Descriptive Entry

This accession consists of two Encyclopedia of Life (EOL) social media accounts. EOL is a global partnership between the scientific community and the general public to make freely available to anyone knowledge about all the world's organisms.

EOL's SoundCloud account, crawled on November 30, 2015, is used to share field recordings of animal sounds. SoundCloud is an online platform for sharing audio. Due to technical issues, audio content may not have been captured or may not play properly.

EOL's Twitter account, crawled on March 8, 2016, is used to make announcements and to share science news. Twitter is a microblogging platform. Due to technical issues, only a portion of this account is included in this accession.

Materials are in electronic format.
