Descriptive Entry

This accession consists of the Global Genome Initiative (GGI) website as it existed on August 8, 2019. GGI is a collaborative science-based endeavor to capture the planet's genomic diversity, preserve it in the world's biorepositories, and make it available to researchers everywhere. It is a component of the Smithsonian Institution for Biodiversity Genetics. The website provides information about the program which is managed by the National Museum of Natural History. Materials are in electronic format.
