Descriptive Entry

This accession consists of "The Plant Press" blog maintained by the Department of Botany as it existed on August 15, 2017. The blog is an additional platform for the content found in the quarterly printed newsletter of the same name. The newsletter is jointly produced by the Department of Botany and the United States National Herbarium. It provides information about staff research, visitors, new publications, and plant conservation highlights. The blog has been back-populated with content beginning with the January 1998 issue. Materials are in electronic format.
