Historical Note

The Society of Systematic Zoology (SSZ) was organized at the Chicago meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) in 1947. Prior to the meeting, Waldo LaSalle Schmitt and George W. Wharton, Jr., had polled taxonomists about the founding of a systematics society; and the result was an organizational meeting on December 29, 1949. The first annual meeting of the SSZ was held in Washington in September 1948. Schmitt became its first president and Wharton its first secretary-treasurer. The government of the Society was vested in a council, with officers elected from nominees named by the Council. Original Council members were Orlando Park and Richard Eliot Blackwelder. A president and president-elect were elected to one-year terms.

A News Letter for the SSZ was first published in 1949 under the direction of Hobart Muir Smith, chairman of the Publications Committee. In 1952 the Journal of Systematic Zoology was founded under the auspices of Richard Eliot Blackwelder. It gradually supplanted the News Letter which was discontinued in 1964. The quarterly Journal was considered the most important project of the SSZ; it was devoted to theoretical and philosophical considerations in systematics rather than the naming of new taxa.

Other projects of the Society have included the continuing publication of "List of Books on Zoology," and a Directory of Zoological Taxonomists.

Descriptive Entry

These records include membership files, administrative files, reports, fiscal records, records related to the Journal of Systematic Zoology and copies of other SSZ publications, records related to the annual meetings, the Pacific Section of SSZ records, files on scientific societies, and the records of the Summer Institute in Systematics.

Series 9: SSZ PACIFIC SECTION RECORDS, 1951-1973

The Pacific Section of the SSZ was organized in 1951 when several members interested in organizing a western section of the Society met at Pomona College to arrange such a group. As a result Carl Leavitt Hubbs, president of the Society, appointed John S. Garth as provisional secretary to poll western members about their interest in the formation of such a group at the Corvallis meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in June 1952. The Pacific Section, with John S. Garth as its first president, was officially organized in 1952.

Series 11: SUMMER INSTITUTE IN SYSTEMATICS, 1965-1970

Attendances at various summer conferences from 1965 to 1967 gave rise to the idea of a Summer Institute in Systematics beginning in 1967. The SSZ, the American Zoological Society, and the Smithsonian co-sponsored the Institute, the purpose of which was to enhance the quality and scope of courses in Systematics being taught at the college and graduate level. The program was developed by members of the three organizations, and physical facilities were provided by the National Museum of Natural History.
