Descriptive Entry

This accession consists of web content maintained by the National Air and Space Museum.

The primary website for the National Air and Space Museum was crawled on June 13, 2021. It consists of information about the museum, including its Steven F. Udvar-Hazy Center, and its exhibitions, collections, staff, research, programs, and events. The website also includes educational resources. Due to technical issues, many of the online exhibitions were not captured. Detailed collection information is not included in this accession.

The special topic pages on the National Air and Space Museum website were crawled separately on July 8, 2021. The special topics are hosted on a blog platform and the browsable index is included. The earliest content was posted in March 2009. Due to technical issues, some content may be missing and posts may be browsed but not searched.

The web page for the Innovations in Flight: Family Day and Outdoor Aviation Display event, maintained on the National Air and Space Museum website, was crawled on August 27, 2021, and promotes the event which occurred on August 21, 2021. It provides information about the annual event that occurs at the Steven F. Udvar-Hazy Center. Materials are in digital format.
