPI) during the potato and wheat harvests in New Mexico, the Navajo Forest Products Industries in Navajo, New Mexico and the Peabody Coal Mining Company at work on the Black Mesa Plateau. Teiwes spent time with Pete Greyeyes, who worked for Peabody Coal Mining, photographing the explosives team in 1979. She also took photographs of staff in the front office as well as those working with explosives. Teiwes returned to the Black Mesa Coal mine in 1990 and took photographs of cranes in action. The majority of the photographs in this subseries are 35mm color slides and 6x6 black and white negatives.

This subseries (Subseries 3.5) contains landscape views and photographs of locations across the Navajo Nation from 1969-1998. Of note are the photographs from Window Rock, Arizona, which serves as the capital of the Navajo Nation as well as the seat of the government. When Teiwes was there in 1989-1990... she captured landscape views of the famous "Window Rock" landmark as well as photographing a tribal council meeting, the Navajo Times office and other locations around town. Teiwes also visited Ganado, Arizona on that same trip (about 30 miles east of Window Rock) to photograph the Ganado Chapter house and other activities in town. Other locations Teiwes photographed in Arizona include: Canyon de Chelly, Chinle, Lukachukai, Dilkon-Leupp, Kayenta, Moenkopi, Monument Valley, Tsegi Canyon, Wheatfield Lake and Navajo Creek. Locations in New Mexico include: Gallup, Crystal and Shiprock. The photographs range all types including black and white and color negatives as well as slides and transparencies.

There are several photographs at this end of this series that were unlabeled by Teiwes and are yet to be identified. The photographs range all types including black and white and color negatives as well as slides and transparencies.

The majority of Series 4: Hopi reflects the work Teiwes did between 1992-1995 documenting Hopi basket weavers at work and with their families. Many of these photographs were included in Teiwes's 1996 book Hopi Basket Weaving: Artistry in Natural Fibers. Prior to beginning her project, Teiwes received permission from the Hopi Cultural Preservation Office in addition to obtaining permission from each basket weaver before photographing them. The Hopi reservation is located in northeastern Arizona and today the Hopi people occupy twelve villages, nine of which are located on the Hopi Mesas. Different types of traditional basket weaving are learned and practiced according to specific village and Mesa. The first subseries, Coiled Basket Weavers (Subseries 4.1) includes portraits of the weavers from Second Mesa, images of their baskets and plaques and in some cases photographs of family members. Wicker Basket Weavers (Subseries 4.2) features the same types of photographs from Third Mesa. Gallery Shows and Other Collections (Subseries 4.3) includes object photography of featured works. The last subseries (Subseries 4.4) includes photographs of other artists, events and other miscellaneous topics.

Arranged in subseries by subject and then alphabetically within the subseries.

This subseries (Subseries 4.1) includes photographs of Hopi basket weavers using the coiling technique between 1992-1995. The Hopi art of coiled basket weaving is used mainly in Second Mesa villages including Shungopovi, Shipaulovi and Mishongnovi. Traditionally all plant materials used to make fibers for basket weaving come from wild plants, the major source for coiled Hopi baskets being the yucca plant. Over the course of four years Teiwes interviewed and photographed fourteen basket weavers from the Second Mesa village of Shungopovi, two sisters from Shipaulovi and a mother and daughter from Mishongnovi. The majority of the weavers represented in this collection are from Shungopovi and were born into various clans including the Water/Corn Clan, Bear Clan, Sun/Forehead Clan and Bearstrap/Spider Clan. The three weavers Teiwes photographed most prolifically were Madeline Lamson, Joyce Ann Saufkie and Bertha Wadsworth. Teiwes also took particular interest in the Celestewa family from Mishognovi, Evelyn, her husband Ivan and daughter Colleen. Evelyn was one of the few weavers Teiwes interviewed who continued to make Pikii trays, burden baskets and cradles, skills she passed down to her daughter Colleen. For more information about each weaver you can consult chapter four in Teiwes's book, Hopi Basket Weaving, "Coiled-Basket Weavers of Second Mesa." The majority of photographs in this subseries are 6x6cm negatives and 35mm slides. There are quite a few black and white 8x10 prints as well as 3x5 color prints.

This subseries (Subseries 4.2) includes photographs of Hopi basket weavers using the wicker technique between 1992-1995. Today, Hopi wicker basketry is produced on the Third Mesa in the villages of Oraibi, Kykotsmovi, Hotevilla and in smaller amounts in Bacavi, Lower Moenkopi and Upper Moenkopi. Teiwes had developed friendships with several Hopi basket weavers in Hotevilla over the years and between 1992-1995 interviewed and photographed ten wicker-basket weavers from Hotevilla and two from Oraibi. These women were born into various clans including the Corn Clan, Sparrow/Fire Clan, Roadrunner/Greasewood Clan, Rabbit/Tobacco Clan and Rabbit Clan. For more information about each weaver you can consult chapter five in Teiwes's book, Hopi Basket Weaving, "Wicker-Basket Weavers of Third..."

