Descriptive Entry

This accession consists of 17 Google+ accounts maintained by units throughout the Smithsonian Institution as they existed between March 6 and April 18, 2017. Google+ is a third-party social networking site used for interacting with the public and promoting the Institution's activities, exhibitions, and research. Due to technical issues, some content may be missing or may not function as expected. Much of the content is older than the date it was captured and some accounts were already inactive at the time they were captured. Materials are in electronic format.
