Descriptive Entry

This accession consists of two websites maintained by the Smithsonian Center for Learning and Digital Access.

The "Smithsonian Source: Resources for Teaching American History" website, crawled June 21, 2018, provides lesson plans and primary sources related to a variety of topics in American history. It appears to have been last updated in 2007 and was retired shortly after this crawl. Due to technical issues, many videos are missing from this crawl and some features may not function as expected. This accession also includes files for this website from the web server.

The "Smithsonian Learning Lab" website, crawled September 17, 2018, inspires the discovery and creative use of digital materials and encourages users to create and share personalized collections of Smithsonian Institution assets and user-generated resources in order to build a global community of learners who are passionate about adding to and bringing to light new knowledge, ideas, and insight. This accession does not include any password-protected content.

Materials are in electronic format.