This subseries (Subseries 4.3) includes photographs of finished Hopi works displayed at various galleries, museums and fairs in 1993-1994, 1996 and 2002. The majority are photographs of baskets and plaques woven by the Hopi basket weavers Teiwes worked closely with for her book. In addition to woven items, there are also photographs of katsina dolls and pottery.

This subseries (Subseries 4.4) includes photographs of other Hopi artists, events and miscellaneous topics. There are a small amount of photographs of Katsina doll makers since Teiwes spent a significant amount of time working with Hopi katsina doll makers for her book Kachina Dolls: The Art of Hopi Carvers. The majority of these photographs are located at the Arizona State Museum and not a part of this collection. Other artists in this series include Charles Loloma and potters Karen Abeita, Karen Charley and Rosetta Huma. Of particular note are the photographs from Maechel Saufkie's wedding in July, 1995. There are also landscape photographs from the First, Second and Antelope Mesas. The photographs range all types including black and white and color negatives as well as slides and transparencies.

Series 5: Peru, 1975

20 Photographic prints
358 slides (photographs)
217 negatives (photographic)

Series 5: Peru contains photographs from one trip in 1975. Teiwes spent part of the summer of 1975 traveling around Peru visiting many pre-columbian sites such as Sacsahuaman, outside of Cuzco and Machu Picchu. Teiwes was in Cuzco during the Inti Raymi festival which takes place during the winter solstice. Since Peru is below the equator, the shortest days of the year are during June and July. Teiwes captured the traditional costumes worn during the Inti Raymi processions and parade through Cuzco proper as well as the theatrical representation of Inti Raymi held at Sacsahuaman every year near the end of June. Additionally, Teiwes spent time in Lima, visiting the Lima museum and other nearby sites including Cajamarcilla and Pachacamac. Teiwes also briefly visited Quito, Ecuador capturing portraits of local residents. Throughout this trip Teiwes captured landscape views, events, as well as portraits. Unfortunately, most of the subjects of her portraits in this series are unnamed. The majority of the photographs are 6x6cm color negatives and 6x6cm color slides. Teiwes also made color prints from a selection of her photographs, mostly from Machu Picchu and the Inti Raymi festival and parade in Cuzco and Sacsahuaman. The prints were left matted and are housed in oversized boxes.

Series 6: Tarahumara (Rarámuri), 1977-1979, 1971

253 slides (photographs)
224 negatives (photographic)

Series 6: Tarahumara (Rarámuri) contains photographs from 1971, 1977-1978 in Chihuahua, Mexico and 1979 in Arizona at the Arizona State Museum. The Rarámuri, or Tarahumara, are Native people from the Northwest region of Mexico. Located in the state of Chihuahua, in a portion of the Sierra Madres known as the Sierra Tarahumara, the Tarahumara people as of 2016 number between 50,000 and 70,000 many who still practice traditional lifestyles. Helga Teiwes took three trips to Mexico to visit the Tarahumara taking the bulk of photographs in this series on her first trip in 1971. Unlike the majority of Teiwes's photographs from other communities, many of her Tarahumara subjects are unnamed perhaps due to the language barrier, and are marked simply as "Tarahumara Woman" or "Tarahumara Man." Teiwes photographed women weaving, women cooking meals in their cave dwellings, men working the fields, as well as many landscape views between Creel and Los Mochis. In 1977 Teiwes returned to Panalachic, Mexico to photograph Tarahumara dancers. In 1978 Teiwes photographed the Tarahumara group, which included a violin maker and dancers, that came to Arizona in 1979 for the Arizona State Museum exhibit featuring Tarahumara material culture. The majority of the photographs in this series are 6x6cm black and white negatives and 35mm color slides.

Series 7: Tohono O’odham contains photographs from 1969-1995 and 2002. The Tohono O’odham people live primarily in the Sonoran Desert of Eastern Arizona and Northwestern Mexico. As of 2016, the Tohono O’odham Nation has around 28,000 enrolled members and covers about 2.8 million acres of land. Helga Teiwes visited the Tohono O’odham Nation frequently over the years, taking a particular interest in the annual saguaro fruit harvest, called Hasan Baihi. The harvested fruit was once used as a vital food source and is still used today to make jam and wine that is used in a ceremony to bring rain to the desert. This series contains photographs from 1982 of Juanita Ahill and her family gathering the saguaro fruit and processing the fruit to make jam and the ceremonial wine, called nawait. Juanita Ahill's niece, Stella Tucker, continued the tradition. Photographs from 1994 show Stella Tucker and family gathering the Saguaro fruit and canning of the jam and wine. Other events Teiwes photographed included the San Xavier elders parade, the San Xavier Powwow as well as the Tumacacori Fiesta. In addition to events, Teiwes photographed the daily lives of people she visited with. The photographs contain images of men plowing the fields and farming as well as women such as Anna Sarficio, Aloisa Juan, and Frances Manuel, weaving and making pottery. Photographic types include 6x6cm black and white and color negatives, 35mm color slides, transparencies and photographic prints. The prints (8.5x8.5cm), which are from the 1982 Saguaro cactus harvest, were made from the 6x6cm color negatives.
