Descriptive Entry

This accession consists of the Smithsonian Institution, Global Volcanism Program website as it existed on July 24, 2015. The Global Volcanism Program, administered within the National Museum of Natural History, seeks to document, understand, and disseminate information about global volcanic activity. The website includes volcano activity reports, information about individual volcanoes, and a gallery of volcano types. Due to technical issues, data found in this accession is incomplete and some images and most of the newsletters are missing. Materials are in electronic format.
