Smithsonian Institution Archives, Accession 94-091, National Museum of Natural History. Environmental Awareness Program, Records

Descriptive Entry

This accession consists of records that document three projects by the Environmental Awareness Program. First is a report produced for the Rockefeller Foundation concerning efforts by museums to promote environmental awareness. Records concerning this report include drafts of lectures and the report itself as well as background and conference information. The second project is an exhibit on tropical rainforests. These records include background research and drafts of accompanying text. The third project recorded in this accession is titled Disappearing Forest and includes substantial background materials and maps concerning deforestation.
