Descriptive Entry

This accession consists of the "Science in Pre-K" website, maintained by the National Air and Space Museum (NASM), as it existed on April 7, 2016. The Science in Pre-K program began as a cooperative effort between NASM and the Public Schools of the District of Columbia to provide professional development and grew to have a national audience. The website provides teachers with a foundation in physical science content and teaching methods for science inquiry in a preschool environment. The website also includes a blog which was launched in May 2014. Materials are in electronic format.
